BRYAN ATTEMPTS TO SPEED TREATY AS PARTY POLICY

Willing to Accept Reservations to End Delay, His Friends Say.

THINKS WAIT IS HARMFUL

WILSON MAY SEND MESSAGE

Predicted That President Will Reveal His Attitude on Third Term and Other Questions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Sentiment on the Democratic candidates for President, the vital issues of the campaign and incidentally the peace treaty is expected to become more definite this week as the result of conferences and speeches that will mark the gathering of the leaders for the meeting of the National Committee and the two-group Jackson Day dinner on Jan. 8 at the Willard and Washington Hotels.

Friends of William Jennings Bryan, who will arrive here Tuesday or Wednesday, say tonight that he has essayed not only to direct the Democratic Party as to the nominee and the platform, but that he intends to exert his influence to effect a prompt ratification of the treaty. He is convinced, these friends assert, that delay in accepting reservations is working not only to the disadvantage of the country in a business and financial way, but is placing the Democratic Party in the position of fighting for issues that the majority of the people do not want.

"Mr. Bryan sees no objection to the reservation made on Article X.," said one of his confidants tonight who saw many Democratic Senators last week. If this is Mr. Bryan's position, there seems every reason to believe that he is determined to carry the fight on the treaty directly to the door of the White House.

More than 800 Democrats, representing candidates for President, the leaders in Congress and the country and women, will attend the dinner in celebration of Andrew Jackson Day. The occasion, always one for taking account of political stock and referring to the historic fundamentals of the Democratic Party, will not be neglected by the speakers, including Mr. Bryan, Attorney General Palmer, ex-Secretary McAdoo, and Senator Pomerene.

There will be fifteen speakers. While every effort will be made to hold the speeches within non-factional lines many of those having Presidential ambitions are expected to do what they can in aid of their own cause. They have the precedent of President Wilson at this dinner in 1912 before them. Mr. Bryan will speak twice, and if he follows the plan he has outlined to his friends, his speeches will attempt to define the type the Democratic standard bearer should be in 1920 as well as the dominant planks in the platform.

President Wilson cannot attend the dinner. While it has been denied that he will make an announcement as to a third term it is now said by Administration counselors that he will send a message of some sort to the dinner. He has been told that the party leaders will expect word from him, for unless they get something to guide them the wavering and practical ones among them will be inclined to follow the lead of William Jennings Bryan.

Those who are conversant with the drift in Democratic affairs say that President Wilson will make an announcement that will have a direct bearing on everything that Mr. Bryan intends to do while here in reference to the treaty and party policies.

At least seven Governors will be among the Democrats of prominence at the dinner, these being Governors James M. Cox, Ohio; John J. Cornwell, West Virginia; Albert Ritchie, Maryland; Charles H. Brough, Arkansas; Robert A. Cooper, South Carolina; J. B. A. Robertson, Oklahoma, and Westmoreland Davis, Virginia.

Governor Cox and Governor Cornwell will be among the speakers at the two banquets. The complete list of the speakers will be announced Monday.

PREPARE TO PUSH TREATY.

Advocates of Ratification to Renew Efforts This Week.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—There were growing indications tonight that the Senate's struggle to dispose of the Peace Treaty will be renewed during the coming week with an increased determination on the part of those who want ratification.

Senators returning from holiday trips to their home States added several new suggestions to the compromise proposals of those who had remained here during the recess to work on a conciliation program. As a result, the compromise negotiations seemed likely to take a wide scope, and although no one could predict certainly the result, a reopening of the whole subject in private and party conferences and on the Senate floor apparently was assured.

Threaten German Boycott Till French Free Captives

LIMOGES, Jan. 4.—Replying to a request for a price on a machine to be used for making cardboard boxes for shoes, a Leipsic dealer has written to a manufacturer here that he would be unable to supply the machine.

His reason was that "German manufacturers have taken a resolution not to supply goods to France until German prisoners of war are released."

Charges for Wireless Service Will Be One-Third Less Than Present Cable Rates.

An American and international wireless operating system that is designed to link the countries of the world in exchanging commercial messages, which is announced to begin business in the United States and throughout the Americas, Hawaii, Britain, France, the Scandinavian countries and China and Japan, has been effected through interests of the General Electric Company of Schenectady, under the name of the Radio Corporation of America. The United States corporation and a subsidiary operating company for general service in Central and South America will have a total capitalization of $20,000,000.

The wireless is to be a competitor of the different cable companies, and announcement from one of the officials of the new Radio Corporation said the wireless rate based on word or complete message would be one-third lower than cable charges. The date of starting operation depends on the return by the Government of stations taken over for war purposes.

All of the interests of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America have been taken over by the new corporation. All of the former British interests in the Marconi Company have been acquired by the General Electric Company, and the ownership and control of all operations of the Radio Corporation are vested exclusively in Americans.

It is believed that the new organization is planning to co-operate both with the Government and national commercial interests, and to meet the suggestion by Federal authorities that American trade shall have free and independent communication with South and Central America as well as with other foreign and more distant trade centres.

Officers of the Radio Corporation, who were elected on Saturday, are: President, Edward J. Nally, who was Vice President and general manager of the Marconi Company; chairman of the board, Owen D. Young; secretary and controller, Charles J. Ross; treasurer, George S. De Sousa; assistant secretary, Lewis MacConnach; assistant treasurer, Marion H. Payne, and general counsel, Ex-Attorney General John W. Griggs.

The directors include: Gordon Abbott, chairman of board, Old Colony Trust Company, Boston; Albert C. Davis, Vice President, General Electric Company; John W. Griggs, Edward J. Nally, Edward W. Harden of J. B. Colgate & Co.; Edwin W. Rice, Jr., President General Electric Company; James R. Sheffield of Sheffield & Betts, and Owen D. Young, Vice President, General Electric Company. The general offices of the corporation are in the Woolworth Building.

President Nally, at his home at Ossining last night, said the American organization and the contracts already made with operating companies in Europe, meant an immediate expansion of wireless development.

"The Radio Corporation has been greatly strengthened through its connection with the General Electric Company," said he, "by reason of which it will have available for its use the valuable wireless apparatus recently developed by the General Electric Company, the principal device being already known as the Alexanderson high-frequence alternator."

Radio stations, which the corporation is waiting for the Government to relinquish control, are the transmitting depot at New Brunswick, and the receiving station at Belmar, N. J., which will be used for the British service; Marion, Mass., and Chatham, Cape Cod, sending and receiving for Scandinavian service, and Tuckerton, N. J., for sending and receiving from France, Hawaii, Japan and China operations will be conducted from Balinas and Marshal, near San Francisco. Mr. Nally said the Radio Corporation was incorporated in Delaware in November.

EARTHQUAKE KILLS SCORES IN MEXICO; PANIC IN CAPITAL

Heavy Shocks Centre at Orizaba Volcano, but Are Felt by Whole Republic.

VERA CRUZ SUFFERS MOST

CAPITAL BUILDINGS CRACK

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4 (Associated Press).—Scores of persons have been killed in a violent earthquake which occurred in many parts of Mexico last night. The centre of the disturbance is believed to have been near the volcano of Orizaba.

The panic in the capital among the ignorant classes was indescribable. Many of the people fled from their homes and flocked to the churches. The Indians in the suburbs hurried to the shrine of the Virgin of Guadalupe.

From Teluca, Cuernavaca, and Puebla come similar stories of panic. Slight damage was done to the poorly constructed homes of the poor people. Panic reigned in various cities and villages in the State of Vera Cruz, where the people left their homes and spent the night in the streets.

The damage in Mexico City was limited to cracks in the larger buildings. There were no deaths and none of the inhabitants were injured.

Lack of communication with the other small towns and villages in the theatre of the disturbance makes even approximate estimates of the causalities impossible.

Marine disturbances have occurred off Vera Cruz City and there were some casualties there, although the number is not known, with considerable destruction of property.

Information secured from the Government observatory at Tacubaya show that there were three distinct shocks, the strength of which decentralized the instruments. The first shock, which occurred at 9:40 o'clock on Saturday evening, lasted five minutes. The second, at 10:25 P. M., was very brief, but of terrific intensity, and was accompanied by terrifying subterranean noises. The third shock, at 11:01 o'clock, was not discernible except by the seismograph.

While the Government Observatory has not decided what caused the shocks, reports received from Cordoba, State of Vera Cruz, assert that they were due to the volcano of Orizaba, although the meager dispatches contain nothing regarding a possible eruption or of a volcanic disturbance.

The two huge volcanoes near Mexico City, Popocatepeti and Ixtaccihuatl, have shown no signs of disturbance.

The shocks were felt heavily among the towns along the ridge of the Valley of Mexico, while the capital, which is in the centre of the valley, was not affected severely.

Late reports received here say that the death list in San Juan, Coscomatepec, was augmented as a result of the collapse of the church tower, which crashed in upon the crowds gathered inside the edifice to pray following the first shock.

Vera Cruz City is without water, while the lighting systems at Orizaba and Jalapa are out of commission.

A report from Orizaba says it is believed two trains, one bound for Mexico City and the other for Vera Cruz, were derailed by the shock.

Incomplete press reports indicate that the State of Vera Cruz suffered more than any other section, although seismic disturbances were felt throughout the entire republic.

Advices from Cordoba say that thirty dead have already been accounted for in the village of San Juan Coscomatepec, where many houses were destroyed. There are unconfirmed reports of a similar catastrophe in the village of Huatusco.

At Jalapa, further north, fifty victims of the earthquake have been counted, including numerous dead.

From San Juan Coscomatepec it is reported that the shocks still continued on Sunday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A pronounced earthquake, lasting almost an hour and believed to have been centred in South America approximately 1,800 miles from Washington, was recorded during the night by the Georgetown University Seismological Observatory. The disturbance began at 11:28 o'clock and continued until 12:21 o'clock.

British Railway Workers Reject Government's Wage Offer as Unsatisfactory

LONDON, Jan. 4 (Associated Press).—The Government's offer to the railway men, made public tonight, which conceded considerable advances in wages, was rejected later at mass meetings of the railway men held in the East End of London and at Northampton. The men decided that the offer was unsatisfactory.

The plan of the Government was the same as that unofficially reported last week, except that 60 shillings a week was to be regarded as the average minimum wage for the different grades of workers, some grades being paid as low as 55 shillings and others being paid higher rates. Taking the situation as a whole, the increase offered was 100 per cent. over the pre-war rate. Under the plan, should the cost of living increase before next September, wages would be raised 1 shilling for every 5 per cent. in the rise in prices. After September there would be a sliding scale, varying with the cost of living.

Another important point provided for the creation of a Central Wage Board, five members of which were to represent the Railway Administration and five members the unions to deal with any new questions.

James Henry Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, addressing a mass meeting of the railwaymen at Birmingham today, advised his hearers to accept the Government's terms.

Though the settlement was not all that might be desired, Mr. Thomas said, the men might make a profound mistake in rejecting such an opportunity for establishing the best machinery possible to secure justice and fair play.

The Government's offer was also rejected by the railwaymen of Cardiff and Newcastle.

Hungary Trying to Induce Emigrants to Return

Special inducements in land grants and other privileges are to be offered, it is stated.

NITTI NEGOTIATING WITH JUGOSLAVS

ABOARD PREMIER NITTI'S TRAIN, GENOA, Jan. 3.—Premier Nitti gave me a statement tonight indicating lively interest and expectancy respecting his negotiations with the Jugoslavs for a direct settlement of Adriatic questions. He said:

"I am well disposed to the Jugoslavs, and am very hopeful of reaching an agreement with them. This goodwill is felt by the Italian Government. If the allied and associated powers can give suggestions of moderation to the Jugoslavs, who are a young and excitable people, I am very hopeful of arriving at an agreement.

"I am quite sure that after these questions are settled the Jugoslavs themselves will be attracted toward Italians and their civilization."

ROME, Jan. 4.—Count Sforza, Acting Foreign Minister, and other prominent personages in Italian political life, speaking today with regard to the visit of Premier Nitti to Paris and London, said the discontent toward the Allies shown by Italians during the last two months was merely the passing result of overlong uncertainty in which Italian questions had been kept by the Peace Conference.

"An immense majority of the Italian people," said Count Sforza, "are convinced that the greatest danger for Italy and her future development is the German peril. Nothing is more profoundly desired by the Italians as a whole than a close and sincere understanding among the allied and associated powers. But in order to reach this it is necessary that during these last discussions of still unsolved Italian problems the people here should feel, after heavy sacrifices and losses, that they will not be unjustly treated."

The Giornale d'Italia says it has confirmation of a report that the Marquis Imperiali, Ambassador to Great Britain, and Count Bonin, Ambassador to France, will be put on the retired list. Count Bonin will be succeeded by Signor de Martino, a member of the Italian peace delegation, according to the newspaper, and the Marquis Imperiali will be replaced by Count Carlo Sforza, at present Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

Count Aldovrandi will be appointed Minister to Berlin, to relieve Signor Bordoanro, the Chargé d'Affaires, who will be appointed Minister to Czechoslovakia, the Giornale d'Italia announces.

The newspaper expects these diplomatic changes will occur after Premier Nitti returns from Paris.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Francesco Nitti, the Italian Premier, arrived here at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon from Rome, to take part in conferences in Paris and London with Premiers Clemenceau and Lloyd George, at which it is understood the question of an Adriatic settlement will figure prominently.

Signor Nitti was met at the railway station by Premier Clemenceau and members of the Italian delegation here, headed by Foreign Minister Scialoia.

The Italian Premier declined to talk regarding his mission. He will leave Paris for London at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

ROME, Jan. 3.—The publication in London and Paris of the alleged negotiations which took place between Emperor Charles and the Governments of Great Britain and France through Prince Sixtus of Bourbon as intermediary is causing a good deal of excitement and comment here.

The whole press says it is further evidence of the small consideration in which Italy was held by her allies, especially France, which was ready to make a separate peace with Austria-Hungary without assurance that Italian claims would be granted. What has

KEEP PEOPLE IN VILLAGE

CORK, Jan. 4.—A prolonged battle was fought between police and Sinn Feiners in the village of Carrigtohill, nine miles outside Cork city, last night. For four hours the fight lasted, and there were, it is stated, 300 Sinn Fein volunteers in the attack which was made on the police barracks.

An ex-soldier who resides in the village, which has a population of less than 500, described the whole affair as being similar to going over the top at night in Flanders for an attack on pillboxes.

Within the last few months so frequent have been attacks on police stations in Ireland that special protection has been arranged. Steel plates over half an inch thick have been fixed to doors and windows, which can be drawn back from inside to allow the police to throw bombs and fire rifles in the event of an attack.

On the other hand, precautions had been taken by the raiders against warning being given to the nearest police stations at Middleton, Queenstown and Riverstown. The wires of the telephone and telegraphic systems on all sides of the village had been cut down and posts were stationed along the roads to prevent anybody leaving or entering the town.

Nine policemen who are attached to Carrigtohill station were having supper when an orderly heard a rush toward the door, and the defenses of the station were immediately mounted. Sinn Fein scouts who had attempted to take the barracks by surprise were immediately beaten off, and then a grim battle began.

Owing to the wise precautions taken by the authorities the Sinn Feiners' bullets fell harmlessly off the windows. The fire on both sides was well sustained and rapid. Several times the rebels tried to rush the barracks in frontal attacks, but were every time driven off. Owing to the darkness the police could not take any proper aim, however, and their fire had to be directed by sounds they heard.

Seeing it was impossible to rush the barracks in the open, the Sinn Fein captain, with a number of his men, tried to steal up under cover of the walls, but his manoeuvre was detected and he could not advance.

Meantime the villagers were in a state of excitement. Bullets were whizzing everywhere, and the marvel was that many of the people who came out prompted by curiosity to see what was going on were not killed.

After four hours the police fire began to slacken owing to their ammunition almost running out, and a mining party from the attackers succeeded in getting up under a wall of the house and placing a big charge of dynamite. In a few minutes the explosion took place and 100 Sinn Feiners were on top of them.

The policemen were immediately made prisoners and handcuffed together. Thier rifles, revolvers and all ammunition left were taken from them, besides £80 which was in a box in the barracks. It is also stated that the Sinn Feiners took away a number of official documents. Later the police were liberated.

It is believed that neither side suffered any casualty. At any rate none of the defenders was hit.

Big drafts of military and police were moved into the locality this morning.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—A dispatch from Cork says that the wife and children of the police sergeant in charge were in the stationhouse blown up by Sinn Feiners at Carrigtohill, but that they escaped injury.

Minor attacks on the police barracks occurred Saturday night at Inchgeelagh and South Kilmurry, Ireland. The wires were cut in both instances, but nobody was injured.

BELFAST, Jan. 4.—Twelve masked men held up a taxicab this afternoon at Glen Road, a suburb of Belfast, and compelled the occupants by threats with revolvers to drive them to Hannahstown, three miles away. They were then allowed to return to Belfast.

DUBLIN, Jan. 4.—The first local elections since the beginning of the war will be held all over Ireland on Jan. 15, and remarkable interest is attached to them because they will show how far the Sinn Fein party is holding its own.

Irish local government for a long period has been conducted by popularly elected county, rural and urban District Councils. Their composition is generally a safe guide to the state of feeling in the country, for the opinion of the candidates on the question of self-government is generally the principal factor in the voting.

Formerly the members of the local bodies went out of office by batches, one-third being elected yearly. Now a clean sweep is to be made of all, from the administrators of a whole county to the administrators of the smallest districts.

For the first time the voting will be on a system of proportional representation, known as the single transferrable vote, which gives a chance for the representation of minorities.

Letters Written by Red Courier Captured at Riga Show How Moscow Carried On World Propaganda

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

RIGA, Jan. 3.—I have obtained copies of letters written to Moscow by the captured Russian courier. They establish beyond doubt three important facts:

First, that the man himself was no mere messenger, but a trusted agent, evidently of prominence in Bolshevist circles.

Secondly, that from Moscow a regular courier service is running to the outside world.

Thirdly, that by this means Moscow is enabled to carry on a world propaganda for the achievement of the aim it has never abandoned, namely, the establishment of universal dictatorship of the proletariat and Soviet rule.

The recent German Socialist convention of Leipsic revealed a very great increase of strength in the Independent Socialist Party, who succeeded in getting carried by the convention a resolution declaring their aims to be one with those of the Third Communist Internationale of Moscow—and what that means, as far as America is concerned, is obvious from the document seized on the courier and previously cabled.

Reports from Germany indicate that the Independent Socialists will be the predominant party after the Spring elections—even if they do not have an absolute majority. In other words, the advocates of the Third Communist Internationale will be in supreme control of Russia and have very great weight in Germany. We know the two groups work together and are in constant communication.

While the Allies and the stabler elements in Germany are inactive or indulging in wild-goose chases with Yudenitch or Bermondt, the Internationalists are steadily plugging away with money and propaganda. The Esthonian armistice is an undoubted triumph for them, whatever secret purpose the Esthonians may have in the background. It is announced here today that a Red Cross committee, consisting of four leaders of the Lettish Social Democratic Party, which is very strong, though not represented in the Cabinet, has left Riga for Moscow, "to discuss an exchange of prisoners."

I have already emphasized the political and financial weakness of Poland. Everything points in the same direction, the growing probability of a Red Europe—that is, under the régime of the Third Communist Internationale—from the Urals to the Rhine. And with German brains and German organization, that régime will be a different matter from the present corrupt administration of the Moscow group.

There are still many Germans who not only desire a chance against America and the Allies, but who believe it absolutely necessary if Germany is to exist as a nation. There are still many good soldiers in Germany who may come to see which way the wind is blowing and be ready to try to recover under the Red flag the laurels they lost under the banner of the Kaiser.

The danger is not immediate, but it exists, none the less, and the wheel of destiny moves very swiftly nowadays. If the Allies are going to take action, they must do it soon. Here in the Baltic is the key to the European problem. Already it is slipping from our grasp.

Bolshevist Pledges Manoeuvres to Gain Time, Lansing Tells Senate Committee.

WORLD REVOLT THEIR AIM

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The demoralization, civil war and economic collapse that have been inflicted upon suffering Russia as a result of the exercise of power by the Bolsheviki are clearly emphasized in a memorandum on certain aspects of the movement which Secretary of State Lansing tonight released to the press for publication.

This memorandum, prepared in the Russian division of the State Department from original Russian sources, chiefly from the press utterances of the Bolsheviki themselves, shows that the Bolshevist régime, starting as the rule of a minority, has degenerated into the terrorist rule of a small group which has systematically starved masses of the population to compel submission to their tyranny. World revolution is the aim of the Red leaders, and their own words are quoted to prove that they are ready to make any promises or enter into any arrangements with the intention of treating them as "scraps of paper."

The memorandum was submitted to Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, on Oct. 27, but had been held by that committee in strictest confidence until released by the Secretary of State tonight.

"Since the overthrow of the autocracy in March, 1917," Secretary Lansing wrote to Senator Lodge in his letter transmitting the memorandum, "the Department of State has studied developments in Russia with the sympathy which America has traditionally shown toward all movements for political and social betterment. The study which has been made of the Bolshevist movement, some of the results of which are furnished herewith, shows conclusively that the purpose of the Bolsheviki is to subvert the existing principles of government and society the world over, including those countries in which democratic institutions are already established.

"They have built up a political machine which, by the concentration of power in the hands of a few and the ruthlessness of its methods, suggests

WANTS DAVEY BILL PASSED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The Department of Justice announced today that more than 4,000 warrants had been issued for foreign radicals who had sworn allegiance to the Communist Party of America and the Communist Labor Party, and that its agents would continue their activities until a complete round-up had been made.

This number, it was stated, did not include American citizens, who have joined the parties, and who have been placed under arrest. Tonight the number of foreigners arrested against whom "perfect cases" are said to have been established was increased by ninety-four, bringing the total in this class up to 2,720. Department of Justice officials who gave out these figures said that not more than 50 per cent. of the warrants against foreigners had been served.

It is the hope of the Department of Justice to serve practically all of the warrants before the crusade is dropped. Attorney General Palmer has pledged himself to keep up a continuous campaign during his stay in office. He believes that the backbone of the Communist movement in the United States has been broken in the raids and that the movement can be prevented from again becoming a menace.

American citizens who have been arrested in the raids are being turned over to State authorities with the request that they be prosecuted as anarchists, and these cases are not included in the totals given.

The total of "perfect cases" last night was 2,635. The following arrests had been added to that number up to tonight:

Spokane, 10; Denver, 2; Portland, Ore., 10; Grand Rapids, 16; Jacksonville, Fla., 9; Omaha, 11; Cortland, N. Y., 16; Toledo, 1; Woodlawn, Pa., 2; Pittsburgh, 2; Des Moines, 15.

ELLIS ISLAND OVERCROWDED

Camp Upton or Merritt Likely to be Designated by Secretary Baker.

NEARLY 2,000 PRISONERS

RED LITERATURE SEIZED

Nearly $20,000 Worth of Seditious Documents Taken in Saturday Night's Raids.

As a result of the overcrowded condition at Ellis Island due to the recent raids on Communist headquarters throughout the country it is expected that a former army cantonment will be turned into a concentration camp for Reds now in custody. It was said yesterday that a request would be made in a day or two to Secretary of War Baker that he designate either Camp Upton or Camp Merritt to be used to house Reds.

Small detachments of Reds caught in the great series of raids on Friday night continued to arrive at Ellis Island yesterday. Officials there said last night that 875 men were in charge there. The last delegation to reach the island came from Newark and numbered 131 persons. Just before them came 110 Reds apprehended in the Trenton territory. In addition to the 675 persons already at Ellis Island, Detroit will soon add 500, Chicago 221, Philadelphia 200, Buffalo 136, and Nashua, N. H., 161, making a total of 1,893 Federal prisoners at the island.

As fast as the radicals were debarked from barges yesterday the immigration authorities, working with a reinforced staff of stenographers and clerks, checked them and registered them, each Red being decorated with a numbered tag. Although there was a possibility last night that the special board of inquiry, created to conduct the deportation hearings, would get into action today, Acting Commissioner Byron H. Uhl was of the opinion that further arrivals this morning might defer the hearings until tomorrow.

A strong force of Government agents has been hurriedly dispatched to the Canadian and Mexican borders to head off a rush of Reds seeking evasion of deportation warrants. In addition, reinforcements have been hurried to the Atlantic and Pacific ports of entry to watch for radicals attempting to ship as sailors on outgoing vessels.

Denial was made last night of a report that 201 aliens on Ellis Island planned to seek freedom today on writs of habeas corpus. Charles Recht, named as retained to apply for the legal instruments, said that while some of those detained might seek a way out of deportation, there were many on the island who were willing to go back to Russia at the first opportunity.

Flynn Will Keep Up War.

The fact that there would be no let-up in the war on agitators was made plain by William J. Flynn, Chief of the Department of Justice's Bureau of Investigation. He declared that the round-up would continue everywhere, but declined to say whether there would be any more wholesale raiding.

"We are not anywhere near through with our work," he declared, "and so we are going ahead. We are just resting up now, so that we can tackle the job with renewed vigor."

While Chief Flynn himself would say nothing in the matter, there was a report at his offices that an arrest would be made within a fortnight, by Department of Justice agents, of a person described as of considerable importance. It was said that the person would be arrested either in this city or in Washington.

"The newspapers would give $1,000 to know the name of the man who may be taken into custody," said an agent in discussing the report, "I could not, however, under any circumstances divulge the name of the person who I have heard is to be taken into custody."

United States Secret Service operatives are co-operating with European agencies in fighting a great Bolshevist plot to discredit the currency of the world, especially the moneys of the allied nations, it was ascertained in this city yesterday.

Such a stroke at the world was hinted at by Frank A. Vanderlip several months ago, when in a speech in the Hotel Astor he disclosed that the former Imperial Russian Bureaus of Printing and Engraving, the greatest outside of Washington, were counterfeiting the English pound note, the French franc and the Italian lira. Yesterday's information, however, made known the fact that the Soviet officials have amplified their plans and are striking at American currency as well.

Bolshevist Counterfeit Plot.

For months, it was said, the printing plant at Petrograd and a smaller one at Moscow have been turning out expert counterfeits of paper stock. Lately, continued the information from a Federal source, the Bolsheviki have taken to issuing bogus Liberty bonds. Both the money and the bonds are so well done that practically the only means of detection lies in the duplication of original numbers of issue. It was stated that the counterfeits have already made their appearance in England and in the United States, those caught in this country being traced through Mexican and Swedish channels. Due to the discovery of the plans to cripple the allied currency, Federal officials said yesterday that the Bolshevist scheme so far as it applied to America had been frustrated. It was said that none of the forged Liberty bonds had got into circulation here and that the Secret Service were confident that none could get in, due to safeguards taken at the points of entry.

Summing up the raids and results of Saturday night, when agents of the Lusk Committee followed in the wake of the Federal cleanup, Deputy State Attorney General Samuel A. Berger made this statement.

"On instructions from Senator Lusk given over the long-distance telephone from Cortland, N. Y., search warrants were procured from Chief Magistrate McAdoo for the following persons and places:

"Maximilian Cohen, Bertrand de Wolf, George Ashkenczui, Harry N. Winitsky, Henry Lovejoy, Joseph I. Sugar, John Doe, Richard Roe and James Poe, the last mentioned names being, of course, fictitious, the true names of the persons being unknown, but the persons so designated being editors, managers and directors of the Communist Party publications, which I mention. The publications, including the weekly known as the 'Communist World,' printed at 5 East Third Street; the premises occupied by the Hungarian daily publication called 'Elore,' at 5 East Third Street; the Jewish weekly publication called 'Der Kampf,' printed at 413 Grand Street; the Ukrainian semi-weekly publication called 'Robitnik,' gotten out at 222 Fifth Street, and all books, papers, documents, cards, records, memoranda and written and printed matter.

"The raids were conducted under the direction of Archibald E. Stevenson, myself, Sergeant Degan of the 'Bomb Squad, Chief Investigator Finch and his assistant, Mr. Gregg, State troopers and agents of the Lusk Committee.

$30,000 Worth of Paper Seized.

"The entire current issue of the four papers seized was more than 10,000 pounds. In addition, the books, cards, records and mailing lists as well as the type from which the mailing lists and the newspapers were printed, were also seized, also large quantities of printed and bound books of a revolutionary nature. The estimated cost of the production of the printing seized is substantially more than $20,000.

"The important part of these raids," continued Mr. Berger, "is that they struck at the source of radical propaganda. We also took a large quantity of Lenin's letter to the American workingmen, printed in several languages. In one of the places entered, subcription leaflets were found which were to be used for the raising of a $50,000 fund for a Jewish Communist daily.

"The most important thing found in the raids last night was the place where 'Khleb Y Dolya,' which translated means 'Bread and Freedom,' was printed. This is the anarchist publication distributed by Peter Blanki and Nahm Stepnuk, who were indicted for criminal anarchy and who are now on the Buford. Until last night the authorities had not been able to discover where this paper was printed. At an examination of Francis A. Corbett, head pressman, of 5 East Third Street, held this afternoon, it was ascertained that the publication was printed at 5 East Third Street.

"We also found that the Soviet Bulletin was published at this address. In a small drawer, secreted in an eyeglass case, was found the name of Ludwig C. K. A. Martens and his office telephone number. We also took in the raids two excellent oil paintings—one of Lenin and the other of Trotzky.

"We also discovered that at a national convention in Rochester of the 'Young People's Socialist League,' known as the 'Ypsls,' which bolted from the Socialist Party some time ago, there had been adopted the principle of the manifesto of the Communist Internationale, which is now in session at Moscow.

"We found a letter signed by E. Firth, literary manager of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party, written on a Socialist Party letterhead, expressing his strongest approval of the manifesto and urging its dissemination. The letter was written to a man by the name of O'Brien, who is the Communist organizer in Rochester, and was signed, 'Yours for the revolution.'"

Legion Wants Papers Suppressed.

The New York State Department of the American Legion yesterday announced the unanimous adoption of a resolution offered by Scott Brown of Schenectady, calling upon Congress immediately to suppress radical newspapers. Besides reducing the amount of agitation against the Government, the resolution pointed out, the great amount of white newsprint that might be saved for the use of the patriotic press.

The purposes, and propaganda of the Bolsheviki were disclosed in a statement issued by the Social Democratic League of America, "the organization of loyal Socialists," as it calls itself. The statement was signed by Charles Edward Russell, President, and William English Walling, Secretary.

"The new pro-Soviet movement is best seen," they declared, "not in the relatively insignificant and largely foreign Socialist and Communist Parties or the I. W. W.—so much discussed in the press—but in scores of new organizations with interlocking directorates operating under the cover of subtle pasudo 'liberal' aliases, and supposedly directed to every imaginable reform and humanitarian purpose. Its emissaries, moreover, swarm into every genuine plan, sometimes posing as moderates and others as 'idealists.'"

Dr. Gustav A. Carstensen, rector of Holy Rood Protestant Episcopal Church, Fort Washington Avenue and 179th Street, in a sermon delivered yesterday, assailed the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, who compared the departure of the Buford's cargo of anarchists to the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers and their subsequent trials and tribulations.

"I express but feebly the shame and indignation of all law-abiding and liberty-loving churchmen and Christians," said Dr. Carstensen, "that a duly accredited minister of Christ should so besmirch his cloth and befoul his pulpit. Berkman and Goldman, with their poisonous tongues and blood-guilty hands, are classed by Dr. Grant with Brewster and Bradford of clean hands and pure heart and heroic souls.

"When I am asked how his Bishop tolerates and how his parishioners sustain Dr. Grant, I can only answer that they must speak for themselves. I am only one of a goodly number who are not famous, but who try to remember that 'it is required in stewards that a man be found faithful,' and who protest, in the name of loyalty to God and country, against such recreancy to righteousness and truth. It is of a piece with that ecclesiastical Bolshevism which mutilates the Blessed Sacrament, emasculates the liturgy, gives the Church's blessing to adulterous unions, denies the faith one delivered, perverts the gospel of peace, and makes shipwreck of men's souls."

The report traces the development of the Communist movement in this country in detail, showing that delegates finally managed to organize themselves as the Communist Labor Party on Aug. 31, last. Discussing the situation existing in this country at the time this report was forwarded to Moscow, the Friana report pointed out that "the Communist Party appears at a moment of profound proletarian unrest. There has been strike after strike, developing larger and more aggressive character. There is now a strike of more than 300,000 in the steel industry. There is a revolutionary upsurge in the old unions; the longshoremen of Seattle have just refused to allow munitions for Kolchak and company to be transported. There is a strong sentiment in favor of the Russian Soviet republic."

BUILD UP SHIPPING, IS DANIELS'S PLEA

CITES CASE OF THE ALLIES

Vessels Also Provide Seamen Reserve and Enable Our Traders to Meet Foreign Competition.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels, in the current number of The Bulletin of the Atlantic Coast Shipbuilders' Association, bases a plea for the upbuilding of the American trade fleet on these three reasons:

First—It is an indispensable arm of the naval service in wartime.

Second—It is a training school for seamen.

Third—It enables the United States to take its proper place among the nations of the world in diplomatic and trade relations.

Mr. Daniels writes that it is needless to state that the Allies might have been beaten in the war if it had not been for their merchant marine; points to Germany's naval offensive having been conducted, with the exception of three battles, against the merchant fleet of her foes as evidence that she recognized the importance of a trade fleet, and sought to paralyze her opponents by destroying it, and continues:

"In case of war, the United States cannot be subjected to a defensive campaign which would lay our country open to invasion with resulting devastation. The preventative is to carry on an offensive rather than a defensive campaign. We are not now as strategically safe on account of isolation as we were in years past, when transportation was so much slower.

"This line of defense is being reduced daily. If called upon to act, we must act quickly, and carry a possible war to the strongholds of the enemy. This cannot be done unless our navy is supported by unfailing lines of communication, which must be established by ships of our merchant marine.

"Our army cannot act unless it is transported in ships of our merchant marine. It would be impossible for the United States to maintain in reserve or in commission a fleet of transports sufficient to supply our needs in case of war. We cannot depend upon foreign countries for this assistance."

The Secretary adverts to the assistance lent our army by the merchant ships of the Allies during the war, saying otherwise their arrival in France might have been too late, and proceeds to discuss the need for sudden expansion of the navy personnel in wartime, writing:

"If we maintain an ample merchant marine, seafaring men will be available and we will not be in the predicament we were in at the start of the war, when it was necessary to call men into the navy who had no seafaring experience. The lack of a merchant marine means loss of months of active duty against the enemy while fresh men are being trained for the duties which would be required from them on board."

Considering the need of expansion in the merchant service from another angle, the writer shows how national prosperity is proportional directly to the magnitude of foreign trade, depending upon the ability of manufacturers to place their wares in the hands of foreign consumers without delay and in good condition. This, he asserts, can be accomplished only with American vessels.

"If foreign bottoms are used," he explains, "the trade competitor of a foreign country may, when pressed, institute tactics which will insure delay or complication in delivery, resulting in loss of trade. In seeking out and establishing new fields of trade, we must depend entirely on our ability to carry goods in merchant vessels flying the American flag.

"With the growth of our merchant marine comes the expansion and development of the facilities of our seaports. These facilities must be used by the navy in time of war, as it is impossible to maintain navy yards and other port facilities in times of peace of such magnitude as properly to care for our navy in time of war.

"And further, as a preparation for war, if for no other reason, a merchant marine is necessary. If our possible enemies know that we have an ample and efficient merchant marine, they will not be prone to force a possible issue to the extent that war might result."

PALMER PUSHING WAR ON RADICALS

munists of this country and those leading the Bolshevist movement in Soviet Russia is disclosed in copies of the "Manifesto of the Communist Internationale," adopted at the First Congress of the Communist Internationale, held at Moscow, March 2-6, 1919. This manifesto was issued March 10 and was signed by Charles Rakovsky, N. Lenin, G. Zinoview, Leon Trotsky, and Fritz Platten. It has been printed as a leaflet, which has been given widespread circulation by the Communists in this country. The copy of this manifesto given out by Attorney General Palmer tonight says that the text was "received direct" from Moscow and that the translation was made by Ida Ferguson. The leaflet on which the manifesto was circulated bears this advertisement:

Paralleling the manifesto of the Communist Internationale, as adopted at Moscow, which is the fountainhead of the Communist movements in the United States and other countries, Attorney General Palmer also made public tonight the text of a captured copy of the "Manifesto and Program," its "Constitution," and also its "Report to the Communist Internationale," as adopted and circulated from Chicago by the "Communist Party of America," whose headquarters is given as 1,219 Blue Island Avenue, Chicago.

Discussing Communist Party problems here, the manifesto given out by Attorney General Palmer tonight says, in part:

"The United States is now a world power. It is developing a centralized, autocratic Federal Government, acquiring financial and military reserves for aggression and wars of conquest. Imperialism now consciously dominates the national policy. The war strengthened American capitalism, instead of weakening it as in Europe. But the collapse of capitalism in other countries will play upon and effect events in this country. Strikes are developing, verging on revolutionary action, and in which the suggestion of proletarian dictatorship is apparent. The strike workers try to usurp functions of industry and government, as in the Seattle and Winnipeg general strikes."

Palmer Indorses New Bill.

A bill "defining sedition, the promotion thereof, providing punishment therefor and for other purposes," which was introduced in the House of Representatives on Nov. 19, was today indorsed by Attorney General Palmer as the kind of measure he desired to have enacted to help combat the Red menace.

This bill, according to Mr. Palmer, "has been hailed generally by red-blooded Americans as a measure with teeth in it," and he added: "That is the kind of measure the Department of Justice must have if it is going to stamp out this grave menace of sedition."

The bill to which the Attorney General gives such complete indorsement was introduced by Martin L. Davey, a young Democratic Congressman from Ohio, who has been in Congress little more than a year. It provides for the deportation of aliens convicted of promoting sedition and for the denaturalization and subsequent deportation of any naturalized citizen convicted under the terms of the measure. Any person found guilty of sedition is subject to a fine not exceeding $10,000 and imprisonment not more than twenty years. A person convicted of promoting sedition is subjected to the same fine, and imprisonment not exceeding ten years.

Attorney General Palmer's views on the Davey bill (described in another column) were contained in a statement furnished to the press as follows:

"Several months ago, in appearing before a Senate committee, I made clear the fact that the Department of Justice was unable to proceed properly against seditionists because of a lack of statutory definition of the crime, and I also suggested the kind of a law which I thought would meet the situation.

"Since that time the bill I outlined has been introduced in the House by Representative Davey of Ohio and it now is in the hands of a sub-committee consisting of Representatives Husted of New York, Graham of Pennsylvania and Gard of Ohio. Epitomized, the bill, after properly defining acts of sedition, would provide for a fine of not more than $10,000, or imprisonment of twenty years, or both, for any person guilty of sedition; a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment of not more than ten years, or both, for any person guilty of promoting sedition; for the deportation of any alien convicted of either of the foregoing crimes, and for the denaturalization and subsequent deportation of any naturalized citizen guilty of either or both of these crimes.

"The country's response to the introduction of this measure leaves no excuse for a single moment's unnecessary delay in the passage of it."

The Davy bill defines sedition as follows:

"Whoever, with the intent to levy war against the United States or to cause the change, overthrow, or destruction of the Government or of any of the laws or authority thereof, or to cause the overthrow or destruction of all forms of, law or organized government, or to oppose, prevent, hinder, or delay the execution of any law of the United States or the free performance by the United States Government or any one of its officers, agents, or employes of its or his public duty, commits, or attempts or threatens to commit any act of force against any person or any property, or any act of terrorism, hate, revenge, or injury against the person or property of any officer, agent, or employe of the United States, shall be deemed guilty of sedition, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $10,000, or by imprisonment for a period not exceeding twenty years, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court."

280 MORE IN DETROIT.

Authorities Descend on a Sunday Meeting—900 Now Held.

DETROIT, Jan. 4.—Two hundred and eighty alleged radicals were taken in custody here this afternoon by Department of Justice agents, aided by local police officers, in a second raid on the "House of Masses," known as headquarters of radicals here. Today's raids bring to approximately 900 the number of alleged apostles of direct action rounded up here in the last forty-eight hours.

UNIONS PROTEST RAIDS.

Chicago Federation Suspects Plot Against Organized Labor.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—The Chicago Federation of Labor today adopted two protests against the Federal raids against radicals on Jan. 2. One declared that the raids were "a part of the gigantic plot to destroy organized labor by the employers," citing that among those arrested were officials of a local cigar makers' union whose records were seized.

The other resolution declared that the Federal agents' acts were "repressions" resembling "Czaristic methods in Russia," and "terrorist tactics." "The authorities of the Government are the anarchists," declaimed E. N. Nockels, the Secretary. He charged that the raids had been financed by "a slush fund supplied by the capitalists."

PLOT TO SEIZE BANKS.

Philadelphia Raids Disclose an Organized Revolutionary Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—More documents, seized in Friday's raids, were made public today, showing definitely that more than 55,000 members in this country were planning seizure of banks, railroads and other public utilities and insurrection against City, State and Federal Governments.

The most remarkable document so far brought to light, however, is the "manifesto of the Communist Internationale," signed by Charles Rakovsky, N. Lenin, G. Zinoview, Leon Trotsky, and Fritz-platten, and headed "Text received direct from Moscow, translated by Ida Ferguson."

One man seized is said to be a British subject, and may be deported to England.

the Asiatic despotism of the early Czars."

The memorandum declares that while existing on the accumulated wealth of the country, the Bolshevist regime has brought about a complete economic collapse in Russia with consequent famine and epidemic. "The claim of the Bolsheviki," it says, "that economic isolation is wholly responsible for the economic chaos in Soviet Russia, can not be sustained. The Bolshevist program has not worked and Bolshevism has to its credit no constructive accomplishment.

Aim at World Domination.

The document shows that it is of the very essence of the Bolshevist movement that it is international and not national in character, and that the revolution in Russia is but the first incident in the Bolshevist program "of liberating the proletariat of the world." The document contains extracts from statements by Trotzky and other Soviet leaders showing that the Bolsheviki are playing an international game and that they are aiming directly at the subversion of all Governments, including that of the Government of the United States. This is disclosed by the avowed tactics of their foreign policy.

In submitting this data to the Senate committee, Secretary Lansing makes it plain that the State Department regards all offers of compromise from the Bolsheviki as being merely intended by them to gain time for their program of setting the world on fire with revolution in every country.

"When the Bolsheviki say they want peace," says the document, expressing in conclusion the carefully reached opinion of the department and its Russian experts, "and give assurances that they wish simply to be let alone in order to work out their experiments in Russia, such offers of compromise are, it has been shown, purely tactical."

Surety Growth and Service

It took four years (1880-1884) to get the initial capital, $500,000, of the American Surety Company of New York subscribed.

This was because the public doubted whether a corporation, charging a moderate fee for its risk and service, could successfully compete with the personal bondsman, who risks his fortune for his friend as an accommodation.

In the thirty-five intervening years, this Company has increased its capital to $5,000,000, and its surplus and reserves to more than $5,500,000, after paying reasonable dividends to its stockholders continuously since 1887.

With forty branch offices and over fourteen thousand local representatives, the Company has pushed its organization to practically all cities, towns and villages in the United States.

The personal bondsman is thus being displaced by the large corporate surety, to the advantage of all concerned.

And this movement, which has gained great headway in the United States, is having a similar, though perhaps slower, development throughout the civilized world.

This Company has for several years had subsidiary companies in Canada and Mexico. It has also established a Foreign Department for studying surety conditions in other countries and for arranging for the execution of bonds in such countries when required by our clients here.

Great as have been our accomplishments of the past, our present momentum and management will enable us to do even more in the future, with a corresponding increase in our capacity to serve the public.

Whatever or wherever your bonding requirements, you are invited to bring them to the Company whose security is backed by unencumbered New York real estate worth millions of dollars, and whose service, already covering the North American continent and now becoming world-wide, is backed by thirty-five years' experience.

NEWSPRINT INQUIRY ORDERED BY PALMER

SHORTAGE CAUSES WORRY

Failure of Manufacturers to Live Up to Price Agreements is Now Charged.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Attorney General Palmer announced today that an investigation had been directed of the conditions surrounding the production, distribution, and selling price of newsprint paper. It is possible that action may be taken in the courts if the facts produced warrant such a step.

The activity on the part of the Department of Justice follows a the filing of complaints by at least fifty publishers of newspapers, some of whom alleged that price agreements made by producers were not being met and that a shortage of newsprint paper was causing very great embarrassment.

"On behalf of the publishers of newspapers throughout the United States," read an announcement issued today by the Department of Justice, "Attorney General Palmer, on January 3, 1920, filed an application with the Federal Trade Commission requesting that body to make an investigation of the manner in which the final decree entered in the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York on Nov. 26, 1917, in the case of United States vs. Mead et al., under the Federal anti-trust law, known as the Newsprint Paper Case, has been and is being carried out.

"The investigation under the decree necessarily involves an investigation to ascertain whether the agreements entered into between the Attorney General of the United States, as trustee, and certain manufacturers of newsprint paper has been observed. The agreement was entered into simultaneously with the entry of the decree and provided, among other things, that during the period of the war and three months thereafter the prices and terms of contract for sale of newsprint paper should be fixed and determined by the Federal Trade Commission, subject to review by the Circuit Judge of the Second Circuit.

"The application states that numerous complaints recently made to the Department of Justice in respect of the high prices demanded for newsprint paper and the alleged shortage in the supply thereof present the question whether the final decree and agreement has been complied with."

The Trade Commission is asked to base its investigation on the following questions:

1. Whether the fanufacturers signing the settlement agreement have actually produced the daily tonnage of newsprint paper which they respectively subjected to the terms of the agreement.

2. Whether said manufacturers have offered said tonnage for sale in accordance with the provisions of the agreement.

3. (a) How much of the tonnage manufacturers signing the agreement have sold to jobbers, dealers, or other middlemen, and at what prices; and (b) whether said jobbers, dealers, or other middlemen, in reselling to the so-called small publishers, have observed the maximum commissions fixed by the Federal Trade Commission pursuant to the provisions of the agreement.

It is requested that the Federal Trade Commission transmit to the Attorney General a report in writing embodying its findings and recommendations.

HOSTETTER HEIRESS IN RUNAWAY MATCH

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 4.—Defying parental decrees, Miss Miriam Virginia Hostetter, 18 years old, one of the heirs to the Hostetter millions, eloped yesterday with Malcolm K. Smith of New Haven, and they were married in Toledo, Ohio. News of the runaway marriage was received last night by the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Hostetter, in this city, and the facts were made public today.

The bride will share with her other sister, Miss Helene, and her two brothers, Herbert, Jr., and Frederick, in the Hostetter fortune.

Miss Hostetter is said to have become acquainted with young Smith, who, her friends say, is in moderate circumstances, while attending a girls' school in Westover, Conn., a suburb of New Haven. Smith came to Pittsburgh a short time ago and yesterday the couple took a train for Toledo, where they were married in the afternoon.

MISS SMITH AIDS MEMORIAL.

First Legislative Act of a New York Woman Will be to Introduce Bill.

Miss Marguerite L. Smith, who will make her legislative début at Albany as the first woman elected to the Assembly from this city, announced yesterday that her first official act would be the introduction of a bill to provide for the construction of "Victory Hall" in Pershing Square, the proposed war memorial. Miss Smith said her measure would enable the Victory Hall Association to condemn land, if necessary, and meet some other obstacles in attempting to accomplish the memorial project.

General George W. Wingate, President of the Victory Hall Association, said several important changes had been decided upon in the plans for the memorial.

"We have planned a true memorial hall," said he, "to be erected in the centre of the lower floor. It will be cut out of the living rock and will contain a statue of the American Republic in front, which will be an altar on which a perpetual fire will burn as a symbol of Americanism and an inspiration to generations to come. Near it will be the hall for memorials to our allies. We are also changing the exhibition hall on the street level, so that it can be used either as a mammoth hall or partitioned into small units. The great convention and meeting hall will be on the Park Avenue espianade level, built in the form of an amphitheatre."

It is estimated that the memorial will cost approximately $15,000,000.

Grand Jury Meeting Delayed.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury will not resume its work at the Criminal Courts Building today, a postponement of its session until tomorrow being necessary because of the absence of several members. It was said the members had had no conferences since their adjournment two weeks ago.

Start Palestine Fund Campaign.

A review of present conditions and future possibilities in Palestine was presented last night by Judge Julian W. Mack at a meeting in the Washington Heights Synagogue, held to inaugurate a campaign to raise $10,000,000 as America's quota of the fund to defray the expenses on the Zionists in Palestine. Other speakers were A. H. Fromenson and the Rev. Dr. Max Drob.

MAETERLINCK'S ENGLISH.

Lecture Agent Fears Ohio Audience Will Not Understand Belgian Poet.

James B. Pond, under whose auspices Maurice Maeterlinck has begun delivering a series of lectures, has received word from one of his agents in Toledo, Ohio, that if the Belgian cannot speak English so as to be understood by an audience "you may expect 99 per cent. of the audience to ask for their money back."

"When I met Mr. Maeterlinck in Monte Carlo last Summer he agreed that the lectures would be in English," said Mr. Pond. "As I was making a contract, written in English, for a lecture tour in an English-speaking country, and as Mr. Maeterlinck has known English ever since a boy, it was naturally not entered in the contract what language the lecture would be in."

Efforts to learn yesterday from Mr. Maeterlinck, Mr. Russell and Mr. Pond the plans for the Belgian author's lecture on Thursday night were unavailing.

FOR new ideas in sweaters to be worn at the resorts of the South and California, consult the Sweater Shop. There is a sweater for the yachting enthusiast, a silk and wool ribbed weave with a silk throw scarf. An athletic slip-over sweater of camel's hair affords protection after an early morning plunge. Tennis devotees will find sweaters in loose, light meshes with short kimono sleeves to allow free play for a swift serve. Golf sweaters are heavier in weave and simpler in fashion.

And then, for "picture-sports", there are sweaters draped at the hips, slip-over sweaters with round necks, sleeveless sweaters, sweaters of silk or wool in new weaves, with new decorative treatments. And so, the sweater of many moods becomes a sweater for every mood!

The Quota

Had you thought of any other method that would have raised the millions of men and the billions of dollars or saved the wheat, the sugar or the tin foil?

Suppose you planned any national movement that required individual acquiescence or support—how could you proceed without the quota system?

And as an individual, how can you gauge your opportunities or your duties against any national scheme without the quota?

In mapping out an advertising campaign, a basic quota system will predetermine future policies and expenditures on the one plan that not only avoids waste but stimulates healthy competition.

Advertising space in the Butterick publications is for sale through accredited advertising agencies.

BERGER DENOUNCES LABOR FEDERATION

Wisconsin Socialist Says All That Is Left of the Constitution Is "a Piece of Paper."

ADDRESSES TWO MEETINGS

Congressman Who Was Unseated and Re-elected Says "I Am Still Against the War."

Victor L. Berger, who is under a twenty years' sentence for violation of the espionage law and who was refused a seat in the House of Representatives, made two speeches in New York yesterday. He spoke in the afternoon at the Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth Street, to 1,200 persons, outlining his policies and his trial after the police had threatened to arrest him if he talked.

Last night he addressed a gathering of 500 in the Socialist headquarters at 1,986 Boston Road, the Bronx. He followed his remarks made earlier, except at one point where he said:

"The American Federation of Labor is led by a rotten lot of labor. I know that they are not honest. They don't let the unions strike together. They let the steel strikers get licked, then the coal miners, and I have no doubt that the railroad men will lose if they strike. They don't know that in union there is strength."

At the Manhattan Lyceum were a number of Department of Justice men, and a squad of men under Captain James McAuley of the East Fifth Street Station. Assemblyman Louis Waldman was presiding and Alderman Abraham Beckerman, Algernon Lee, and Oscar Ameringer, one of the associate editors of Berger's Milwaukee newspaper, were in a semi-circular row back of Waldman.

Beckerman was the first speaker, and he said the country was fast becoming imbued with the "spirit of Czarism and Kaiserism." The Alderman, who was sworn in only the day before, referred to Mayor Hylan "and the rest of the autocrats." Then he predicted that Victor Berger would be the next Governor of Wisconsin.

Assemblyman Waldman protested against American troops in Russia. "The world knows that American troops are trying to overthrow the Russian Government," said he. Then he introduced Lee, who denounced Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, Postmaster General Burleson, ex-Attorney General Gregory, Police Commissioner Enright and Mayor Hylan. Enright, said Lee, should devote his time to catching criminals in the city's wave of crime, instead of trying to break up or prevent meetings.

"I want to say that Victor Berger is here," said Assemblyman Waldman, when Lee concluded, "and he is going to speak. One man or a dozen can't stop him." Meanwhile Berger was eating peach shortcake and coffee in a neighboring lunch room.

"I have been informed that the police will not permit Victor Berger to speak here today," continued Waldman. "They say, I am informed, that they will arrest him. If he committed a crime or violated a law prior to speaking here today he should be arrested whether he speaks or not. What right have the police authorities to assume that he is going to commit a crime speaking here? If he is arrested there will be a million American voters to make their protest felt—"

"Yes," came from the back of the hall, "and there's a hundred million good Americans to lick you."

All was excitement. The shouter, a member of the American Legion, was escorted out, full of fight. Then Victor Berger suddenly appeared.

"Our party had been out against the war," he began, "and I stood with my party, and I will stand with my party as long as I live. The International Congress of the Socialist Party in 1864 manifested its opposition to commercial and capitalistic wars."

He added that he would write the same articles and make the same speeches that sent him to jail, just as soon as he got out. He referred to the Secret Service as "a pack of contemptible spies." He characterized the American Legion as "a self-constituted crowd that breaks up meetings." He condemned his conviction, boasted of the number of times he had been indicted, and said: "I am still against the war." He then went on to enumerate the things America lost by the war, one of them being that "the Constitution has become a piece of paper and our liberties lost." He said that all the war had brought the country was the "flu" and the high cost of living. He ended by assuring his auditors that he intended to carry the Socialist flag "either to Congress, the halls of Congress, or to prison."

Berger spoke again without interference last night at a meeting of the Socialist Party at 1,258 Boston Road. Ex-Assemblyman Samuel Orr, who was chairman, jumped to his feet after Berger had finished and shouted:

"If Victor Berger is refused his seat again in Congress, I hope the people of the Fifth District of Wisconsin will say 'No taxation without representation.'"

Tributes Paid to Joffre.

Services were conducted at St. Mark's Church in the Bouwerie, Tenth Street and Second Avenue yesterday in honor of the birthday of General Joffre and the birthday of Joan of Arc. Col. Philippe Bunau-Varilla, who was a Staff Officer with Marshal Potain, paid a tribute to General Joffre. Dr. William Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's Church, spoke on "Joan of Arc as the best evidence we have of the objective reality of the Christian religion."

ITALIANS ROUSED BY CHARLES'S LETTER

particularly hurt Italian susceptibilities is that Charles, without any protest either from France or England, should have counseled the Allies to keep Italy in the dark as to these efforts for peace for fear she would reveal them to Germany.

The Tribuna declares that the documents must be false, otherwise it would be too monstrous to have to believe that the Allies really regarded Italy as being capable of "betrayal, to put it explicitly and not diplomatically." It was only through pressure brought to bear on France by Lloyd George that Italy was made cognizant of the facts at St. Jean de Maurienne, the paper says. Sonnino, then Minister for Foreign Affairs, energetically declared that Italy would never sign a peace which did not assure her the fulfillment of the compact of London.

Many newspapers hint that publication of the Charles-Sixtus letters at this moment may not be entirely due to chance but purposely to create a feeling of distrust among the Allies and make the position of Premier Nitti more difficult than it already is.

ROME, Jan. 4 (Associated Press).—Italy did not send agents to Berne in April or May, 1917, to propose peace to the Austrian Minister to Switzerland, declares General Cadorna, Commander in Chief of the Italian armies at that time.

The General's statement is made in the course of an emphatic denial of assertions contained in a published letter from former Emperor Charles of Austria to his cousin, Prince Sixtus of Bourbon. Italy, according to the letter, was willing to make peace and receive only that part of the Trentino inhabited by Italians.

"The Italian Government," the General says, "would never have availed itself of my services for negotiations of a strictly political character, nor would I have taken the initiative in such an affair without authorization from the Government. It is unnecessary to call attention to the fact that I have always insisted on the absolute necessity of our military frontier reaching Brenner Pass. I, therefore, would never have proposed or accepted a compromise embracing only sections of Trentino peopled by Italians."

ASK NEW JEWISH CONGRESS

Delegates to Philadelphia Body Chafe Under Committee's Delay.

Antagonism toward the Executive Committee of the American Jewish Congress, held in Philadelphia in December, 1918, was voiced yesterday at a meeting of 100 delegates to that body, because of delay in reconvening. The protestants, meeting at the Hotel McAlpin, declared their patience exhausted and that if the committee did not call a convention immediately they would act.

Their chief complaint was that the committee, headed by Louis Marshall, sent by the Congress to the Peace Conference, had not reported.

When Mr. Marshall was told last night of the meeting he said: "It is so silly and childish that I don't care to say anything."

The resolution addopted at yesterday's meeting said that the delegates, believing that there were earnest and pressing problems facing the Congress, were resolved to call upon the officers of the Congress to take immediate steps to reconvene the body on Feb. 22 and that if the Executive Committee decided not to call the convention by that time the Chairman of the meeting should send

THE RESTORATIVE

In his new book, "The Army Behind The Army", E. Alexander Powell, the veteran war correspondent, says:

"The man who sits down to a breakfast consisting of soggy biscuits, poorly prepared coffee, and an omelet that looks and tastes as though it were made of leather, can, when the noon hour comes around, step into CHILDS and restore his balance of digestion by a well cooked meal."

BRYAN ATTEMPTS TO SPEED TREATY

League of Nations. Mr. Taft spoke under the auspices of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences and his remarks were heartily cheered by an audience of nearly 4,000 persons.

"There are forty members of the Senate in favor of the League of Nations without reservations," said Mr. Taft. "There are forty in favor of the League with reservations. There are but fourteen opposed to it with, or without, reservations. Since there are eighty members of the Senate in favor of the League in some form why cannot they get together and after a discussion based on concession and compromise agree on a compromise? The votes of sixty-four senators are required, and it seems to me that we ought to be able to get that number. Our Government is founded on concession and compromise."

SENATORS ANSWER PETITION.

Tell Merchants' Association Their Views on Treaty Agreement.

In response to a petition addressed to President Wilson and the members of the Senate by the Merchants' Association of New York, urging such mutual concessions as will permit of an immediate ratification of the Peace Treaty, leading members of the Senate have expressed their views as to a possible compromise on the treaty. The replies are published today in Greater New York, the bulletin of the Merchants' Association.

Senator Lodge is uncompromising in his stand, taking the position that the majority in the Senate has agreed to certain reservations that "the treaty can be ratified with those reservations, but not without them, and it is for the President to determine whether he is willing to accept them in order that the treaty may be ratified."

Senator Howard Sutherland, Republican, of West Virginia, expresses himself as "in thorough accord with the sentiments expressed in your telegram."

Senator Atlee Pomerene, Democrat, of Ohio, says he is also "in hearty sympathy with your resolution, and have been working to bring about a compromise, and shall vote accordingly."

Senator Josiah O. Wolcott, Democrat, of Delaware, says: "I wish to advise you that I stand ready now, as I have in the past, to support any honest compromise arrangement which would put the treaty through without marring its great features."

Senator Selden P. Spencer, Republican, of Missouri, said he hoped that some plan would be speedily worked out definitely to end the war.

Senator James E. Watson, Republican, of Indiana, said he would vote for the reservations again, but is very anxious to see the treaty ratified.

Senator William M. Calder, Republican, of New York, said that although many of the reservations did not meet with his personal views, he voted for them in the spirit of compromise.

Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, Republican, of Colorado, says he is still willing to vote for the treaty with reservations.

Senator Carroll S. Page, Republican, of Vermont, does not see that anything can be done until "the President recedes from his unyielding position."

Senator Charles S. Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, wires that he has always been ready to vote to reconsider the treaty as soon as railway legislation had been disposed of.

Near Settlement on Scapa Flow.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—The estimates of German floating dock material to be turned over to the Allies under the peace protocol as compensation for the sinking of the German warships at Scapa Flow were further discussed yesterday and progress in the negotiations for the settlement of the amount of tonnage to be delivered is reported to have been made.

Johnson and Borah to Speak.

Invitations are being sent by the Committee of American Business Men for a dinner at the Hotel Astor, Monday, Jan. 19, in honor of the United States Senators who on Nov. 8, 1919, voted for reservations to the League of Nations. Among the speakers will be Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California and Senator William E. Borah of Idaho. The dinner is given under the auspices of the American Business Men's Committee, of which Richard M. Hurd is President, L. F. Loree is Vice President, Jules S. Bache Treasurer, George Henry Payne Secretary.

Income Tax Made Easy

A firm of prominent lawyers have perfected the simplest, quickest and most easily understood method of calculating an income tax so far discovered. It is in the form of a little series of practical questions.

Any person whose time is worth taxing can save money by using it.

The method is embraced in "Made Easy" Questionnaires—No. 1, individual; No. 2, corporation (income tax); No. 3, corporation (excess profit tax). Whether you, your auditor or your attorney make out your returns you'll find that with the "Made Easy" Questionnaire your report can be made out in half the time and the way is made plain on many money saving angles.

RED CROSS TO SPEND $30,000,000 IN 1920

Available Funds Are Divided Nearly Equally Between Work at Home and Abroad.

EASTERN EUROPE NEEDIEST

A Reserve Will Be Held Ready to Use in Russia If That Country Should Be Opened to Intercourse.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Out of a fund of $30,000,000 available for its work this year, the American Red Cross has set aside $15,000,000 for European relief, $13,750,000 for use at home, and $1,250,000 for completing its program in Siberia.

In making public today plans for carrying forward peace time activities, Dr. Livingston Farrand, head of the organization, declared that a considerable reserve must be held for emergency calls. Incident to such possible events as the opening of Russia to intercourse with the United States, this determination, Dr. Farrand said, was reached after long and full consideration with Government representatives in this country and Europe.

All obligations to soldiers, sailors and their families must be provided for, Dr. Farrand reported, while the Red Cross must be ready at the same time to meet relief demand due to disasters.

"We are pledged," he added, "to the establishment of a peace-time program in America, for which $8,750,000 will be made available.

Turning toward the rest of the world, Dr. Farrand declared the organization was confronted by a degree of suffering and helplessness which is infinitely beyond the possibilities of any funds at the disposal of the Red Cross and of all other relief organizations combined adequately to meet. It was the wish of the American people, he added, that as much money as possible should be raised to meet emergencies abroad.

Concerning the general European relief situation, the report said:

"There is a condition of suffering, disease, and helplessness, particularly in eastern Europe, far beyond anything that the resources of the Red Cross and of all other relief agencies could hope to meet. It is certain, however, that this sum, together with the surplus military supplies, partly intrusted to us by the United States Government and partly previously purchased by the Red Cross can, wisely administered, go far to mitigate extreme suffering.

CHICAGO'S HANGING STIRS PENOLOGISTS

Students of Prisons Telegraph Governor Lowden Urging Him to Interfere.

The protest aroused in Chicago by the hanging of a prisoner within sight of 300 other inmates of a prison spread to this city yesterday.

Sheriff David H. Knott of New York County will write letters of protest this morning to both Governor Lowden of Illinois and Sheriff Peters of Cook County. Members of the New York State Commission of Prisons and the New York Prison Association sent a telegram to Governor Lowden last night urging him to call a halt on Sheriff Peters's expressed intention of repeating the performance this week.

Commissioner of Correction James A. Hamilton last night expressed amazement at the action of the Chicago Sheriff, while E. F. Earl, Chairman of the New Jersey State Board of Institutions and Agencies, contrasted with it the treatment in his State.

The following telegram was sent last night:

Jan. 4, 1920.

Governor Frank O. Lowden, Springfield, Ill.

Having spent ten years in practical prison work studying the problem of the criminal may we enter our protests against Sheriff Peters's exhibitions in hanging Durrage before 200 other prisoners, as reported in the public press. It is indirected, offends public dignity, and only harm can come by pursuing such mediaeval practices. Two things may result—lowering the morale of the people or arousing their indignation. His claim that it tends to reform other prisoners is absurd. Quite the reverse is likely to follow. We should know that such barbaric action on his part tends to incite the spirit of mob violence. It is a despotic misuse of power and cannot be too strongly condemned. His statement answering critics is a direct challenge to right-thinking people. We join with many others who deplore such acts and beg you to put an end to these performances. It shocks the nation.

JELLICOE VISITS CAPITAL.

Admiral Arrives as a Guest of the Navy Department.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—As unobtrusively as a private citizen, Viscount Jellicoe of Scapa, Admiral of the British fleet of Jutland fame, arrived here today from New York for a visit to the capital as the guest of the Navy Department. Lord Jellicoe was welcomed by Rear Admiral Niblack, designated by Secretary Daniels as Naval Aid to the distinguished visitor during his stay.

"My word, but that is an imposing pile," the world-famous naval commander exclaimed as the battleship-gray of the Capitol building caught his eye upon emerging to the street. The architectural beauty of the Union Station elicited likewise an expression of admiration.

Tonight the British Admiral and his staff were entertained at dinner at the British Embassy, after an extended afternoon's drive about the city.

THREAT TO KIDNAP COUNCIL MEMBERS

HAVE MAJORITY OF ONE

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—Precautions were taken tonight by the members of the new Council supporting the Moore administration to prevent themselves from being kidnapped while on their way to the City Hall tomorrow morning for the organization of Council and the inauguration of Mayor-elect Moore.

There were rumors today that some of the Moore Councilmen, who control the new body by a majority of one vote, might not appear for the organization tomorrow, and this set the new administration leaders busy arranging for their safe conveyance to the fourth floor of the City Hall tomorrow.

Members of the new Council also made sure that they will not be deprived of their reports to participate in the organization if their certificates of election should be stolen while they are on the road to the city's capitol. A representative of the Moore administration went to the office of the prothonotary on Saturday and obtained a certificate of election for the entire twenty-one Councilmen. The certificate bore the signatures of Judges Audenreid and Ferguson, who conducted the official count.

This certificate was locked in a secure place in the City Hall, where it can be quickly obtained should any of the Councilmen-elect fail to bring his certificate of election to the organization meeting and his right to participate be challenged.

The Council is scheduled to organize at 10 o'clock in room 400, City Hall, the room formerly occupied by the Common Council. At noon in the same room, Mayor-elect Moore will take the oath of office and will deliver his inaugural address.

According to the plans of the Moore forces, Richard Weglin will be elected President of the Council; William H. Felton, chief clerk, and Harry Wittig, sergeant-at-arms. The election of these men will be contested by the Vares, whose slate is composed of Charles B. Hall for President, Arthur R. H. Morrow for chief clerk, Robert McElroy for sergeant-at-arms, and Joseph Marcus for committee clerk.

The Vares have also threatened to start a filibuster when the Moore forces attempt to adopt the rules they have prepared which give the President of Council power to appoint all standing committees and employes.

Accompanied by Mayor Smith, Mayor-elect Moore will enter the Council Chamber at noon. The Rev. Dr. J. Gray Bolton will offer the prayer, and Justice von Moschzisker of the Supreme Court is to administer the oath of office to the new Mayor.

The ten Vare members of the new Council are to hold another caucus at 9:30 o'clock this morning to agree on their slate for Civil Service Commissioners.

Campaign to Clothe Poor Children.

Co-operating with the Board of Education, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children will conduct a campaign for partly worn and outgrown clothing for children from Jan. 12 to 18. Permission has been granted to use Magistrates' courts and police courts as depositories. An average of forty-five children are brought to the society daily, and in rare instances are their clothes fit for use. To reclothe this army of children it has become necessary to call for help. Colonel Ernest K. Coulter will speak on behalf of the children at De Witt Clinton and Wadleigh High Schools on Jan. 9.

PROTEST POLISH MANDATE.

Ukrainians Say Million Here Would Fight for East Galicia.

A million Ukrainians will go from the United States and Canada to fight Poland if the Paris Supreme Council's award of a Polish mandate over Ukrainian East Galicia becomes effective, according to the Rev. Dr. Nicholas Pidhorecki Treasurer of the Ukrainian National Committee, who spoke in the Ukrainian Settlement Auditorium last night at one of 300 protest meetings held throughout the country to oppose the mandate.

Vladimir Lotosky, editor of Svoboda, charged that Polish misrule has ruined East Galicia, that all Ukrainian leaders have been killed or confined in horrible internment camps, and that Red Cross and other relief has been diverted into Polish hands.

The thousands who attended sent telegrams of protest to the State Department, to the Senate, and to a number of foreign ambassadors at Washington.

BANKERS RIDICULE PAISH BOND POOL

"Fantastic," Says Vanderlip of English Economist's $35,000,000,000 Suggestion.

'OBSESSION,' SAYS ANOTHER

Two Billions All America Could Take, Vanderlip Believes—The Problem of Credit.

International bankers who discussed the suggestion made by Sir George Paish, former editor of The British Statist, in an interview on Saturday, regarding an international bond issue of $35,000,000,000 to be guaranteed by the League of Nations, were not inclined to take it seriously.

Frank A. Vanderlip, who has been a leader in preaching the necessity for the extension of liberal credits by Americans for the rebuilding of Europe, said that the proposal was "fantastic." He even suggested that Sir George Paish had been misunderstood.

Bankers connected with two of the greatest international banking houses in this country, who would not permit publication of their names, were even more severe in condemning the proposal. One of them called it an "obsession" and denied that Sir George Paish represented responsible financial opinion in England or on the Continent, pointing to the formal repudiation of him and his idea by the British Treasury Department on Saturday.

"Of course," Mr. Vanderlip said," any idea of any $35,000,000,000 bond issue is fantastic. I hope Sir George Paish recognizes this—in fact I know that he does. He hasn't any thought at all that we in America could do such a bond issue. I think what he had in his mind was that $35,000,000,000 was his estimate of what it would require in time to put Europe back where it was.

"Of course, no such sum is thinkable in the terms of finance at the present time. If we did $2,000,000,000 we would be rendering great service, and that is more than we are likely to do. I think $2,000,000,000 would be quite an effort, with our present expanded credit situation.

"A great many people have had in their minds some sort of an international credit in which all of the nations guaranteed the credits. In the present state of affairs that is probably not possible. I don't think we are going to guarantee any such amount. I think if the League of Nations were in working order, it could take hold of this financial situation to great advantage, but I don't believe it would take hold on any terms that would involve us in such a guarantee on our part. The thing is fantastic, that is all.

"I think it is a misconstruction of what is in his mind. I have talked with him, and I have a very high regard for his sagacity. He understands the situation here. He knows the difficulties, perhaps the insurmonntable difficulties, as to our doing anything on a scale commensurate with the needs of Europe."

RABBI WISE PRAISES WILSON

Contrasts His Work for Peace with That of His Detractors.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, in his address before the Free Synagogue yesterday morning, passed severe strictures upon "the Lippmanns, the Bullitts, and the Steffenses," whom, he said, the President had, "alas, lifted for a moment from obscurity to places of unmerited importance and conspicuousness; insolent creatures who opposed the President because he dared to refuse to accept their ready-made program of liberalism."

This and other criticisms were passed upon those who opposed the ratification of the Peace Treaty, in what the speaker declared was not a sermon, but a "secular address on a subject of vast importance," upon which he had a right to speak as he was in Paris when the Peace Conference was in progress.

Dr. Wise laid stress upon the impression created in Paris that American opinion was represented by the Republican Senate rather than by the President.

in a recent New Republic by Maynard Keynes, representative of the British Exchequer at the Peace Conference, in which President Wilson is characterized as a "dull-minded man with the prepossessions of a Presbyterian minister." Rabbi Wise, in turn, characterized Mr. Keynes as "a British scribbler, who might almost be called, an official English counterpart of our American Bullitt," been blunted because the impression was constantly conveyed to the mind of Europe that this man had ceased to represent America, that while he remained the titular President of the United States, the leadership of the American people and its mind rested with the leaders of the Republican Party, who could be depended upon to overturn his work and to support those who, at the Peace Conference, stood firmly and inflexibly against him.

"No one maintains that the President has never made mistakes; that he has never blundered. . . . think the Peace Commission should have been representative, as it was not, of the genius of both great political parties. I believe that the recent decision of the President touching the railroads is wholly unwise, and I dissent from it utterly and unreservedly.

"No man is called upon to assent to whatever the President says and does under all circumstances, but it is none the less humiliating to be told as I was told within a few days upon two different occasions by men from other lands that throughout their stay in our country they met barely any Americans 'who spoke a good word for their President.' It is not the President who is hurt. It is American dignity and American honor that are trodden under foot."

LAUDS OUR PART IN WAR.

Cardinal Gibbons Now Pleads for Industrial Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4.—Hundreds of citizens, Protestant and Catholic, Jew and gentile, financiers, merchants and laboring men greeted Cardinal Gibbons at his New Year reception today in the Red drawing room of the archepiscopal residence.

In his sermon the Cardinal declared that the brightest page of the history of the great world war would be that on which was inscribed the record of America's action in the cause of justice and right, and of the efforts this country made that liberty might not perish from the earth.

"Thanks be to God," the Cardinal said, "the United States of America has been the good samaritan to the nations of suffering Europe, the good samaritan to bleeding and prostrate Europe, the good samaritan to many, very many, of different races and religions.

"Now, there is a body other than the physical body. It is the social body. We are social beings and the same harmony and practical sympathy should exist among us as among the members of our body. When any part of the social body suffers the other parts should go immediately to its help.

"If that were the case in every Christian community the great problem of capital and labor would be solved, and there would be an end to the acrimony and bitterness between the working classes and those that employ them."

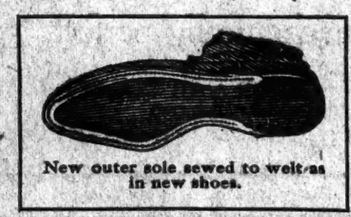
Soles and heels gone.

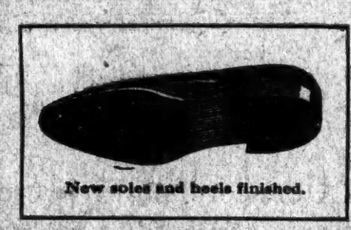
Shoes apparently worn out—but if made with Regal integrity of material and workmanship, uppers and foundations are probably sound.

Worn soles and heels ripped off.

Brand new welt put in. Rebuilding starts over the proper last. If Regal Shoes, the original Regal last is used.



New outer sole sewed to welt as in new shoes.



New soles and heels finished.

How to Cut Down Your Shoe Costs

The Regal Remaking Service Will Help You

First service of its kind in America—Output doubled and re-doubled within a year

If your shoes are Regals—or any other good sound make—they can be rebuilt for another long period of wear and look almost as good as new.

Regal Remaking gives you more value for your shoe money.

For instance, you have a pair of shoes still sound and good, but worn.

Heretofore you have had to choose between buying a new pair and having the old ones "mended"—sacrificing style for the sake of saving—or discarding them altogether, losing a good part of the service you have paid for.

Regal Remaking will reduce your shoe expense by practically doubling your shoe service.

It ensures you all the value you paid for and your shoes come out of the Regal Remaking Department with almost all their original style intact.

It is doing just this service for thousands of people, so many thousands that the capacity of the Regal Remaking Department has had to be doubled and redoubled in the one year since it was started.

Mere "shoe-mending" puts on a sole and heel or a half-sole and stops there.

Regal Remaking makes the shoes almost like new. Expert shoemakers, trained in the Regal Factories, restore their shape over the proper last (the original last if it is a Regal shoe) and bring back their style.

And remember—the cost of Regal Remaking is very moderate. It costs little more than you pay for mere "mending."

3,000 CAR BUILDERS HERE FOR THE SHOWS

Dinner of the Automobile Chamber of Commerce to be Biggest in Its History.

CHASSIS HOLDS HIGH PLACE

Exhibitors Give Much Attention to Showing the Merits of Their Running Gear.

Several hundred motorists from the big Western factories arrived in the city yesterday for the passenger car and motor truck shows which will be in progress this week, the former at the Grand Central Palace and the latter in the Eighth Coast Artillery Armory in the Bronx. The presidents and executive officers from nearly 100 manufacturing firms composing the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce will be here today and the annual dinner of the Chamber tomorrow night at the Hotel Commodore for which about 1,000 reservations have been made will be the largest ever held by that organization. Including the accessory representatives it is estimated that officials from more than 500 firms directly interested in the automobile industry, aggregating more than 3,000 out of town visitors, are registered in the leading hotels, chiefly around Times and Pershing Squares.

Perhaps the most striking feature which characterized the opening of the passenger car exhibition in the Palace on Saturday was the keen interest displayed in the chassis exhibits. Of the eighty-four makers showing complete cars, thirty-eight show stripped chassis. Seventeen of these chassis exhibits are on the main floor, representing the following cars: Buick, Nash, Paige, Hudson, Studebaker, Reo, Maxwell, Willys-Knight, Briscoe, Chalmers, Saxon, Chandler, Oakland, Oldsmobile, Hupmobile, Scripps-Booth and Dort. On the second floor are eleven chassis, being those of the Stearns, Allen, Lexington, Roamer, Mercer, Premier, Elgin, Elcar, Stephens, Kissel and Liberty cars. On the third are ten, being the Commonwealth, Stevens-Duryea, Holmes, Cleveland, American, Stanley, Fergus, Dorris, Kline and Comet.

The Dort chassis on its short 105-inch wheel base makes a particularly attractive display, the frame being finished in rich green. The new four cylinder Saxon chassis is worth noticing and so is the new Briscoe. The Oldsmobile has a fine chassis releasing every detail of its improved eight cylinder motor. The Cole car, one of the eights, has a complete engine on exhibition and its four complete cars have something new in the addition this season of automatic brake adjusters, making periodic adjustment of service brakes unnecessary by automatically absorbing the ordinary wear on the band.

The exhibition of small and large motor commercial vehicles at the armory in the Bronx is a thoroughly businesslike show, demonstrating more than any former similar exhibition in the East, the rapid progress made in motor transportation. One of the outstanding features in the new and most of the old-time makes is the advance in good brake equipment. There are several new types of brakes on new designs of axles, one having brake drums or rims, twenty-eight inches in diameter, with a six-inch face, which is unusually large.

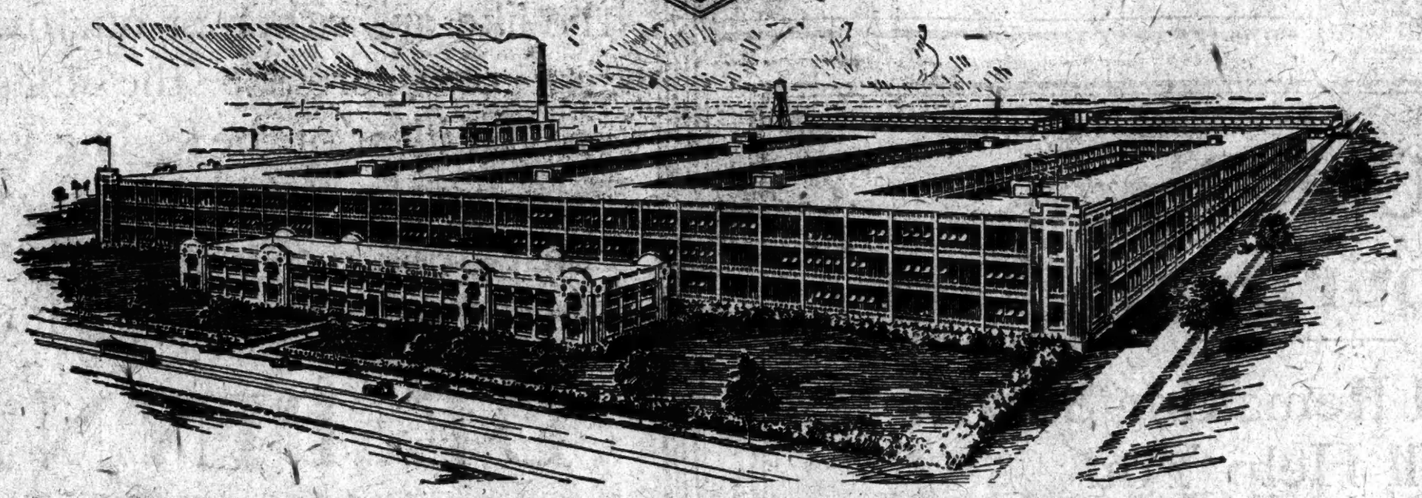
ESSEX MOTOR CARS



Do You Know That Hudson Builds the Essex?

But Through Sheer Merit Alone Essex Made Its Thirty Million Dollar Sales Record

Come See the Essex Special Show in Our Salesrooms

Not to be Exhibited at the Automobile Show

Essex success has not been accidental. No one doubts its right to the position it holds.

On the Cincinnati Speedway a stock chassis Essex set the world 50-hour endurance mark, of 3037 miles, under American Automobile Association supervision. Another stock Essex holds the unequalled 24-hour road mark of 1061 miles.

But how many know why Essex in its first year revealed qualities more mature, more evident of the influence of long experience, than is commonly found in cars even in their third and fourth year.

You will recall the Essex was announced one year ago without one word as to the identity of its builders. Not a claim was made for its performance.

You were asked to go look at it, take a ride and form your own opinion. The Essex, we said, would have to speak for itself.

Now that it has established itself, we reveal why Essex has all the qualities of cars of long development.

Was Designed by Hudson Engineers

They conceived it as they developed the Super-Six. All they learned about endurance, they incorporated in the Essex.

They gave to the Essex the power that has made it famous in all quarters. Its speed is the result of what had been learned in making the Super-Six winner of all worth while speed records.

The Essex can never be all that the Super-Six is for they are totally different types.

But the Essex does bring quality and performance to a class field that was unknown.

The former owners of large costly cars that have adopted the Essex have not been Hudson users. They have come from other cars, cars that fall short of the Super-Six in all particulars save size and cost.

The Essex appeals to such users because of its nimbleness. They like the way its performance compares with that of the Super-Six. You can see this on every hand. The two cars in any community that are most prominent because of their performance ability are the Hudson Super-Six and the Essex.

Essex Did Not Need Hudson's Endorsement

Think of the advantages Essex has had. What ordinarily would have required years to perfect was made possible in the very first model.

That is why 20,000 are now running, why more than $30,000,000.00 was paid for Essex cars in ten months.

You have not needed the Hudson endorsement to understand Essex performance.

Essex has won its own way. Hudson gave it full benefit of the experience of its engineers and the ability of its manufacturing organization. Its name was not needed.

Now Hudson takes the same pride in acknowledging its kinship to Essex that a father might in speaking of his son who on his own account had made good.

RE-TELL GREAT STORY THROUGH MUSIC AND DRAMATIC ART

Malcolm James MacLeod, pastor of the Collegiate Church, says: "'The Wayfarer' is simply an attempt to re-tell a great story through the medium of music and literature and dramatic art. It is the story of how a poor despairing soul is led into the Light of Faith by one who is able to interpret the presence of the Living Christ in the World. It is thoroughly biblical from beginning to end.

"Its hymns are the great creations of the Church—Stabat Mater, The Palms, The Hallelujah Chorus. And it is pre-eminently a reverent conception; there is nothing cheap or sensational in the whole performance. Nowhere is there any attempt to portray the Christ. I would like if every member of my own church and every scholar in our Sunday schools could see this great and thrilling pageant."

GIRL SCOUTS TO AID TAKING OF CENSUS

In Khaki Uniform, Will Accompany Enumerators in Districts Populated by Aliens.

TO EXPLAIN AWAY FEARS

Girl Scouts in khaki uniform will accompany many of the census takers in Manhattan this morning to aid them, particularly in foreign districts where the girls are known and the enumerators are not, and where many of the scouts can explain in a variety of alien tongues the purpose of the canvass.

On the east side it is hoped the girls will help to allay the groundless fears which embarrassed some of the enumerators, since they can make it understood that while questions must be answered truthfully under the law, the information is kept secret and only its statistical results are published, and that every employe of the census is forbidden by law to disclose anything he learns.

District supervisors said yesterday that recent activities against the "Reds" are not retarding the census materially, since even persons who fear the census is part of the deportation drive against anarchists and others are persuaded to answer the questions after patient explanation of their purpose.

Arthur G. Dore, Brooklyn supervisor, told of amusing experiences of his enumerators. During the intense cold of Saturday, one man telephoned that the ink had frozen in his fountain pen and hence operations were at a standstill. He asked if it would be all right to mix a little alcohol with the ink and, assured that it would be, promptly demanded:

"Now, tell me where to get the alcohol!"

Another enumerator reported he was unable to count noses in eight houses because their occupants were marooned owing to the breaking of a bridge across a little creek which separated them from the "mainland." While Mr. Dore was debating which of the municipal departments to call upon for emergency repairs, the man telephoned again:

"Never mind, the creek's frozen over now and I've been across and back."

One census taker was helplessly puzzled when four tenants in the same house all insisted upon being recorded as the owner of the premises. He gave it up finally and the count of home owners in the United States is going to be one short instead of three over.

HARRIMAN NATIONAL BANK

Fifth Avenue and 44th Street

NEW YORK

Past, Present and Future

Interesting and perhaps not without profit is the perusal at this time of the prophecies of a year ago. They were as diversified as they were numerous, but those who took the optimistic view of the outlook for the year just closed, and the Harriman National Bank was among this number, were justified, as events have proven.

We asked our customers not to confuse the usual post-holiday, January inventory period of trade dulness with conditions due strictly to post-war readjustment and reconstruction. Stocks of merchandise all over the country at that time were low, as we pointed out, the result of which has been, of course, a year of high prices and consequent prosperity. Stocks are still low, consumption in excess of production.

Moreover, we pointed out that there was a demand for goods which we believed would strengthen; so it was and still is, but the limit is of course nearer by a year. Buyers then were inclined to wait for reduction in prices. While they waited, consumption continued and prices kept up. This is also a current condition. The Harriman National Bank believes, however, the peak is visible, even if but dimly for the moment.

To prophesy is thankless. We still and shall always require to learn by experience. Nevertheless, the Harriman National Bank does not hesitate to predict a continuation of trade activity and consequent prosperity, but at the same time we would have our customers keep their wits awake to such conditions as may come when domestic demand for goods is satisfied, and European demand is still pending.

Stewart quality wins world fame

The Stewart Motor Corporation, in seven years, has taken rank among the world's leaders in truck building. An astounding growth—an industrial achievement.

Last year the world paid over $9,000,000 for Stewart trucks and wanted more. This year, in a vast new plant, Stewart production will probably exceed $16,000,000.

Phenomenal? Yes, but inevitable.

For Stewart design eliminates hundreds of really needless parts, not only saving $200 to $300 in first cost, but producing a stronger truck, simpler to operate and more economical as to gasoline, oil, tire and repair costs.

Stewart owners are not merely pleased with the truck's every day performance, they are enthusiastic. Hundreds of firms that began with one truck are now operating large fleets of Stewarts.

The Stewart problem has always been how to build trucks fast enough to supply the demand. But the great plant below has more than doubled facilities for producing Stewart quality trucks.

Thousands of Stewarts are more than paying their daily way in over 600 American cities, on hundreds of farms, and in twenty-seven foreign countries.

The Stewart reputation for money-saving service has circled the globe. Stewarts are largely used in England, Denmark, Sweden, Belgium, Russia, China, India, Siam, Africa, Australia, New Zealand, South America, and many other lands.

Stewart exhibits this month at all the important motor shows, offer a rare opportunity to convince your self that the Stewart is America's greatest truck value.

UNCLE SAM'S SHIPPING WORRIES.

The muckrakers gnawed a file in their attacks on Government shipbuilding during the war. There was waste on a great scale, but that was of no consequence compared with smashing the Hun, and there was a net credit over debits in the demonstration that we could build ships on the greatest scale and of the best quality whenever expense was no object. The expenses of construction are met once for all, however great, and can be stopped. With operation it is different. That is waste through a faucet which cannot be closed, and on a scale large enough to exhaust the richest Treasury the world ever saw, meaning our own. No Government can operate shipping without distress when, during a single month, twenty-one of its ships leave a leading port of France cargoless. The more the ships the greater the loss under such conditions, because other ships found cargoes where ours found none.

The captains of the empty freighters say that cargoes were diverted from them by the greater efficiency of the freight agents of other nations. That was only a contributory cause. The chief cause was the unbalanced condition of our foreign trade, which makes it impossible for American ships, private or Government owned and operated, to find homeward cargoes. Our chief competitor is England, whose ships sail loaded both ways. Even under present abnormal conditions the dispatches say that within the last few weeks England's trade has approached a balance, being unbalanced on any considerable scale only 'th the United States. The total of our imports is not enough to fill the ships which carry away our exports, and until now it has been our policy to favor such conditions. Foreign buyers sent their own freighters and took away their goods at their own cost, more cheaply than we could deliver them. Mr. HILL used to say that he was not interested in Atlantic shipping or in railway freights beyond Chicago, because the goods changed hands there and he could not control the ocean shipments. It was different on the Pacific, and he put on that ocean the greatest ships it ever bore, only to have them driven off by legislation, which now makes our Government ships unprofitable on the Atlantic also, unless our policy is changed.

The Government is offering for sale thirty enemy ships. It will be interesting to see whether the Government can sell them on its terms. Only Americans are allowed to buy, but they are likely to be as shy of the costs of conditioning the ships as the Government, which is selling for that reason. The ships must be operated on the routes designated by the Shipping Board and in competition with vessels not under our "dry" laws. That is important because several of the ships are world's favorites among passengers. Chairman PAYNE is resolved to take the Government out of the commercial shipping trade, but he draws the line at selling to his competitors. Perhaps he will find it necessary to sacrifice either the ships or the policy of scuttle out of the business. Here again it will be interesting to remark if Congress will direct him to continue operation for a completer demonstration that ships can be operated by the Government better than railways. Taxpayers, aghast at the railway deficit, would lose all hope if it were found repeated with shipping.

The worries in the domestic trade are as the foreign. Hitherto the operations of Government ships have been checked in their activities because it was impracticable during conditions of war. Also, expenses were not the object, and the profits and losses of the ships were for the risk of the Shipping Board. Recently auditors have been set at work, and it is said that something like a hundred millions of credits have been found. Of even greater interest locally is the operation for the account of the board of vessels plying from Southern ports to South America. In co-operation with the railways they have received the same rates as from New York. Hitherto it has been necessary to allow them differentials if their inferior facilities were to be used at all. New York used to do over half of the total foreign trade of the nation, but in the year when the growth of foreign trade was fabulous this port fell to 45 per cent., with promise of greater loss when the equal freight rates shall have been in force for more than a month. New York will not complain of equality of rates if there is equality for all, in both ships and rates, but discrimination at its expense by Government arrangement will bear a good deal of watching. It is worth passing mention that Government shipping lost some millions—it is said a score or two—during the shipping strike.

REDS BY THE THOUSAND.

If some or any of us, impatient for the swift confusion of the Reds, have ever questioned the alacrity, resolute will, and fruitful, intelligent vigor of the Department of Justice in hunting down those enemies of the United States, the questioners and the doubters have now cause to approve and applaud. The agents of the department have planned with shrewdness and a large wisdom, and carried out with extraordinary success, the nabbing of nearly four thousand radicals, Communists and Communist Laborites, differentiated by name alone, all working for the destruction of the Government of the United States, and the establishing in its place of the Soviet State that has brought so much happiness and prosperity to Russia.

These energumens of proletarian autocracy and the knocking in the head of the "bourgeoisie"—which Americans are—have been gathered from many towns and cities. All over the country these devisers of social and economic ruin were found; and this "raid" is only a beginning. It is to be followed by others. Without notice and without interruption the department will pursue and seize the conspirators against our Government. Some 60,000 Bolshevists' names are recorded in the department. Its future activities should be far-reaching and beneficent.

It deserves praise for its work. These Communists are continuing here the pernicious labors of LENIN and TROTZKY. Some of them are making mischief, or trying to make it, in certain American labor organizations. One of their principles and hopes is agitation among the negroes, regarded as victims of "economic bondage" and material for proletarian propaganda. These Communists are a pernicious gang. In many languages they are denouncing the blockade of Russia and doing the bidding of their brother Reds in Russia.

The more of these dangerous anarchists are arrested, the more of them are sent back to Europe, the better for the United States. Let us hope that the Department of Labor will have no compassion for such of them as deserve deportation and are not, as most of them are not, American citizens.

RAILWAY PROFITS.

Senator LA FOLLETTE argued a few days ago that the railways needed no help because they were earning a profit, and better results were to be expected. Now comes the Director General, who explains that worse results are sure, and why. The obscure reason hidden from the Senate when it was instructed by Senator LA FOLLETTE was the coal strike. The Director General says that it not only interrupted trade, but that it made unprofitable work for the railways in distributing coal in costly ways. Ordinarily Kansas supplies itself with coal, but during the strike it had to be supplied from Pennsylvania. The effect is not limited to the life of the strike, which is now over. The Bureau of Railway Economics gives the figures for November. They sufficiently explain why the Director General prepared the public for something shocking in December and later. In November the gross was but little less than for last year, and was nearly $150,000,000 above the average for November in the standard rental. But the expenses and taxes increased $213,000,000, and the month's deficit was about $64,500,000. The deficit for eleven months of 1919 was $331,000,000, and for twenty-three months of Government operation $548,000,000.

These are useful figures just when Congress is fixing the conditions on which the roads will be returned to private operation and is receiving prophecies based on past performances from distinguished but untrustworthy sources. The months in which the Senate was told that the roads were earning a profit were the best months of the year, and there is a seasonal variation in monthly earnings between forty-eight millions and ninety-four millions, using an average made from the years of the standard return. The average month, of course, is better than the worst month. To claim a profit in the best months by comparing them with the poor months, or even with an average month, comes close to deception if the facts are known, as they must, or at least should, be known to those instructing others.

The Senate receives also other statements about the railways which will mislead it if relied upon. Thus the Senate is told what the increase of rates will come to if the railways are to be self-supporting, and that the country cannot stand it. The figures cannot be so wrong as the use made of them. Rates should be compared with expenses, not with rates, to find what is necessary to make costs and expenses equal. But no consideration is paid to the alternative of not making the railways solvent and efficient. That loss will surely be greater than any increase of rates, and the rates will be juster and more easily borne than the taxes, which is the only other way of preventing the collapse of the railways, and of trade with them. It is not necessary to disagree with those who dislike the situation, but it is a fact which will not yield to scolding nor to mistakes about it. The one best thing about Government operation is that it has taught that responsibility goes with power. It will be an enormous gain if the Interstate Commerce Commission has come to see that the country has rejected its theories that regulation means reduction of rates, without responsibility for the general situation. It is not clear what powers will be given to the Commission, but it is sure that it will have some power, perhaps greater power. If the sense of responsibility increases correspondingly, and a new perception of the necessity of practical procedure is born out of the miscarriage of theory, then the new status of the railways and that of the Commission will be bettered together.

THE SOVIETS AND ITALY.

The Bolshevist peace offensive is now turned toward Italy. Resumption of relations is suggested, with the observation that the prospective capture by the Red armies of the Black Sea ports will "open the Black Sea route to Italy." Mr. TCHITCHERIN probably expects no immediate results from this proposal, but he doubtless hopes for some ultimate profit for his Government, if not for Italy. The pressure of the Bolshevistic Socialists in Italy lately compelled Mr. NITTI to announce that Italy would take no part in fighting Russian Bolshevism. This group will undoubtedly be excited by TCHITCHERIN'S proposal and will do its best to constrain the Government to acceptance.

Of course, the "opening of the Black Sea route" would be of no consequence if the Bosporus and Dardanelles were held, or blockaded, by Powers which are still at war with LENIN. But the Bolsheviki hope that this consideration will drive a wedge between Italy and her allies. Italian sentiment is roused against England and France because of the Adriatic dispute; if wheat and coal from Southern Russia destined to Italian ports were stopped by an Anglo-French blockade of the Dardanelles, strong economic interest would reinforce nationalist sensitiveness. It is no accident that the Socialists in the Italian Chamber, by faith and confession internationalists and convinced that all international wars are capitalistic affairs in which the proletariat has no interest, should have been the most industrious wavers of the bloody shirt in the debates over Fiume, and should have raised the horrid spectre of "the menace of Jugoslav militarism." Anything that separates Italy from France, England, and America is a useful instrument in the hands of LENIN.

Nevertheless, the Italian Socialists are the best reason why the Italian Government will refuse to negotiate formal peace with Bolshevist Russia. Peace with LENIN would mean increased prestige for Italian Bolshevism and a flood of alien agitators if free intercourse between Russia and Italy were made possible. The advantages of co-operation with the Western Powers are so great that no Italian Government is likely deliberately to pursue a contradictory course on a matter of this sort. For the time Italy's policy toward Bolshevist Russia will be neither peace nor war.

The question remains as to the effect of all this on Italian socialism. Most of the Italian Socialist leaders are downright Bolsheviki, but by no means all who voted the Socialist ticket belong in that classification. There are more Bolsheviki than in England or France or America, but not very many by comparison with the masses of the people. Some of the pristine ebullience of the newly elected Socialist Deputies has already subsided; some of them are already showing a responsiveness to those sections of their supporters which are willing to mortgage their millennial hopes for some immediate benefits. Mr. NITTI'S internal policy, so far, has been remarkably successful; he has balanced extreme elements against each other with the result of bringing much of the strength of both outside wings appreciably nearer the centre. In political tactics he is steadily outmanoeuvring his Bolshevist opponents.

The likelihood that there will be an appeal from political tactics to revolution grows less every day. The Socialists elected 30 per cent. of the Chamber in an election when nearly all the Socialists voted and only a minority of those who think otherwise. It is a commonplace that Italian history is the history of Italian cities, and in the cities is the strength of Bolshevist socialism; but the country can vote and fight, and it will do both if it sees the nation seriously menaced. A Soviet Government in Rome is about as much of a dream as a Soviet Government in Paris or London.

PEACE WITH THE TURK.

While the Turkish peace delegation is on its way to Paris prepared to talk about minority guarantees and cultural autonomy, MUSTAPHA KEMAL is massing an army to drive the Greeks out of Aidin and Smyrna. The Western world ought to realize that his army is a horde of Turanians whose capacity for acquiring the essentials of civilization remains to be proved, and whose total incapacity for ruling their betters has been demonstrated by centuries of history, and that it is trying to recover for the Turk the birthplace of European culture, once more after hundreds of years held by a progressive European race. On a minor scale it is a repetition of the enterprises of ATTILA and TAMERLANE.

Yet the four officers of the Inter-allied Commission came to the conclusion that the Greek army of occupation ought to be replaced by a smaller force of allied troops. Quite possibly MUSTAPHA KEMAL would refrain from attacking British, French, and Italian forces; but they would not stay in Smyrna and Aidin forever, and ultimately the district must be either Turkish or Greek. The Commission said that the occupation of last Spring was unnecessary because "fears of "the massacre of Christians were not "justified." Many thousands of Greeks had been massacred in Western Anatolia in the last five years, and perhaps this made the Greeks somewhat less ready to believe the Turks and their friends than were men whose relatives and friends were in no danger. But whatever may have been the case in the past, the Commission gives its opinion that "the Turkish national sentiment, "which has already manifested its "opposition thereto, will never accept "this annexation. Nor will it ever "peacefully submit before a military "expedition, which Greece alone could "not carry out with any chance of "success." The Commission's report, by the way, has not yet been submitted to Parliament.

That is to say, the Ionian coast must be left to the Turk unless somebody cares enough about it to fight. The identical argument, of course, could have been applied to any other Turkish conquest; the Turks would still be at the gates of Vienna if Europe had been afraid of "Turkish national sentiment." Nor was the argument that the Germans "would never accept this annexation" much heard in the discussion of Alsace-Lorraine.

That the Turks will fight is probably true, though it might not have been true if the Allies had acted promptly after the armistice. When the military men of the Commission say that Greece alone is not strong enough to hold the Vilayet of Aidin they are expressing a professional opinion worthy of respect, but the Greeks seem to be willing to try to hold it alone, and it is hard to see why the rest of the world should be unwilling to let them try. In the question of Western Anatolia there are only two sides, the Turkish and the Greek. One or the other must rule in Smyrna. Those who prefer the Turk, with a thousand years of Turkish history and three thousand years of Greek history before their eyes, ought to be able to furnish somewhat better arguments than the wishes of the Turks themselves and the inconvenience of subduing them.

LET US KNOW CENTRAL PARK.

Most New Yorkers know that Central Park stands high among the world's masterpieces in landscape architecture and that it has given the names of OLMSTED and VAUX an immortality in their art; they are vaguely aware that the Park is perennially exposed to the niggardliness or the incompetence or perversity of city administrations. But how many, even among those who use it most and love it best, have any real understanding of the beauties that have made its fame?

In his letter to THE TIMES Mr. W. B. VAN INGEN speaks of "an extensive open view across the Sixty-"fifth Street transverse road," and quotes a statement of the architects that "owing to the rocky and heterogeneous nature of the surface" it "involved much more labor and a "larger expenditure than any other "landscape feature." Yet, as Mr. VAN INGEN records, trees that would eventually destroy the view were twice planted and twice removed, only to be placed there a third time, where they now stand, threatening one of the greatest beauties of the Park with obliteration. How many New Yorkers have a mental image of that view, or, if it were wiped out, would be aware of the loss?

Abundant materials are still extant for an account of the ideas and intentions of the artists who created the Park. In reply to a series of questions put by the original board, OLMSTED and VAUX gave written opinions which "contain a wealth of information, ex-"planning in detail the original de-"scription and plan of the design." In reports drawn up with regard to other parks upon which they were engaged, they make frequent and illuminating reference to their masterpiece. A son of Mr. OLMSTED and a son and daughter of Mr. VAUX have a wealth of reminiscences and documents of great value. Another treasure store is in extant letters written by the architects to each other. These are but a few of the known sources; and, as Mr. VAN INGEN says, "a pub-"lic appeal would probably unearth "much that is known to individuals "least suspected of such knowledge."

In another decade or two many of those who knew OLMSTED and VAUX will no longer be with us, and many precious documents will be scattered and lost. The need is obvious and pressing for a book which will explain to the general reader the nature and beauties of the original design, and which will also record for future landscape architects all existing technical information. One of the gravest dangers of the Park lies in "the personal "hobbies and freaks, ambitions and "weaknesses" of occasional Commissioners who are appointed for political reasons. In the past mistaken projects have been largely corrected by men who knew the designs of the architects and spoke with personal authority—though not before losses had been incurred that aggregated hundreds of thousands. In a future all too near neither their knowledge nor their authority will be available. Economy and the conservation of a great civic art treasure alike demand the preparation of a monograph upon the Park.

Such a book would afford the basis for much-needed instruction in the public schools. Thousands of children yearly find health and recreation in the Park and yet grow to maturity with no real knowledge of its beauty. If the requisite information were at hand, any competent teacher could impart it casually and incidentally. As the generations pass there will be no real safety for the Park except in authoritative knowledge and in an enlightened public opinion. No generation that has even the most elementary knowledge of our greatest civic art treasure will ever permit its desecration. "Flowers are the delight "of those who live in the senses, "rocks and trees of those who live in "the imagination." Our Park has an abundance of all the beauties of nature, set off with the skill of the landscape gardener's skill. But if the enjoyment of them is to be permanent it must also be intelligent.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

It Looks Like a Mistake.

Being decidedly interesting as a personality, and a man of not inconsiderable literary achievements, MAURICE MAETERLINCK'S first lecture in this country naturally attracted many people who were eager or glad to see and hear him. That he, knowing how imperfect is his command of English, should have been willing to be seen and heard in this particular way is not quite so easy to understand, but even that problem probably could be solved if a determined effort to do it were made, and the distinguished Belgian is only one of a long line of foreigners to come over here recently on an errand that nobody possibly could regard as anything except innocent.

Some of M. MAETERLINCK'S many admirers cannot help feeling that it would have been as well if now, as in the past, he had addressed the public only from the printed page or through the actors of his plays, for really the memory of him struggling hopelessly with a language he does not know somewhat dims and distorts other impressions created when he used the media of which he is an acknowledged master.

He cannot claim, or rather others cannot claim for him, that thus he reaches a larger audience. Not only is his entire literary output already available to the readers of French, but practically all of it exists in English translations of such notable excellence that of them, as of few other translations, it can truly be said that they have every merit of the original and no faults of which the original is free. Therein is M. MAETERLINCK exceptionally fortunate, and, as a poet, he is perhaps unique.

Explaining Ancient Sorcery.

As for the subject on which M. MAETERLINCK has chosen to lecture, it is one newly and differently interesting to many people just now, according to report, and from a not unimportant standpoint it therefore can be called well selected. Of course, nothing he has to say on that subject can convince anybody not already convinced, and even those who hear his "evidences" with a sympathetic ear must be—well, call it startled, when he speaks in apparent seriousness of "odic effluvia" that explain why witches, by burning or sticking pins into a waxen image, can cause similar annoyances to the person represented by the maltreated doll. That is indeed a venerable belief, if age and wideness of acceptance in the past earn veneration, but its presentation now by a man known to be educated and supposed to be sane is just a little trying to those who found such a haunting charm in the plays that first gave M. MAETERLINCK his international fame and still are remembered gratefully by all appreciators of the delicate and the precious.

There are limits to the credulity and to the patience even of those who see something of the mystical in the evolutions of the ouija board, and to pass those limits, as do the conclusions contained in our visitor's "explanation" of the blackest of black magic, has in it an element of danger. It might, for the first time, cause people to laugh at him—the cruelest of all fates for a man of his eminence. If he doesn't know why the burning or stabbing of waxen images sometimes served the witch's malignant ends, an hour's reading in almost any good library will give him a much better theory of the phenomenon than that of "odic effluvia."

His Fear Easy to Calm.

According to the Acting Commissioner of Immigration, the great raid on the Communists should not have been made at this time. Mr. UHL, as everybody knows, has no sympathy with "Reds" or "rednecs," and he does not object to the profession of them in itself; what troubles him is that the facilities of his little insular domain are already overtaxed by prisoners awaiting deportation, and the sudden addition of hundreds more excites his fear that he cannot give them proper care.

Mr. UHL should know best what Ellis Island can and cannot provide in the way of temporary accommodations suitable for would-be overturners of the American Government and eager for the robbing and enslavement of all who believe in it. But he says that his anxieties are about the serving of their food, not about the providing of quarters. If that is the sum of his trouble, he should be calm. In mere consistency the Communists should be quite willing to serve one another, or at any rate themselves, and to have their housekeeping done for them by the hireling minions of capital they certainly would not expect or demand.

Cooks and waiters, it seems, are lacking, not provisions, but if, from inability or disinclination to cook and wait in their own behalf, such gentry as these went hungry, it would be, of course, a deplorable calamity, but the country could stand it for a while at least with an approach to the calm resignation that is so beautiful when displayed in the presence of the inevitable. Should the situation become really desperate, Mr. UHL can call confidently for help on the Boudoir Bolsheviki whose affection for these martyrs has been expressed so often. They would expect no pay either as waiters or as chambermaids for the persecuted comrades, and so all his difficulties would vanish.

FOR TRADE WITH BRITAIN.

A Chamber of Commerce Organized to Promote Business.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The seas of humanity are in turmoil, the currents of international commerce and finance are subverted and turned from their normal channels. It should be the inspired duty of all honorable men and of all high principled institutions to bend their whole energy and to use their whole endeavor to the end that once again the fair trade winds of understanding and agreement may smooth the tempestuous waters that rage around us.

The war made the allied nations comrades on the field of battle. Let peace be crowned by a continuance of such comradeship, and the splendid sacrifice of those that died for us, will not have been in vain, and we may proudly and reverently walk between the rows of crosses that cover the poppy fields of Flanders prepared to hold high the torch sacredly intrusted to our hands.

The heart of every nation, be it a republic or a monarchy, must beat to the pulse of patriotism, but the lifeblood which flows to the extremities of the body politic is commerce, not national, but international; stop this and the veins and arteries will become hardened and the limbs atrophied.

Institutions which make for the better and clearer understanding between nations of their respective trade usages and methods are most powerful instruments for the promotion and preserving of international accord. American Chambers of Commerce in London and Paris and other European capitals have for many years efficiently aided the nations in which they are domiciled. The rapidly increasing interest of American producers and manufacturers in export matters and foreign commerce generally would indicate the urgent necessity of the establishment of foreign Chambers of Commerce in the United States, these institutions affording to all interested expert and authoritative advice on all questions belonging to the trade conditions of the countries they represent.

There has been recently incorporated in New York the British Chamber of Commerce in the United States. The chief purpose of this Chamber, as described in its charter, is to facilitate trade between the United States and the British Empire.

The British Chamber has taken offices at 295 Broadway, until more adequate quarters can be obtained. All inquiries as to the scope of the work to be undertaken by the Chamber or as to qualifications for membership are most cordially invited.

A. WALPOLE CRAIGIE,
New York, Dec. 30, 1919.

Colonel Robins.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of Dec. 29, Mr. W. P. Merrill rushes to the defense of Colonel Robins's loyalty and tells of one instance where the Colonel made "the strongest, most brilliant and most fervent defense of American institutions that he [Merrill] had ever heard." Don't doubt it. Colonel Robins can always be relied upon to make a "fervent" speech whenever occasion requires.

But Colonel Robins, like every one else, must be judged by his acts, rather than by his words. And his acts while in Russia as head of the Red Cross Society show that he favored the Bolshevist murderers during the whole time that he was there. Lenin and Trotsky thought so much of him that they wanted him for American Ambassador in place of Governor Francis. Robins knew that the Bolshevist peace with Germany might imperil the success of the Allies, including his own country, yet he sided with Lenin and Trotsky to the very last.

Such conduct cannot be palliated by "fervent" speeches on Americanism. The war period was the time to show one's Americanism, and Colonel Robins showed his Americanism in such a way as to make Republicans ashamed to have him selected for any responsible position in the party of Lincoln and Roosevelt. W. H. ALLEN.
Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 29, 1919.

TRANSFORMATION.

Love, we have dipped Life's humble bread
Into the stars' flame-bubbling springs;
We've knelt before the Moon's white face,
While 'round us whirred Night's purple wings.

Love, we have trod the floors of Morn,
And watched Dawn's reeling galleons die;
The sunset's panoramic hills
Love, we have known them, you and I.

Upon the battlements of Time
We stood and heard Life's thunders roar;
A million ticking years that swelled
To crashing notes of millions more.

Our hearts have germinated sweet
To beauty through each golden hour;
But now the bloom-time days are past,
The stalk is fading with the flower.

And we shall seek earth's simple things:
A root-tree small, a green-thatched fire—
Come, Love, and lay your cherished dreams
Beneath the touch of my desire.

We could not climb the Infinite,
The jagged heights were steep and long;
For us child-wistfulness and sleep—
Old twilight memories and song.

Love, is it here that we shall wend,
Down homelit paths, grown gently wise?
Perhaps our eyes, made glad of earth,
Shall find the Key to Paradise.

PRIZE OFFER TO END SLUMS

Commission Announces Scheme to Improve 400,000 Homes.

Prizes aggregating $6,000 have been offered by Vincent Astor, Alfred E. Marling, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and the New York Foundation in a competition having for its purpose the ultimate destruction of all the slums in New York City. The New York State Reconstruction Commission announced yesterday that this means had been taken of stimulating the architects and builders of the city to devise means to remove the conditions which had been revealed in the survey of the congested quarters conducted by the commission last Spring. The competition has been made possible by the co-operation of the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, of which Senator Charles C. Lockwood is Chairman.

According to Clarence S. Stein, Secretary of the Housing Committee of the Reconstruction Commission, there are more than 400,000 apartments in "old-law" tenements, the dwelling places of 2,000,000 New Yorkers, which are not fit to be called homes. The building of 400,000 homes would be a colossal task at a time when new walls were never so expensive. The problem is to use the old shell and make it into a well-planned, sanitary, light place, fit for habitation. Large-scale plans have been drawn of a characteristic block on the lower east side, showing every wall, door, window, plumbing fixture, court shaft and yard. The competitors are to make drawings showing how this block may be altered to bring it up to present day standards.

A primary condition of the contest is that such alterations must be commercially possible. The contestants must prove to the landlords that the rebuilt houses will more than repay the cost of repairs in decreased number of vacancies and the returns which will be paid willingly for better accommodations.

According to the statistics gathered by the commission between February, 1909, and March, 1919, there were 58,552 "old-law" tenements torn down. At this rate, it would take a hundred years before they would all disappear. Of 982,026 apartments in New York City in 1919, more than half, or 567,861, were "old-law" tenements erected before the law of 1901 was passed, thus placing 60 per cent. of the apartments of the city in a class below the standard fixed nineteen years ago.

The competition committee will consist of Burt L. Fenner, Robert Kohn, Andrew Thomas and Mr. Stein. The Judges will include the members of the competition committee and Frank Mann, Tenement House Commissioner; Alfred E. Marling, Senator Charles C. Lockwood, Senator John J. Dunnigan, Alexander M. Bing and Allan Robinson. There will be eleven prizes, including two firsts of equal value.

OPPOSES CRAIG AS BUILDER

Citizens Union Says Borough President Should Construct Court House.

The refusal of the Board of Estimate at its last meeting in December to submit the plans for building the new County Court House to the Municipal Art Commission and its designation of Controller Craig to proceed with the actual work of construction are criticised in the forthcoming issue of the Searchlight, the official organ of the Citizens' Union. Commenting on what was done at the December meeting of the board, the last which was completely Democratic, the article says:

"It is gratifying, of course, to have the building of the Court House finally under way. But the board was extremely unwise in declining to submit the new plans to the Municipal Art Commission and in designating the Controller as the board's committee to proceed with the actual work of construction. The latter is in conflict with the clear spirit, if not the precise letter, of the law. The city charter makes the Controller the auditing officer of the city government, empowered to audit and inspect the accounts of all city officers.

"The former Court House Board, like the city departments, was subject in its disbursements to this oversight by the Finance Department. Under the present plan the spending and the auditing officer will be the same. The principle of that is essentially bad. It could have been avoided if, as would have been the natural procedure, the President of the Borough of Manhattan had been delegated to construct the building. The difference in politics between him and most of his colleagues on the board should not have entered into the matter."

OHIO UNIVERSITY ALUMNI.

Organization of Graduates In and About New York Effected.

The first formal gathering of the alumni of Ohio University, Athens, Ohio, took place on Saturday evening, when a dinner was held at the Aldine Club, Twenty-third Street and Fifth Avenue.

A brief history of the institution was given by Professor C. M. Martsolff of the class of 1907. He told how Manasseh Cutler in 1787 appeared before the Continental Congress in New York and obtained a grant for "a university to be founded beyond the Alleghanies." "Thus," said Professor Martsolff, "our college became the first child of the United States Government."

Dr. Albert Leonard, Superintendent of Schools in New Rochelle, Professor Charles F. Scott of Yale, the Rev. Elmer A. Dent, H. T. Sudduth, Ellis A. Ballard of Philadelphia, and others spoke. Miss Anna P. McVay presided.

Poems appropriate to the occasion were read, and the dinner closed with a business meeting, at which the Ohio University Alumni Association of New York and vicinity was formed. Major C. B. Humphrey was elected President and Miss Rose Herrold Secretary.

PADEREWSKI NOT DEPOSED.

Polish Premier Retired Because His Part in Patriotic Work Was Done.

Dr. George Barthel, Acting Consul General of Poland, yesterday denied that the resignation of Ignace Jan Paderewski as Premier of Poland was forced.

"The resignation of Mr. Paderewski came as a result of conditions which required a coalition Government, in which Mr. Paderewski had a guiding hand," said Dr. Barthel. "His successor, Leopold Skulski, is his friend, and took office at Mr. Paderewski's suggestion. Mr. Paderewski realized that his work was done and that his capacity as did not permit him to undertake further conduct of Polish affairs at that time had come for Poland to appoint a Parliamentary Cabinet. Mr. Paderewski is exhausted, and he as well as his co-workers knew that his health demanded the rest he is taking in Switzerland.

"General Pilsudski, the President, has been chief of State and the policies he inaugurated are being carried out with out change. Mr. Skulski, successor to Mr. Paderewski, was formerly Mayor of Lods and a famous engineer and parliamentarian. Mr. Patek, the Foreign Minister, was formerly Minister to Bohemia. W. Grabski, Minister of Finance, is the best known agrarian economist in Poland, and Mr. Wojciechowski, Minister of the Interior, is an expert in co-operative societies, of which there are 5000 in Poland with 800,000 members."

MANNING ASSAILS AMERICAN 'REDS'

WANTS NAMES PUBLISHED

Asks What Influence Shields Them —Former President Example of Patriotism.

Emphasizing the need of the sort of Americanism exemplified by Theodore Roosevelt, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, in his address at a service in memory of the former President held yesterday afternoon in Trinity Church, called upon those in authority to make public the names of Americans who were seeking to implant the Soviet form of government in the United States. If the Government imprisoned and deported the foreign agitator, it followed that his American accomplice should not be permitted to proceed without rebuke, Dr. Manning maintained.

"It is certainly right that foreign agitators whose purpose it is to burn down our house over our heads should at least be taken under control and sent back to the countries from which they came," he said. "But what of the Americans, the men and women with American names and antecedents who give these avowed enemies of our country their countenances, their sympathy and their moral and financial support?

"Who is responsible for the fact that it has not appeared? In the name of American fairness, and in justice to all, that list of names should be published in full, no matter what names it may include, or else some satisfactory reason should be given for its being withheld."

The service was held under the auspices of the American Defense Society. Every available foot of space was taken by admirers and friends of the former President. Members of the Roosevelt family present were Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson and Theodore Roosevelt, 3d, young son of Colonel Roosevelt.

Message of Roosevelt's Life.

Declaring that the message of Theodore Roosevelt's life was a call for Americans to take a stand for their country and do their share as fearless, vigorous American Christians, Dr. Manning told the duties which such a stand imposed.

"If we are true Americans our own country must have first place in our hearts," he said. "We must love and serve our own land as we love and serve no other. This is our duty, not merely on grounds of safety or self-interest, but because this principle alone is sound and true, and on this principle alone can life and civilization be built. There is a cult of internationalism which poses as high thought and which teaches that we must have no special love for our own country but must love all countries equally. This doctrine is not high thought. In some cases it is maudlin sentimentality; in others it is apparently thinly disguised. The teaching is fundamentally unsound and untrue. A man who does not love his own country more than he loves any other country is he more to be trusted and followed than a man who has no special love for his own wife and his own home. It is a significant fact that those who are trying to destroy loyalty to country are trying also to destroy the home and the marriage tie.

"God has set us in families and in nations. If we are to be of any service to the world at all, we must first be faithful in the primary relations of life—loyal to friends and home and country. We know what the example of Theodore Roosevelt was in this matter.

Duty of Americans.

"As true Americans it is our duty to deal firmly and fully with those who, having come here of their own accord, are plotting insolently to overthrow our free Government and to replace it by the system of Sovietism, the most brutal tyranny the world has yet known, a system which proclaims itself the enemy of democracy, of liberty, and of God. If our course toward Russia had been less apathetic and inconsistent, if we had shown more sympathy with the Russian people in their struggle against this monstrous form of oppression, its menace to the world would be less serious than it is now. We seem now to be taking some steps to deal with this menace in our own land."

During the service, Henry Quinby, Secretary of the American Defense Society, read Roosevelt's last letter to the society, written the night before he died, a year ago tomorrow. In this letter Roosevelt declared there could be no divided allegiance.

The Committee on Arrangements appointed by the American Defense Society included Dr. David Jayne Hill, Frederic R. Coudert, Cleveland H. Dodge, Senator William A. Clark, Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, Frank E. Wiborg, William Guggenheim, Cleveland Moffett, John R. Rathom, Colonel Howard S. Borden, E. H. Outerbridge, George W. Burleigh, Otto M. Eidlitz, Dr. William T. Hornaday, Madison Grant, Charles Stewart Davison, George W. Wickersham, Alfred Charlton Wessman, Major George Haven Putnam, Bartlett Arkell, Robert Appleton, Henry C. Silver, and Charles H. Sabin.

Dr. Butler to Talk on Roosevelt.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia will deliver the principal address at the Roosevelt memorial meeting at Carnegie Hall tonight under the auspices of the Roosevelt Memorial Association and the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association, in commemoration of the first anniversary of Colonel Roosevelt's death. Other speakers on the program are Arthur Woods, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Austin, Texas, and Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Colonel Roosevelt's sister. Bishop Burch will deliver the invocation, Rabbi Schulman will read from the Psalms, and Archbishop Hayes will pronounce the benediction.

NAVY CLUB IN NEW HOME.

Starts $700,000 Campaign on Moving Into 13-15 East 41st Street.

The Navy Club will move today from its rented quarters at 509 Fifth Avenue to its newly acquired home, 13-15 East Forty-first Street, which was purchased for $260,000. Today also marks the opening of the Navy Club's campaign to raise $700,000. Prominent men and women have enlisted in the cause. The new buildings have sleeping accommodations for 250 enlisted men.

THINKS HIGH PRICES WILL STAY FOR YEARS

Credit to Europe Will Cause Further Increase, Says Royal Meeker.

WOULD CHANGE WEIGHT UNIT

Recommends Substitution of Monetary Unit of Value—Asserts Drop Would Increase Suffering.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—No prospect of any considerable fall in prices for several years is seen by Royal Meeker, Commissioner of Labor Statistics and head of the bureau which collects information on the trend of prices for Government use. He recommends a monetary unit of value to replace the present units of weight.

"People generally are yearning so intently ofr lower prices that they have not thought much about the results of falling prices," Mr. Meeker said. "The prices we kicked about in 1913 have come to be regarded as ideal. Untold distress has been caused by the rapid price increases of the last four years. The sufferings already endured by the people through rising prices will be multiplied tenfold if prices drop within the next seven years to the 1913 level. A period of falling prices is always a time of business depression, failures and unemployment."

"The normal, seasonal drop in prices may be expected in 1920," Mr. Meeker continued. "In normal times, the low price level for all commodities combined comes in March, April or May. These seasonal price changes are relatively small and will have but little effect upon the housewives' expenditures. No great and sudden fall in prices seems possible for a long time.

"I Am Sorry"

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER.

How often have you said: "I am sorry I did not attend to this yesterday."

Yet, yesterday is gone, today is now and tomorrow may never come.

"The first chance I have I shall come to The Funeral Church and select my casket," said a man in my presence to Mr. Frank E. Campbell, proprietor. "I have made a will; I have purchased a plot in the Cemetery; I have my house in order."

"Why not now?" asked Mr. Campbell.

"I am too busy today," answered the gentleman, smilingly.

He never came to complete his arrangements, for a heart-attack took him away quite suddenly.

Regrets are of no value unless they lead to greater care in the future.

"I am sorry," is a confession of weakness; the strong know no regrets.

"Shallow men believe in luck and circumstance," said Bishop Hall; "strong men believe in cause and effect."

The strong faces the world smilingly. The enlightened lives today, so that the morrow may not have any sorrows.

"True greatness is to take common things of life and walk bravely among them."

To select your last resting place and the house wherein you will lie is to do a wise and prudent thing; it is one of the "common things of life."

Do it today.

FAITH—in action

America owns a high confidence in the manhood of her men of action that must forever distinguish her among the nations of the earth.

Yet—when Milton J. Budlong of New York pledged himself to pay millions of dollars for a product he had never seen, he did the unprecedented thing. And when Herbert M. Allison of Chicago followed his lead, the deep faith that is America's was doubly manifested.

By such men as these two sterling and successful distributors of quality automobiles will the Lincoln product be sold in the cities of America. Our representatives are being selected from among a great host of applications from business men of wide experience, clear vision and fine integrity.

Soon—when the great Lincoln plant in Detroit is ready for full production—will Henry M. Leland, Wilfred C. Leland and their associates make important announcements to the public—inspired by the high confidence that has been placed in them.

BARNES PLANS TO JOIN GOLFERS FROM THIS SIDE WHO WILL SEEK 1920 BRITISH OPEN TITLE

JIM BARNES WANTS GOLFING BERTH HERE

St. Louis Pro May Fill One of Four Vacancies in Eastern Clubs.

WILL ENTER BRITISH OPEN

Hopes to Play for English Title in Spring—Suggests Changes for National Open Tourney.

Coming at the beginning of one of the busiest weeks of the off season for golf was the announcement, authorized last night by the Professional Golfers' Association, that Jim Barnes was likely to join hands with an Eastern club, probably a club in the New York district, this season. Long Jim, who has been spending the holidays along Broadway for two weeks, is expecting to return today to St. Louis, where he is the pro instructor at the Sunset Hills Club, but before his departure he spread around enough golfing topics hereabout to cast an advance shadow even on the annual meeting of the U. S. G. A., which is scheduled for Friday night of this week.

In addition to declaring to several cronies that he hankered for a berth in this neighborhood for the 1920 season, Barnes announced that he hoped to go abroad in the Spring and enter the British open championship. Such a trip, which Long Jim insisted would be made if he is able to arrange several business affairs in the meantime, would seem to point to only one conclusion. He wants to show the Britishers, as well as the golfers in this country, that he is Walter Hagen's superior. For several weeks it has been commonly understood that Hagen, the national open champion, is planning a trip to England in the Spring, following the North and South open championship at Pinehurst on March 20 and 30. Hagen has given up his job at Detroit to enter the bond business, but before his golfing begins to decline he wants one try at the British title. The unexpected announcement that Jim Barnes, too, expects to compete against Braid, Vardon, Taylor, Mitchell, Duncan and others will be hailed with delight by his thousands of followers, who insist without qualification that, although he did not win the national open, he is nevertheless a better golfer than Hagen.

Four Clubs Have Vacancies.

One of the purposes of the Professional Golfers' Association of America is to obtain berths for its members, and it was pointed out that at least four big Eastern clubs, three of them in the New York metropolitan district, had vacancies for 1920, and that Barnes was keeping his keen, gray eyes on them.

Baltusrol, over in Jersey, is without a professional as a result of the resignation of George Low, and the report two weeks ago that Bob Macdonald had taken the job was denied strongly last night by P. G. A. officials. The St. Andrew's links in Westchester County, where Elijah Horton was located last season, also is looking for a new professional, as is the Blind Brook Club, the home last year of Arthur Reid, brother of Wilfred Reid, the Wilmington (Del.) golfer, possible rival for Jim Barnes in Chevy Chase, near Washington, where Bob White was the instructor last year. Barnes has been at sunset Hills only one year, having been at Colorado Springs in 1918, and at Whitemarsh, Philadelphia, the season before.

Jim also had considerable to report about the new proposal the professional golfers have made to some of the voting clubs of the U. S. G. A. It is to change the rules for the national open championship so that there will be a qualifying day. Barnes holds that qualifying is one thing and tournament play quite a different kind of golf, and that the qualifying total should not be run in with the championship score. His suggestions are especially important, because Barnes stands today as one of the three best golfers in the United States and the favorite for this year's open title.

Toledo Is Preferred.

Within another week the site for the 1920 championship tournaments will have been decided, and it was learned yesterday that professional golfers are almost unanimous in their preference for Inverness at Toledo, Ohio. Even Jim Barnes, whose own home club at Sunset Hills has been mentioned as a possibility, is strongly in favor of the Ohio links. An open championship for the national title that never been held in Ohio, and the success with which Inverness conducted the Ohio open tourney in 1919 gives assurance that the Toledoans would handle a greater golf series satisfactorily. When the P. G. A. sent to the U. S. G. A. its list of six eligible clubs for the 1920 open, there was a strong sentiment for Toledo, and it has developed greatly since.

The five other favored sites were Oak Park, Flossmoor, Indian Hill, and Midlothian, all in Illinois and the Detroit Country Club. The national open is due to go to the West this season.

Barnes's plan to play in the British open adds especial interest to the endeavors of golfers on both sides of the Atlantic to make 1920 a really big year for international competition. Others from this country who plan to play in British tournaments are Hagen, J. Douglas Edgar, and Tommy McNamara in the open; Bobby Jones in the amateur, and Miss Alexa Stirling in the British women's. And in exchange, it is practically assured that at least Abe Mitchell and George Duncan will represent the English pros in the national open in this country. The dates for both the British and the United States open are being picked with the view to having no conflicts, and allowing golfers from both countries to make the trips in ample time.

NEW YORK BEATS ERIE A. A.

Climbs Nearer Soccer Title by 2 to 1 Victory Over Newarkers.

New York moved closer to the national soccer championship than this city has been in a long time, when the eleven of the New York Football Club eliminated the dangerous team of the Erie Athletic Association of Newark by a score of 2 goals to 1 at Olympic Field, this city, and qualified for the fourth round of the United States Football Association's annual cup tie. The field was in splendid condition and two fine teams played to a capacity crowd, despite the freezing weather. The game was practically a repetition of their first encounter, for, after ninety minutes of play, the score was even at 1-1. Extra periods of 15 minutes each way were required to settle the question of supremacy and Edwards of New York shot the winning goal right after the opening of the first of these periods.

The lineup:

NEW YORK (2).		ERIE A. A. (1).
Porter	G.	Ward
Kelly	R. B.	Ford
Gilfillan	L. B.	Post
Duffy	R. H.	Ingram
Fell	C. H.	Rogers
Feirle	L. H.	Tait
Fitzsimmons	O. R.	Knowles
Hunsiker	I. R.	Stark
Edwards	C.	Keelsch
Bisten	I. L.	Kelly
Sweeney	O. L.	Brierley

Goals—Kelly, Edwards, Brierley.
Referee—J. C. Schofield, Bristol. Linesmen—T. Cunningham, Brooklyn, and Flat Birchall, Jersey City. Time of halves—Forty-five minutes, and extra periods of fifteen minutes each way.

The Astoria Football Club gained two more points in the championship series of the Metropolitan Football League yesterday, by defeating the soccer eleven of the Woodside A. C. by 5 goals to 0, at Woodside, L. I. Although two men short, the home team held its opponents to a single goal in the first half, McCrickett scoring just before ends were changed. In the second period, McCrickett notched another and Stahl, Allen and Osores each one.

BRITISH SOCCER RESULTS.

Chelsea's Defeat of Manchester United Furnishes Surprise.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—A full program of soccer games was decided in the principal English leagues yesterday, and many surprises resulted. West Bromwich Albion scored at Blackburn by trouncing the famous Rovers, 5 to 1, and increasing their fine record at the top of the first division table. The runner-up, Burnley, drew its game with Aston Villa and Chelsea brought off the big surprise of the day by beating the Manchester United by 2 to 0.

A sensation was caused in Southern League circles by Southend United's defeat of the leaders, Portsmouth, by 1 to 0, which enabled Crystal Palace to get within one point of the top through beating Northampton, 1 to 0.

WALDRON HANDBALL VICTOR

Defeats Soss by Close Score in Opening of Metropolitan Tourney.

A three-game match, the only one of the day, enlivened the opening day's play in the Metropolitan A. A. U singles championship handball tournament yesterday on the four-wall court of the Annunciation A. C., 555 West 129th Street. A. Waldron and H. Soss, members of the City A. C., were the opponents in the extra-game match, which ended with Waldron the winner by scores of 17—21, 21—16, 21—8. This developed the closest play in a series of seven matches contested in the first round.

Another close struggle was furnished when John Badinelli, Annunciation A. C., triumphed over Murray Vernon, New York A. C., in straight games at 21—13, 21—12. This was more keenly contested than the scores would indicate, but Badinelli's familiarity with the court was a helpful factor in the rallies which eventually brought victory to the Annunciation player.

This knowledge of the court also figured prominently in the victories of two other Annunciation Club players, and gave the home club representatives three victories in as many matches against rival club players. In another match two Annunciation members clashed. Some of the competitors, unaccustomed to the four-wall court, found it impossible to play up to form.

The prestige of the Badinelli family was upheld also by A. Badinelli, who defeated R. J. Liptay, Bronxdale A. C., in the opening match. Badinelli took the first game by the overwhelming margin of 21 to 1, as the players left the court, under the impression that the tournament would be governed by single game victories. When reminded that the play was best two in three games, and ordered back to the court, Liptay conceded defeat by defaulting the second game.

The summaries:

First Round—A. Badinelli, Annunciation A. C., defeated R. J. Liptay, Bronxdale A. C., 21—1; 21—0, (default); S. McMahon, Annunciation A. C., defeated J. Duane, St. John's Club, 21—7, 21—9; Cyril Reich, Annunciation A. C., defeated J. Reicher, Mohawk A. C., 21—3, 21—6; J. Badinelli, Annunciation A. C., defeated Murray Vernon, New York A. C., 21—13, 21—12; A. Waldron, City A. C., defeated H. Soss, City A. C., 17—21, 21—16, 21—8; William A. Adams, Pastime A. C., defeated Frank Bulin, St. John's Club, 21—4, 21—9; Cyril Reich, Annunciation A. C., defeated James Weakley, Annunciation A. C., 21—12, 21—10.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

Football Amid the Roses.

The trip of the Harvard football team to Pasadena, with its resultant triumph over Oregon on New Year's Day, has unquestionably brought closer together the East and West in football. In other years teams have made the long jaunt to the Pacific Coast to engage in competition with leaders among the Far Western division, but no intersectional game of years attracted the attention of this Harvard-Oregon affair.

The game was a big event in California, a huge success financially, despite the attendant expense, and there is every indication that such battles, which have been experiments up to this time, may be classed as fixtures in future years. The idea of those who arrange the Tournament of Roses gridiron contest is to bring together annually the best team obtainable in the East to do battle with the best of the Far West. Such invitations have been declined at times in the past because college authorities did not agree on the expediency of such long tours for a football team, but happily that idea is fading annually, and it is probable that in a few years there will be real effort to qualify for the honor of representing the East in the Pasadena tournament.

In the big game of last week Eastern football gained an advantage over that of the Far West. Oregon and Washington tied for championship honors of the Coast section, so it can be said that the East faced about the best that could be found as an opponent. On the other hand, this section was not represented by the strongest team possible. At least four college teams of the Atlantic section showed to better advantage than Harvard in the season recently ended, and some others showed equally well. Hence it was a case of the West's best bowing to an opponent that held no such high place in the East. For that reason the victory was all the more gratifying to Eastern followers, who are anxious to see a keen and healthy rivalry spring up sectionally in football.

There remains now an opening for some such fixture in this section, with a strong Western eleven competing against a recognized leader of the East. An earlier date would be necessary, since the weather conditions are not favorable for football on New Year's Day in the East. The first Saturday in December, or perhaps the last Saturday in November, might be used annually for one of these football treats on which the West now seems to have the monopoly.

Sports of the Ice King.

During the first Winter after the armistice ice sports had little or no chance to stage a comeback. The war was too recent to permit of their resumption in any considerable measure and the mildness of the weather united its effect against them. But this Winter things have been different. Not only have the devotees of ice pastimes had the time and inclination to take them up again, but the weather king has come to their aid and supplied them with all the opportunity that could be desired.

Ice yachtsmen, whom the weather forced into idleness a year ago, are anticipating one of the biggest seasons in their experience, and, in the championship events that will be pulled in the near future down in Jersey, they expect that the establishing of new records will be more or less an everyday affair. Followers of the old Scottish game of curling had their innings Saturday on the ice at Van Cortlandt Park and the last week has seen an American college team on a hockey excursion of Canada, while a Canadian university team has been battling on the ice in this country against Harvard and Princeton.

Every admirer of the greatest of ice sports hopes that similar international matches will become more and more the rule with each succeeding Winter. Lockey leagues that would include representative teams of both countries would do great things for the sport and lend an incentive so powerful that doubtless many cities and institutions that can place little dependence upon natural ice would see the wisdom of supplying themselves with indoor rinks.

In skating races, too, there is every reason to hope that an alliance may be formed between the United States and Canada. An international union that would permit of the joint government of all ice sports is, in fact, an imminent probability. Such a union might easily extend its control to cover snow sports also, such as skiing and snowshoe races and the like. As a matter of fact, intercollegiate competition in snow sports between Canada and the United States is already a fait accompli, for McGill University of Montreal has always been represented at the competitions of the Dartmouth Outing Club in its midwinter carnival at Hanover. No sport, unless it might be flying, offers more thrills than skiing, and there is no reason why the example set by Dartmouth should not be followed by other colleges in the snow belt, in the development of skiing as an intercollegiate sport.

It is a fine thing for American sports that the appeal of the out-of-doors is no longer largely confined to warm weather activities, for that appeal is surrounded with quite as many fascinations when the mercury hunts the zero mark as it is in midsummer.

Indoor Tennis and the Eyes.

The recent statement of a physician that indoor tennis is harmful to the eyes, and the consequent retirement, formally announced, of the senior and junior champion, Vincent Richards, has aroused indignant protests from the member of the Seventh Regiment Tennis Club, whose armory is the scene of the most important indoor tournaments each season. They admit that the light is by no means ideal, there or anywhere else, but point out the fact that their headquarters provide general facilities at present unequaled for conducting the game on a large scale, and that tennis players as a whole have been more than glad to accept their hospitality for the big events of the Winter, while those who have accustomed themselves to conditions have never registered a complaint.

Any indoor game is likely to affect the eyes if played to excess, and even clear daylight may be harmful under certain circumstances. There is so much abuse of eyesight in general that it seems a pity to limit any activity which is otherwise physically helpful. One of the members of the Seventh Regiment Tennis Committee has made the comment that "midnight indoor poker games and cigarette smoke had probably hurt more tennis eyes than all the board-court playing in the world."

The Winter months are something of a problem for such devotees of the racquet as wish to keep in trim for Summer competition, since the chances for indoor play are limited at best. They may turn to squash or handball with excellent physical results, but no real benefit so far as their strokes are concerned, or they may simply content themselves with walking in the open air as much as possible, and forget form and court tactics until April draws them to the outdoor courts again.

California has a big advantage in its all-the-year-round tennis weather, which may be one reason why so many of the coast experts have appeared at or near the top of the American ranking lists. But for the less fortunate Easterner, indoor tennis will still remain both a luxury and a necessity, doctors and champions to the contrary notwithstand.

Fine Southern Racing.

Officials of the tracks which comprise the big circuits in the East and West are viewing with much pleasure the increasing popularity of racing in the South this Winter. According to reports from New Orleans and Havana, where meetings have been in progress since Thanksgiving Day, the sport is rising to new heights of prosperity, and this is taken as a forecast of even greater success during the coming season in the North than was attained last year.

It is certain that the South has witnessed a boom in racing this Winter. Havana, which has had racing for several seasons but has never made a great success of it, is this year enjoying a really fine meeting, with better attendance than ever before and with better horses than have ever raced on the island in the past. The Oriental Park plant, which has passed into the control of the owners of the Giants, Charles Stoneham and John McGraw, has become the mecca for a flood of American tourists as well as for the Cubans, who are finally taking strongly to racing. It is said that more money has been wagered at the races in Havana this year than in any other season and the Cubans in particular have become enthusiastic players.

Owing to the fact that Cuba has become a haven for American tourists seeking a land of liberal laws, Havana racing is attracting more attention in this country and it is predicted that within another year the Havana track will draw some of the stake horses from the United States.

New Orleans has already had one fine meeting at Jefferson Park and is now enjoying an excellent meeting at the Fair Grounds. Though the Crescent City has had some good meetings in past years, horsemen declare that this is the banner year there, and accordingly many owners who never paid any attention to Winter racing are sending some of their horses South. The success which flowed in on the promoters, was hardly anticipated, and the result is that the chief fault with the Fair Grounds is lack of room to accommodate the crowds, particularly on Saturdays and holidays.

Last year was one of the best in the history of racing in the East and the officials of the metropolitan tracks now have a chance to prepare for an even greater season to come. It is quite possible, among other things, that the various racing associations will see fit to increase the value of many of the stakes to meet the demands of numerous horsemen who complain that they have long been racing for their own money. The racing associations are now in a position to afford to swell the stakes from their own money chests. The metropolitan tracks have not been able to compete with those which have the mutuel machines in the matter of large purses and probably will make no effort at such competition, but the purses can generally stand some increase in view of the prosperity of the sport.

Mr. Bassford's Statement.

The statement issued by Chairman Abraham Bassford, Jr., of the Ranking Committee of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association by no means disposes of the simple and obvious objections to the present system noted in these columns last week. Mr. Bassford explains the mathematics of the situation clearly enough, but does not even suggest an answer to the natural question why, for example, the national clay court championship, held at Chicago, with an entry list far less significant than that of Newport, Longwood, Southampton, or even Seabright, should be given a value three times as great as any one of these classic events.

Mathematical formulas may be a necessity, although a majority of the tennis players would probably prefer to get along without them, after one experiment, but at least they should be formulas of a kind not directly antagonistic to common sense and the cherished traditions of tournament history.

Building Up Our Manhood.

The meetings held in New York last week by various associations of physical educators had a tremendous significance for American athletics and efficiency in general. Their ideal of a universal standardization of physical training has acquired a practical meaning and actual possibilities of realization through the lessons taught by the war and modern industrial conditions.

When 35 per cent. of America's young men were found physically unfit for military service a startling disclosure was made of the most obvious handicap to national health and useful citizenship. Systematic physical training from early childhood to maturity is the only possible answer.

The responsibility for such training rests most naturally with our schools and colleges, and it is there that the work of reform is already well under way. The old idea of athletics as a physical hardship, to be borne only by the chosen few of natural strength and endurance, has been replaced by a theory of unlimited participation in healthful recreation of the sort which kept the American soldiers cheerful under the most adverse circumstances, and plays a prominent part in the well-ordered life of every wise business man nowadays.

The routine of gymnastic apparatus is no longer the only solution for the seeker of bodily health. Modified forms of football and baseball, as well as basket ball, boxing, tennis, swimming, handball, track and field athletics, soccer and other games, have been brought within the reach of the average youngster in such a way that, even as an adult, he need not eschew them entirely. While it has been found more important to have every member of a school, college or club getting regular exercise in an attractive form than to develop a few individuals into a team of spectacular prowess, the spirit of competition has been stimulated rather than neglected, and intercollegiate and interclub athletics are consequently in better shape than ever before, with higher physical standards and more available material.

Physical entrance requirements and examinations for graduation are the next logical steps in the progress of the colleges, and they seem already definitely on the way. Eventually it may come to pass that in every important field of activity, educational or otherwise, certain physical tests will be demanded from time to time for the permanent assurance of an average efficiency whose possibilities are still far from realized.

Trading of Ball Players.

The quiet which has pervaded the baseball trading mart since the close of the past season may be simply the calm before the storm. Otherwise the conclusion must be drawn that the numerous changes that had been hinted at, predicted and sometimes threatened, were builded more on hope than on any definite prospect. With the game opening up again to its pre-war proportions, and a winner worth more than in any past year, it was believed that many shakeups were to be made. So far only two managers of the sixteen major league clubs have done any shaking up.

The deal between the Washington and Boston clubs a few days ago may be the forerunner of some real activity in the trading line. Such is to be desired. Baseball usually profits through shifts of players from one club to another, since the fan grows weary of seeing the same player perform year after year. Unless he is a superman of the diamond, four or five years will suffice to wear out a player's welcome with home fans. The old adage of familiarity breeding contempt is nowhere more true than in baseball.

It sometimes happens that weeks go by without announcement of a trade in the off season. Then somebody starts things rolling, and deals are numerous. There is not a club in either major league that could not be improved by the discarding of talent that has been with it too long, and needs newer fields to bring out fading energy. Even championship teams can be improved by the transfusion of new blood, and for the second division teams, the need is greater, and the gamble on a trade becomes less.

Major league club owners and managers reached a new level for inactivity when they went through their annual meetings a month ago without negotiating any trades. This was surprising, in view of the fact that so much had been heard in advance of possible deals. There remain only two months before the teams will be starting for Dixie, and those same club owners can inject some real interest into the sport, and likewise pave the way for greater enthusiasm among home fans during the season, by shifting about some of the players. The players, too, will be helped by such changes.

LACKAWANNA WINS PANAMA HANDICAP

Jockey Carmody's Riding on Two Victors Is the Feature at Havana Track.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 4.—Lackawanna, favored by light weight and under a perfect ride by Carmody, won the Panama Handicap at one mile and a sixteenth, the feature race of the program at the Oriental Park track today. Lackawanna ran coupled with Grundy as the Armoia Stable. They were second choice in the betting, and their victory was only due to the hustling ride put up by Carmody.

The boy never became overanxious. In the early part of the race he was slightly outrun and was forced to make up his ground gradually. He brought his mount up with a rush in the final quarter and took the lead, but in the last sixteenth he was forced to ride him out sharply to stall off the challenges of Kiku, which held on with remarkable courage. Lackawanna won by three-fourths of a length. Buford was third, three lengths back.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For three-year-olds and up; claiming; 5½ furlongs; purse $600. Dione, 100 pounds (Fator), 8 to 5, 7 to 10 and 1 to 3, first; Tranby, 113 (Maderia), 5 to 1, 2 to 1 and even, second; Apple Jack, 114 (Carmody), 4 to 1, 6 to 5 and 4 to 5, third. Time—1:07 4-5. HOLY NAME FIVE WINS.

Defeats Mohawk A. C., 33 to 24, in Harlem Basket Ball Battle.

In a battle between two of the leading basket ball teams of Harlem, the Holy Name Big Five emerged victorious yesterday afternoon at the Manhattan Casino, defeating the Mohawk A. C. by a score of 33 to 24. The Mohawk team was able to offer sturdy opposition all the way, but could not halt the winning streak of the Holy Name quintet, which has now raised its total of victories to twelve, with no defeat intervening to mar the record. The score at half time was 17-12, but Holy Name put on speed in the second half. Connolly and Tideaback played a particularly good game for the winners, but excellence of team work furnished the principal reason for Holy Name's success. The lineup:

HOLY NAME (33).		MOHAWK A. C. (24).
Wassmer	R. F.	Beatty
Tideaback	L. F.	Watkins
Connolly	C.	Shilling
Driscoll	R. G.	Black
Gardner	L. G.	Pinckney

Goals from floor—Holy Name: Wassmer, Tideback (7), Connolly (5), Gardner; Mohawk A. C.: Beatty (3), Watkins (4), Shilling (4). Goals from foul—Holy Name: Wassmer (3), Connolly, Driscoll, Gardner; Mohawk A. C.: Watkins (5), Pinckney.

Referee—Mr. McCaffery. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Original Celtics Victorious.

The Original Celtics basketball quintet defeated the Italian Catholic Club five yesterday at Webster Hall, by the score of 27 to 13. The victorious team led throughout the game, finishing the first half in front by 18 to 9. Smolick was the principal factor in the Celtics' triumph, registering seventeen of his team's points.

BROWNIE IS FIRST IN ICE YACHT RACE

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Jan. 4.—Hundreds of people were attracted to the North Shrewsbury River here today by the ideal weather and ice for ice yachting and skating. Some novel speed stunts were contributed by Lieut. James Casey's aeroplane, several high-powered automobiles, motorcycles and Pierre A. Proal's aero sled. Runners were attached to the wheels of the automobile, which flew up and down the river. Long lines of skaters were drawn by automobiles, and there was considerable rivalry among the various speed crafts.

Three pretty ice yacht races were sailed. The first was a five-mile event, which was won by Andrew White's Brownie, defeating Harry L. Ryder's Go To It by five seconds and Reuben White's Get There by ten seconds. The Brownie also trimmed Captain Hoyer's Scooter by a few seconds in a novel event.

The Independent Ice Yacht Club held its first race of the season today. It was the Commodore's race and was won by Commodore Ralph S. Sickel's Banshee, in a six-mile event, the Banshee, after trailing It's It, the new boat of H. C. Page of Newark, in the first of the encounter, gained the lead and finished by a small margin in front of Anatole Chamerot's new boat, Auto Go. Let's Go, owned and sailed by Robert G. McDermott of Roseville, was third, and It's It, fourth.

Lieut. H. E. Fisher, of the Canadian Air Forces, William Richardson of Chester, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamilton, Mrs. Eleanor Castle and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Fisher, all of Newark; R. Phil Merrill, of Detroit, and Robert Sanders, of Elizabeth, were among the visitors at the Independent Club, several of whom had their first ice yacht ride. There will be racing tomorrow.

MANY TENNIS STARS IN INDOOR TOURNEY

Players of National Repute to Compete at Brooklyn Heights Casino—71 in Singles.

The Indoor club tennis tournaments which begin this afternoon on the courts of the Brooklyn Heights Casino contain enough entries of national prominence to rank with most of the open events of the season. Seventy-one of the male members of the club have entered the singles, thirty-one in Class A and forty in Class B.

Among the entrants are Frederick B. Alexander, the Princeton veteran, for several years a member of the national doubles champion team and holder of many minor titles, with the most recent distinction of holding the Australian, Gerald Patterson, to five close sets last Summer at Forest Hills; Dean Mathey, also a Princetonian, and ranked in the second ten this year; Seichiro Kashio, the Japanese star, former champion of the West Side Club; G. A. L. Dionne, another veteran, who took a set from national champion Johnston at the last all-comers' tournament; Harry S. Parker of the Rockaway Hunting Club; Hugh Kelleher, one of the Western stars; Leonard Beekman, another high ranking Princetonian, challenger last season for the Middle States title; Julian S Myrick, Vice President of the National Lawn Tennis Association; William Alex Campbell, W. J. Gallou and Murray Vernon.

The women's singles, although limited to twelve entries, show real class right through the draw, with the former national champion, Mrs. Franklin I. Mallory (Molla Bjurstedt), heading the list, followed by Miss Eleanor Goss, ranked second in America at present; Mrs. Rawson Wood, former Florida State champion; Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer, Mrs. de Forest Candee, Mrs. Mabel Straffin and Miss Adele Bull.

Entries in the team events have not yet been completed, but the men's doubles will include such combinations as Dean Mathey and Julian S. Myrick, Harry S. Parker and Hugh Kelleher, and William A. Campbell and W. J. Gallon of the West Side Club. In the mixed doubles will be found Miss Goss and Dean Mathey, Mrs. Mallory and W. A. Campbell, and Mrs. Candee and W. J. Gallon, with other strong teams still to be heard from.

Play in the singles begins this afternoon, with all matches arranged by mutual agreement, provided the first round is finished before the end of the week. Harry McNeal, the club professional, has charge of all the tournaments, and is also instituting a special squash event.

DRUB DEFEATS JACK FROST.

Fiedler's Ice Yacht Wins Long Branch Club's Fifteen-Mile Race.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Jan. 4.—Captain Edwin Fiedler's Drub an, old-time favorite, showed the Jack Frost her heels today in the fifteen-mile race for the Patterson Cup of the Long Branch Iceboat and Yacht Club. It was a nip-and-tuck race, and the Drub annexed the victory by the close margin of two seconds. The Hazel L. was third and the Princeton fourth.

The Imp and the X. L. N. C. collided in the fourth lap and withdrew, the former retiring with a broken runner and the latter shy two of its stays. The Drub's time for fifteen miles was 33:30. Jack Frost's 33:32, Hazel L. 37:26, and Princeton 38:45.

A strong west wind was blowing when the yachts were sent away. A record crowd saw the event. Captain Harold Seaman's C. and C. won the mo[illegible] first race, sailing five miles in 17:20, with the Dolphin finishing in 18:10 and the Shrimp third in 20:43. The Sly Fox did not finish.

NEW HOCKEY LEAGUE FOR PHILADELPHIA

Representatives of Prominent Clubs Will Meet This Week to Organize.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—Representatives of several local clubs will meet on Wednesday night to form a hockey league, which will play its schedule at the new Philadelphia Auditorium and Ice Palace, which will soon open.

At the request of several clubs, Manager Orton of the Ice Palace has sent out invitations for the organization meeting to representatives of the following: Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia Cricket Club, Pickering Hunt Club, Philadelphia Country Club, Racquet Club, Cynwyd Tennis Club, and the Aviators' Club of Pennsylvania. All of these, with the exception of the Racquet Club, desire to get into the coming league. The invitation was sent to the Racquet Club, however, as it is understood some of the members desire to take up the great Canadian game. The league's schedule will start early next month.

DEMPSEY ACCEPTS COFFROTH'S OFFER

NOW AFTER FRENCH BOXER

Charles Harvey Will Try to Sign European Title Holder — Date and Other Details Unsettled.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, announced here tonight he had accepted an offer of a $400,000 purse from James W. Coffroth for a forty-five-round fight between Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, at Tijuana, Lower California.

"It's up to Coffroth now to sign up Carpentier," said Kearns, "and I understand he has a representative, Charles Harvey, in Europe now, trying to do just that.

"This is the most satisfactory offer we have had. We are willing to accept it on a winner or loser basis, perhaps $300,000 for the winner and $100,000 for the loser. These details will be worked out later. Coffroth may not want the motion picture rights, but whether he does or not we will want a percentage of them and all other privileges."

Kearns' announcement was made after he had been asked if he would accept an offer to Dempsey of $800 000 and a ten weeks' theatrical engagement in Europe at $5,000 a week, announced in Chicago today by Charles Cochran, an English theatrical magnate.

Coffroth is President of the Lower California Jockey Club at Tia Juana.

COCHRAN IN CHICAGO.

English Promoter Still Hopes to Secure Dempsey-Carpentier Bout.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Charles Cochran, the English theatrical magnate who proposes to promote in London a world's championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, is pushing his plans. He was here on other business today, and said he had sent a personal representative to Los Angeles to confer with Dempsey's manager.

Cochran has offered Dempsey a guarantee of $200,000 to sign a contract, and he says he will guarantee the champion ten weeks of theatrical engagements in England and France at $5,000 a week.

He also said that he not only had the French champion's signature to a contract calling for $105,000, but had advanced $25,000 to Carpentier.

"London is the logical place for the battle," said Mr. Cochran. "It is neutral ground. We have there all the facilities necessary for staging a world's championship and can be assured that our investment will be secure."

Cochran will return to New York tomorrow.

MUNN WINS AT GREAT NECK

Breaks 91 Birds Out of 100—Tullis Takes Handicap Prize.

GREAT NECK, L. I., Jan. 4.—With the liberal handicap allowance of 50, R. Tullis returned a full score in the 100 clay bird handicap at the traps of the Great Neck Golf and Country Club today. The high scratch prize was won by O. D. Munn, who broke 91 in his four strings of 25 each. Tullis broke 62, but that was enough to win the handicap prize, as the nearest to him was Munn. The scores follow:

	Broke.	Handicap.	Gross.
R. Tullis	62	50	100
O. D. Munn	91	0	91
P. M. Graves	76	15	90
E. M. Farrington	76	12	88
S. Kalker	68	20	88
W. C. Poertner	76	10	86
E. Milliken	77	0	77

LEWIS HITS 94 OUT OF 100.

Leads Trap Shooters at Manhattan Bay Y. C. Range.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., Jan. 4.—Tracy H. Lewis broke 94 in a 100 clay bird scratch and handicap shoot at the traps of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club this afternoon. P. M. Graves, who participated in the event at the Great Neck Golf and Country Club earlier in the day and came here, won the handicap prize, returning a score of 99 on his handicap of 15.

	Broke.	Handicap.	Total.
P. M. Graves	84	15	99
Waldo Grose	92	6	98
J. G. Bower	80	10	90
T. H. Lewis	94	1	95

TO PROMOTE N. E. FUTURITY

New Association of New England Horsemen Is Established.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—New England horsemen have formed a new association, The Trotting Horse Breeders of New England, Inc., to promote a futurity to be known as the New England stallion stake, an annual event for 2 and 3 year olds sired by stallions standing for service in New England and out of mares owned by residents of New England.

The stake will be offered similar to the plan adopted by the American Association of Trotting Horse Breeders for the championship stallion stake, one of the features of the Grand Circuit. An additional reservation makes only colts kept and trained in this section of the country eligible for the event.

Besides the promotion of this event the society will make efforts to bring New England to the front as a trotting horse breeding center. Officers elected include Chester W. Lasell, President; P. H. Reed, John A. Pilgard, C. B. Linton, A. B. Hastings, J. M. Boutwell and J. E. Kent, Vice Presidents; and Charles H. Traiser, Secretary Treasurer.

Kupchik and Black in Chess Tie.

Largely owing to the efforts of Oscar Chajes, who defeated R. T. Black in the seventh round, A. Kupchik, State chess champion, was enabled to tie Black for first place in the annual championship tournament of the Manhattan Chess Club yesterday. Kupchik himself had O. W. Field as opponent, and defeated him in forty-five moves. F. D. Hago scored against Pokorny by default and tied with Chajes for third place, half a point behind the leaders. The leading scores are: Black and Kupchik, each, 5—2; Chajes and Hago, each, 4½.

Wins Twenty Games at Chess.

Lieutenant Franklin F. Russell, one-time New York University star and subsequently chess champion of Oxford University, England, played against twenty-five opponents in a simultaneous exhibition at the Brooklyn Institute Chess Club, Saturday night, scoring twenty wins, four drawn games and one loss. E. M. Wolmer was the winner, while C. W. Simons, W. W. Lowe, J. W. Jennings and E. C. Christensen drew their games.

SOUTAR IS CHALLENGED.

Professional Squash Champion to Meet Otto Clocker of Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—Jock Soutar, the world's racquet champion and the United States and Canadian squash racquets titleholder, has been challenged to a squash match by Otto Clocker of the Boston A. A. It will be a home-and-home affair, the first match to be played at the Racquet Club in this city on Feb. 7 and the second at Boston, Feb. 14. The prize will be $1,000 and a purse.

In the event of each player winning a match the games will count, and, in the event of these being even, the winner will be decided by the number of points to his credit.

This is the first time that Soutar has been challenged for the American squash racquets championship since he won it from Ganley four years ago at the Racquet Club. He won the Canadian title seven years ago. Since winning the world's racquet championship in 1918, Soutar has not received a challenge, as there is no professional in America at the present time of his calibre.

GREEK WILL MEET GREEK.

Demetral and Londos to Wrestle Tonight for Grecian Title.

William Demetral, the Greek champion, faces a critical test this evening at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory when he defends his championship from the attack of Jim Londos. For eight years Demetral has been wearing the crown of championship and swept all his rivals before him; now he is going to meet a wrestler that is considered the most dangerous opponent that could be selected.

The championship will be fought to a finish. One fall must be secured to decide supremacy. The men will wrestle on a winner take all basis. Originally it was decided to have them meet on a 75 and 25 per cent. basis, but Londos suddenly decided to make it a sweeping victory for the winner. He suggested that the winner take all, and, as Demetral had insisted upon this first, the champion had no chance to decline the proffer.

A gold belt valued at $1,000 will be presented to the winner by Jack Curley, who is promoting the match. The well-known promoter considers the match likely to be the greatest he has ever staged, as far as action is concerned. With the championship of Greece involved, it means the men will never back up while they possess an ounce of energy. Another prize dangling before this pair is the chance of meeting Stecher in a finish match.

To add to the fun, Suis Hevonpaa, "the Ferocious Finn," and Ican Linow will meet in a finish en ounter. Wladek Zbyszko will meet Baldis, the Buenos Aires champion, in a finish match. Zbyszko will probably challenge the winner of the championship event.

LEONARD NEAR WEIGHT.

With ten days remaining in which to complete his training for his twenty-round championship match against Johnny Dundee, at New Haven, Conn., Jan. 16, Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, was yesterday reported within three pounds of the stipulated weight, 135 pounds at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the match. It is understood Leonard plans to weigh in in public, to demonstrate that he is capable of making the weight at which he won the title from Freddie Welsh.

Leonard took things comparatively easy yesterday at his Lakewood headquarters. After coming off the road in the morning he tipped the scales at 138 pounds. The champion is not dieting, and does not expect to cut down on his meals to make the weight. With another week of training and a drying out process, if necessary, Leonard is confident of being at weight and in possession of his full fighting strength on the day of the bout.

HECHT SHOWS WAY IN HARLEM CHASE

Phillip Hecht of the Glencoe A. C. yesterday registered his first victory in Harlem Heights Athletic League road running activities, when he led home the pack of harriers who competed in the weekly chase held over the Glencoe A. C. trail of about five miles. Hecht, who only recently turned to distance running, displayed surprising endurance, beating off a desperate challenge by Fleischer of the Morningside A. C., in the final twenty-five yards. The Glencoe harrier flished past the judges at the finish with a margin of about five yards separating him from Fleischer. So had picked up considerable ground in his strong closing effort. The victor's time was 31:34. Hecht started with a handicap of 4 minutes 30 seconds.

Despite the penetrating cold, a field of twenty-five sweater-clud runners started in the chase. The buffeting to which they were subjected over the windswept course, however, forced six of the original field to retire, so that only nineteen were checked up as completing the prescribed distance.

The fastest time for the distance was registered by Harry Brown, a young Harbrook Heights A. C. runner, who tarted off the two-minute mark, and galloped home in seventh position in the actual time of 29:42. This performance eclipsed by thirty-six seconds the effort of Wilson Jackson, a strong-limbed member of the St. Christopher club, who, though starting at a handicap of 1:45, was actually the back-marker. Jackson raced over the finish line, none the worse for his hard race, in fourteenth position. His actual time was 30:18. Athletes of the Harbrook Heights A. C. carried off the team laurels, leading the Morningside A. C. in the struggle by a margin of three points. The score was 26 to 29.

Pos.	Name and Club.	Hdcp.	Actual Time.
1—P. Hecht, Glencoe A. C.		4:30	31:34

Pastime Runner Is Not Extended in Members' Road Race.

A handicap of three minutes aided M. Arnheiter to victory yesterday in the Pastime A. C. members' road race held over a course of about four and one-half miles in the Bronx. Arnheiter, moving into the van in the last mile and one-half, finished a winner without being extended, in the actual time of minutes. J. F. O'Connor of the New York A. C., who started from scratch, finished second in 24:40, about 150 yards back of the winner. O'Connor was the only non-member to start.

M. Arnheiter (3:00), 27:00; J. F. O'Connor (scratch), 24:40; O. Phillipson (scratch), 24:45; H. Brady (4:30), 29:40; S. Aronson (4:30), 29:48; J. T. O'Neil (4:15), 29:55; M. Marish (4:15), 30:09.

FURLONG IN THE VAN.

Former A. E. F. Runner Leads Field in Bronx A. L. Road Run.

William Furlong of the Mohawk A. C., who, during the war competed in A. E. F. competitions as a member of the 308th Infantry, led home a pack of eleven rivals yesterday in the weekly handicap road race of the Bronx Athletic League. The run was held over a course of about four and one-half miles, starting and finishing at the headquarters of the St. Francis Catholic Union, 145th Street and Third Avenue. Furlong started with a handicap of 2:45, and had enough strength at the finish to beat off a determined challenge by William Deegan, St. Anselm's A. C., and win by about ten yards. William Boak, another Mohawk runner, finished third. Furlong's actual time for the race was 25:51.

Because of the cold weather the field was comparatively small. The runners who competed, however, were snugly clad against the wintry elements, and were further provided for by the officials of the St. Francis C. U., who served hot coffee and cake to the harriers at the completion of their chase.

A rival's miscalculation in the course played a part in Furlong's victory and acted with reverse effect on the chances of victory for S. Magliano, a St. Francis Catholic Union runner, who was allotted the limit handicap of five minutes. Magliano was leading at two and one-quarter miles when the turn was made for the return journey to the club. At this point, however, Magliano became confused in his directions and followed a route other than the one he was instructed to take. After running alone for about half a dozen city blocks Magliano discovered his mistake, but it was then too late for him to recover the lost ground, and he gradually slipped to the rear of the field, finishing in eleventh position.

Pos.	Name and Club.	Hdcp.	Actual Time.
1—W. Furlong, Mohawk A. C.		3:45	25:51
2—W. Deegan, St. Anselm's A. C.		3:00	25:12

McCAHILL WINS SHOOT-OFF.

T. J. McCahill and Dr. W. B. Short tied for the high scratch prize at the Larchmont Yacht Club traps yesterday. Each had a total of 83 out of a possible 100 targets. On the shoot-off, the prize was taken by McCahill, who had 24 against Dr. Short's 22 in a shoot at 25 targets. The high handicap cup went to F. M. Hoyt, the only gunner to have a full score of 100 targets.

Although he was not eligible to win one of the cups, the real high gunner was A. L. Burns, who usually shoots at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club. He had a total of 93 out a possible 100 targets. The day was not particularly good for the sport. Not only was it bitterly cold on the firing line, but a nasty breeze swept in from Long Island Sound, making it exceedingly difficult for the gunners to keep their eyes on the flying blue rocks.

The scores:

SCORE OF 89 IS HIGH AT TRAVERS ISLAND

Field of Only 32 Reports at N. Y. A. C. Traps and Usual Good Totals Are Missing.

It was bitterly cold on the firing line at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. As a result a small field of thirty-two nimrods made poor scores, although they had plenty of fun trying to hit the tiny blue rocks. As an indication of the weather conditions, the victory scored by E. D. Anderson in the race for the high scratch prize is an excellent example. As a rule, a 95 or a 96 takes the trophy. Yesterday the winner had only a total of 89 out of a possible 100 targets.

Even the race for the high handicap prize saw few full scores. D. W. Gluck and J. T. Bishop were the only ones to have 100 along with their handicaps. On the shootoff the prize was taken by Gluck. The Buermeyer Cup went to E. D. Anderson, with a total of 46 out of a possible 50 targets. A special scratch shoot was won by R. L. Spotts.

Although the conditions were unusually difficult, two gunners made straight strings in the individual 25 targets shoot. One was A. Rowland, who broke every bird in the race for the Byronel Cup. R. B. Sloan turned a similar trick in the shoot for the Lyon prize. It did not do the gunners any great good, for they simply were credited with legs, along with the nimrods who had full scores of 25 targets in the events. The gunners with full cards of 25 targets also were given legs in the shoot for the Tournament and the President Cups.

Annunciation A. C. Five Wins.

A sustained rally in the second half of the game gave the Annunciation A. C. basketball team a victory over the Colon Council, Knights of Columbus, yesterday at Ebling's Casino, by the score of 17 to 10. The contest was closely played throughout. At the end of the first half the K. of C. quintet led in scoring by 7 to 3.

It was a mishap in a Yorkshire dye house that first suggested a way to rainproof woolens.

Certain goods had been dyed with an excess of logwood and came out brownish instead of black.

Soap failing to remove the surplus, it was decided to try alum.

In drying the goods over hot rollers the improvement in color was so marked that the dyers concluded that a repetition might effect a complete cure.

But upon allowing the cloth to again pass through water, they were astonished to find that it came through absolutely dry.

From this crude soap-and-alum process, the science of rainproofing has been highly developed.

As a matter of fact, until we collaborated with the Scottish mills and evolved our *"Scotch Mist" fabric, the Scot's beautiful cheviots were only good for fine weather. Now they're fine, rain or shine!

ELSIE JANIS ILL.

Will End Engagement in Two Weeks and Rest from Nervous Strain.

Elsie Janis, whose illness made necessary postponement to a Sunday late in the month of a performance she was to have given for the American Legion yesterday, was said at her home in Tarrytown last night to be suffering from nervous strain induced by overwork. She will appear at the George M. Cohan Theatre tonight with her soldier show, but will end her engagement in two weeks and take a rest.

Miss Janis broke down after the performance Friday night, and played twice Saturday with a physician in the wings. It was at the suggestion of the Legion, her mother said, that last night's performance, at which ex-President Taft was to have spoken, was postponed.

After a rest Miss Janis will tour for a time and then appear in a revue in London.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Theda Bara will be seen on the stage in the near future as the star of "The Lost Soul," a melodrama by George V. Hobart and John Willard. The play will be produced by A. H. Woods, and rehearsals will begin in a few weeks.

"The Cat-Bird," in which John Drew will appear, is a comedy by Rupert Hughes, and will be produced in Atlantic City on Jan. 19. The company will include Janet Beecher, Ruth Findlay, Pauline Armitage, William Raymond, Arthur Barry, Sidney Mason, Albert Reed, William Williams and Willard Bowman. Arthur Hopkins is the producer.

In the cast of "The Passion Flower," the Benavente drama to be seen at the Greenwich Village on Jan. 16, will be Nance O'Neil, Charles Waldron, Charles Fisher, Harold Hartsell, Bruce Mantell, Ridler Davis, Joseph McCauley, Charles Angelo, Mrs. Charles G. Craig, Pauline Moore, and others. The play has been translated by John Garrett Underhill.

"The Proper Spirit," a comedy by Willard Robertson and Kilbourn Gordon, has been accepted by Mrs. Henry B. Harris for next season.

"Starvation," a motion-picture showing conditions in Russia, Poland and Austria, made at the direction of Herbert Hoover, under the supervision of George F. Kunz, will be presented for an indefinite run by Morris Gest at the Manhattan Opera House, beginning next Friday.

Tonight's performance of "The Light of the World," at the Lyric, will be solely for the clergy. The formal opening will take place tomorrow night.

The Actors' Fidelity League, as a step toward a clubhouse fund, will give a benefit performance at the Broad Street Theatre in Newark Sunday night, Jan. 18. It is hoped also to produce a series of plays in New York, with casts drawn from the Fidelity membership. For the present the league has re-leased the premises at 122 West Forty-third Street.

The matinees given in New York on Dec. 5, in aid of the Actors' Fund, raised $460,187, according to figures given out yesterday. The total for the country is believed to have been about $700,000.

To First Nighters:

We wish to apologize to the usual "first night" theatregoers who cannot witness the private performance of "The Light of the World" at the Lyric Theatre tonight.

This performance is exclusively for clergymen and city and state officials. Not one seat has been sold, or will be sold to any one. The clergy and these officials were invited because "The Light of the World" is a drama of striking ethical significance and of such import that it demands recognition beyond the ordinary review of the general public.

The first public performance will be given tomorrow night (Tuesday) and the first matinee will be on Wednesday.

To those "first nighters" whose checks and money orders we had to return, because we would not sell any seats for the first night, we once more apologize for any inconvenience caused by their disappointment.

(Signed) F. RAY COMSTOCK, MORRIS GEST (Producers of "The Light of the World.")

"The acting in 'For the Defense' is so wonderful that one is at a loss for comparisons. Would one likes it to Arthur Barrymore as 'Juliet,' or Jack Hopkins as 'Puck,' or to the A. E. F.? Well! Something. One Would."—HEYWOOD WOOLLCOTT

"'I haven't spoken to Mrs. Lydig or any of the Peabodys or Bigelows yet, but the Vanderbilts say it's a success."—KELCEY REAMER.

"Say what you will, 'For the Defense' is a huge success. So I hate it. Successes in the theatre cramp my style. Moreover, this play is taken bodily from the Aztec tragedy, 'The Nittites,' which in turn was pilfered from the Slavic classic, 'Pish Posh,' first produced at Cape Horn in 1723 and even earlier at the Pretzel Theatre, Schmeerbunkum,"——J. RANKIN NATHAN

"I told Jake it was all right, but Jake said, 'There isn't a good musical number in it.'"—A. L. SHUBERT.

"Whoof! Whoof! It's so good I thought Brander Matthews wrote it."—ALEXANDER BROUN

"Darling, I just love 'For the Defense.'"—ALF WOODS.

"It's that cute and such and so on, even comme ci comme ca, that, well, so to speak, it's the best play since 'The Modern Madonna.'"—LOUIS DALE

THE SCREEN

The Capitol Theatre starts this week with a new Ned Wayburn production called "Song Scenes" and motion pictures in quantity, and also of quality.

The most unusual and most powerful picture on the program is one entitled, "The Log of the U-35," which, like a similar film brought here by J. H. Mackaum, a Knights of Columbus secretary, and shown at the Rialto seven weeks ago, is said to have been made on a German submarine during the war and to have been obtained by allied representatives since the armistice. It shows cargo steamers and a picturesque schooner stopped by the submarine, wounded by its shells and bombs, and then sinking, each one slowly at first, with a different turn or roll of dumb helplessness before finally disappearing with a hurried plunge into its grave. For those to whom ships are something human, or magnificently triumphant human creations, these pictures of their assassination by forces controlled by men are overwhelmingly tragic—or, to the mood of despair, hellishly comic.

The photoplay at the Capitol is "Should a Woman Tell?" (it honestly hurts to write some movie titles,) with Alice Lake, a Brooklyn girl, taken from Roscoe Arbuckle comedies by Maxwell Karger, of Metro, and now starred for the first time. The picture was directed by John E. Ince, under Mr. Karger's supervision, from a scenario by Finis Fox.

The heroine of the story is a native of a New England seacoast village who, on a visit to Boston, is a victim of her own ignorance and a man's knowledge. She returns to her home appalled by the consciousness of her misstep, but revives hope when her first, and still constant, lover returns after several years in Paris. He knows nothing of the Boston incident, and the question so feverishly shouted by the title of the photoplay arises in the girl's mind. Shall she tell him? She does, but not successfully until after they are married, and then he leaves her. From this point on until nearly the end, it looks as if the story would be a tragedy and answer its question in the negative, but after several frenzied reels old reliable Happy Ending is brought in with his benevolent smile and the two true lovers are reunited.

The story starts well and, despite the rush of melodrama in which it becomes confused, has genuine human quality in places, though, of course, it gives no answer to its problem. It approaches humanness chiefly through the acting and directing. Mr. Ince has made some remarkable scenes. The wreck of a yacht off the New England village is a masterly piece of work; most of the action that counts in the plot is presented in moving pictures that do not depend upon text, beautiful views abound, and that part of the story which, too realistically treated, would be offensive, is effectively told metaphorically.

Miss Lake's performance confirms Mr. Karger's judgment. She is not only a person of pleasing appearance, but, much more importantly, has pantomimic ability. Others in the cast conspicuous by their good work are Frank Currier as an old seaman, Relyea Anderson as his unlovely wife, and Richard Headrick as a delightful child. Jack Mulhall, as the hero, is just satisfactory.

Another pictorial number on the Capitol bill which must be mentioned even in crowded space, because of its fascination for those who like to smile and laugh is "Such Is Life in New York Upto-Date," a travelaugh executed by the skillful Fly Mayer.

Ned Wayburn's contribution to the program is what most people will expect. Frank Johnson, Donald Kerr, Lucille Chalfant, Pearl Regay, Evan Burrows Fontaine, and others furnish singing and dancing acts of the usual type, with such a sprinkling of novelty as may be counted on from Mr. Wayburn.

One of the most grim and gruesome, and decidedly one of the best made, pictures produced since the beginning of the war is at the Broadway this week—"Behind the Door," adapted from a story by Gouverneur Morris, directed by Irvin Willat, under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, with that big human being, Hobart Bosworth, in the leading rôle. The picturized story reaches a terrific climax in an act of maniacal hate, the hate of an American naval officer of German extraction for the German commander of a submarine who has robbed him of his wife and treated her hideously. To describe the act would, perhaps, be unfair to those who want to receive the full shock of it from the photoplay. It need be said only that the experience of the woman among the brutes on the submarine and the revenge of her husband are pictured relentlessly, though, according to report, even more frightful scenes were cut from the original film by the management of the theatre.

Whatever one may think of the advisability (or entertaining capability?) of "Behind the Door," he cannot deny that it is the work of able individuals. The acting of Mr. Bosworth, as the German-American, of Jane Novak as his wife, and of Wallace Beery as the German, is compelling by its force and precision, and Mr. Willat has made moving pictures which for atmosphere and dramatic intensity have seldom been surpassed.

The ending, making a hopeless effort to be "happy," shows a reunion of the spirits of the husband and his wife, and this, because of the idea and its photographic representation, would be beautiful in another story, but nothing can be convincingly beautiful arising out of such a substance of horror and hate as "Behind the Door" is made of.

Norma Talmadge has the distinction of starring in two photoplays on Broadway at the same time this week. "A Daughter of Two Worlds" at the Strand and "She Loves and Lies" at the Rivoli, the first directed by James L. Young and the latter by Chester Withey. "When the Clouds Roll By," with Douglas Fairbanks, has moved from the Rivoli to the Rialto for the week.

Burton Holmes delivered the first illustrated lecture of his season at Carnegie Hall last night, his subject being "Belgium." It will be repeated at the same place this afternoon.

Motorists Braving Snappy Air Attend Churches and Luncheons.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Jan. 4.—A number of parties went by motor to the Pines and Elmhurst Farm for luncheon and, despite cold, snappy weather, the churches were well attended. Several parties went from the Greenbrier to services in the village.

Miss Olive Kahlo and Mr. George Kahle returned today from Richmond, where they attended the coming-out ball of Miss Louise Branch on New Year's. Miss Branch and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Kerr Branch, have spent several Summers here.

Announce Chaloner Drawing Awards

The National Academy of Design yesterday announced the results of the second John Armstrong Chaloner competition in drawing. First prize was won by Hyman Schneidermann of New York; second, Florence Whiting, Philadelphia; third, Stamos Stathes, New York. Those receiving honorable mention were Edith W. Yaffee and Charles S. Garner, Philadelphia; Wilber Adam, Cincinnati, and Ernest Dielman, Alfred Crimi, George E. Harris, Arthur Buckland, Rosalie Landman and Robert Brackman, New York.

URGE STATE-AIDED MERCHANT MARINE

Chambers of Commerce Favor Private Ownership and Operation.

WANT YARDS PRIVATE ALSO

Suggest Regional Associations to Allocate Government-Owned Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Proposals for a national merchant marine policy advocated by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as a result of a referendum are ready to be placed before Congress. The referendum vote was taken among the more than 1,200 trade and commercial organizations comprising the chamber's membership.

Private ownership of vessels and of shipbuilding yards, with whatever Government aid may be necessary in private operation of ships, is included in the chief suggestions put forward. To secure a wide distribution of the vessels now in the hands of the Government it is proposed that the Government invite the formation of quasi-public regional associations to act in an intermediary capacity in placing shipping in the hands of corporations and individuals.

The membership of the Chamber voted on nine proposals as advanced by its Committee on Ocean Transportation. These proposals were made by the committee with a view of ascertaining the sentiment of the country's commercial interests with respect to disposal of Government-owned ships and their operation, and with regard to the future of shipbuilding in the United States.

In support of its position that the Government should not own and operate a country's merchant marine, the committee declared that under Government ownership and operation it is almost inevitable that considerations entirely apart from economic reasons would constantly interrupt the natural courses of management of ships and trades.

"The management of cargo-carrying ships," says the report, "is one of the most complicated businesses in the world, * * * and a successful merchant marine depends on the development of a large class of energetic, resourceful shipping men, * * * all animated by a spirit that would not be expected of Government employes. Government ownership and operation of ships would be destructive of the initiative and flexibility in ship management that are essential to the success of the business and would cost more than private ownership and operation.

"Again, the uncertainties created by varying Congressional action would result detrimentally to any attempt Government officials might make to establish policies, and permanency of policy is requisite to building up trades with ships."

Freedom from Government regulation as to routes and rates, except in so far as such regulations already exist, is desirable, the committee declares, and it calls attention to provisions of laws now in force.

Respecting Government aid in the operation of ships the committee believes the public understands the necessity of maintaining a merchant marine and is willing to tax itself for the purpose.

The report is signed by Edward B. Burling, Chairman, and the twelve other members of the board.

Arctic Explorer Making His Way from Victoria Land to Hudson's Bay

SEATTLE, Jan. 4.—On his way out of the Arctic, Harold Noice, American explorer, is making his way, on foot, with a dog team, overland from Victoria Land, which lies in the Arctic Ocean, southeast to Port Nelson, in the Hudson's Bay country of Canada, according to letters received here by his mother. Noice is following, for a considerable distance, the route of the northwest passage.

Maps and charts of portions of Victoria Land were made this summer by Noice, he said. He did not state whether or not he ventured into the interior of Victoria Land, which, according to other explorers who have come south, has never been visited by men from the outside world.

Noice has been in the Arctic since 1915. He joined the expedition headed by Vilhjalmur Stefansson, but when Stefansson turned south Noice remained in the north. He expects to arrive here some time next summer.

London Stage Hands Accept Terms.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The dispute between the treatre managers and their employes over the wage question, which arose before the Christmas holidays and threatened for a time to bring about a strike on Boxing day, was settled today at a mass meeting of the stage hands. The concessions offered by the managers were accepted as a compromise until next October, when the whole question will be reconsidered.

Heads Industrial Research.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—Dr. William H. Walker, for many years head of the Research Library of Applied Chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been named as head of the institute's new division of industrial cooperation and research. Dr. Walker was connected with the institute for twenty-five years before the war, and during the war served as Colonel in the Chemical Warfare Service. He was in command of Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland, and was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

TO GIVE "ZAZA" AS OPERA

Farrar Will Appear in Title Role at Metropolitan on Jan. 16.

Leoncavallo's "Zaza" is to be sung at the Metropolitan on Friday of next week, Jan. 16, with Geraldine Farrar in the title rôle, which was acted in the spoken play by Rejane in Paris, and by Mrs. Leslie Carter on Jan. 9, 1899, at the Garrick in New York. The rôle of Baron Dufresne, played here then by Charles A. Stevenson, will be taken in the opera by Giulio Crimi, while that of Cascart, acted formerly by Mark Smith, will be sung by Pasquale Amato. Among Zaza's stage companions will be Mmes. Howard, Ingram, Egener, Arden, Messrs. Bada, Picco, Ananian, Malatesta, Paltrinieri, Reschiglian, Audisio and Laurenti, and little Ada Quintana will be the child. The conductor is Moranzoni, the stage manager, Ordynski, and chorus director Satti. James Fox has prepared the scenes, and Mme. Castel-Bert the costumes.

Applaud John Ireland's Sonata.

John Ireland's sonata in A minor was produced here by Herbert and Mary Dittler as a Princess Theatre recital yesterday afternoon, following by a day another formal work, that of Cyril Scott, given on Saturday by Percy Grainger. The young English group of composers has made haste slowly in reaching America, though Mr. Ireland's "Fantasy" was performed not long ago by a local chamber music organization. His more genial music stems from Franck, as Scott's harmonies do from Debussy. But an original vein of melody is in the present score for violin and piano, suggesting the songs and the dances of old England, now and again, in its "tempo moderato" and "Con brio." The work won a response of applause thrice renewed from Mr. and Mrs. Dittler's audience. The two players were also heard in sonatas of Bach and Dohnanyi.

Opera Based on 'The Son-Daughter'

David Belasco's production of "The Son-Daughter," now playing at the Belasco Theatre, is to be made into an opera by Giacomo Puccini. Geraldine Farrar will sing the principal rôle, now being acted by Lenore Ulric, and Antonio Scotti probably will sing Fen-Sha, the gambler.

Oneida Truck in Record-Breaking Run to New York

(Chicago Evening Post)

Flowing through Illinois mud, driving on through Ohio sand, climbing the rugged Alleghanies and winding down the eastern slopes, an Oneida one and one-half ton truck, fully loaded, nosed into New York City Sunday morning, October 5, after a record-breaking run of 1,451 miles from Green Bay, Wis., in 62 hours.

During this remarkable run an average speed of a little better than 23 miles per hour was maintained throughout the entire trip, which was continuous, night and day, except for time for meals, taking on supplies and occasional stops made for interviews. At no time from the start of the journey at the Oneida factory at Green Bay, Wis., to Chicago and then over the above-mentioned route, was the motor stopped for even a minute.

This nonstop run has proved that the Oneida combines light, smooth-running and speed with aggressive, rugged strength that is hard to find in any other make of truck now on the market, which goes to prove that regardless of the task that the Oneida is put to, it can safely be said that it will perform its duty quickly and satisfactorily.

In order to accomplish this run and set up a record that will be hard to equal, it was necessary for the two drivers to alternate at eating and sleeping, so that no time could possibly be lost, either during the day or at night. Sleeping facilities in form of a cot were rigged up in the truck and bolted down, so that while they were hitting some of the tough spots along the route, the occupant of the cot was not disturbed greatly.

The Oneida officials are not satisfied with this great record and intend to send through another one of their models some time during November in hopes to cut off at least five or more hours of the running time.

ONEIDA

MOTOR TRUCKS

"Uncommon Carriers"

THE Oneida—the only complete line of motor haulage made by one organization, in the United States. For heavy-duty, cross country or motor express routes, Oneida Gasoline Motor Trucks are speedy and dependable. Where deliveries require short hauls with frequent stops, Oneida Electric Motor Trucks are most economical and serviceable.

Twenty years' study and research into motor haulage problems has resulted in the Oneida Line of Motor Trucks—designed and built to earn a continuous profit for their owners. They are strong, fast and for their rated capacity will out-perform other motor trucks. There is an Oneida Truck for every delivery purpose.

Oneida Gasoline Motor Trucks develop more power at the flywheel and lose less in process of combustion than in other motors.

Other points of Oneida Superiority are Accessibility, Reduction of Friction in Transmitting Power, Ease of Control, etc. Oneidas can be built with short wheel bases for tractor trailer purposes, and are easily converted into fast haulage vehicles.

Illustrations A and B show how two gears do the work which formerly required from four to eight gears, and enmesh from three to four times the number of teeth found in other types of transmission. Note carefully illustration C above.

TO MOVE INQUIRY ON MEDALS TODAY

Congressman Lufkin Reports Sentiment in Favor of Full Investigation.

DANIELS SENDS NEW REPORT

BAGLEY CASE IS REVIVED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A canvass of members of the Senate and House Naval Committees tonight indicates that they will order a Congressional investigation of the award of naval medals, and that the inquiry will be conducted by a joint sub committee of probably five members of each naval committee.

Senator Carroll S. Page, Chairman of the Senate Naval Committee, tonight would not consent to predict the line of action to be taken by the Senate Naval Committee, but there is every indication that his committee will favor an investigation by a joint sub-committee. Representative Thomas S. Butler of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the House Naval Committee, will return to Washington tomorrow, and is understood to be in favor of an inquiry by a joint sub-committee. Representative W. W. Lufkin of Massachusetts, a member of the House Naval Committee, who has conferred with members of both the House and Senate Naval Committees during the Christmas holidays, said tonight:

"I have ascertained that sentiment in both committees favors making the investigation through the instrumentality of a joint sub-committee from both Senate and House Naval Committees. Tomorrow I will introduce my resolution calling on Secretary Daniels for a complete list of every man recommended by a commanding officer for a medal, a detailed list showing the action taken by the Knight Board in recommending awards, a detailed showing as to what changes Secretary Daniels made on the Knight Board's recommendations, and also information as to who aided Secretary Daniels when he reached his conclusions in the matter."

Senator Page did not think it wise, he told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent tonight, for him to formulate the action his committee would take. "Tomorrow," said Senator Page, "I shall meet informally some of my friends who are members of the Senate Naval Committee and advise with them as to the best course to mark out. I shall probably call the Senate Naval Committee to meet on Tuesday. I have all the papers in the case that Secretary Daniels has submitted and have read them carefully. In my informal conferences with the members of my committee tomorrow I will discuss the matter of procedure which will probably have a semi-consummation for consideration by the full Naval Committee on Tuesday."

Daniels Defends Disputed Awards.

Secretary Daniels has written a 5,000-word letter to Senator Page in support of the action of the Secretary of the Navy in his decision advocating the awarding of Distinguished Service medals to ten commanding officers of ships torpedoed and put out of action by German submarines. Senator Page said tonight he had received this communication, but did not care to comment on it.

In his letter to Senator Page, made public tonight, Secretary Daniels stands by his action in recommending that ten officers commanding vessels sunk by German submarines should be awarded the highest distinction for services rendered afloat in the presence of the enemy, and that the Captain of every ship that was struck by mines or torpedoes of the enemy should receive such medals if "his conduct was meritorious in the hour that tests courage and leadership."

Secretary Daniels says in his letter that if the theory that D. S. M. should not be given the Commander of a ship which was lost, "Lawrence and Porter and other naval heroes would have been denied some of the early honors which their countrymen gladly gave them."

Secretary Daniels says that awards of the D. S. M. were made to every commanding officer whose ship felt the blow of the enemy "except one who was court-martialed," and who, though fully acquitted, has no recommendation from any commanding officer for recognition of any kind.

Taking up Admiral Sims's point of the superior services of the officers who sank the enemy and saved their ships, Mr. Daniels says:

"We cannot give too much honor to the commanding officers of surface ships which were able to sink or destroy a submarine. The truth must also be recognized, however, that the courage, skill, determination, resourcefulness, foresight, and judgment of officers whose ships were torpedoed and suddenly sunk are put to quite as severe a test as in the cases of commanding officers of surface ships which see and sink the enemy. Nobody has suggested that an officer should be honored because his ship was sunk by a submarine. But it is clear that when a ship is sunk the commanding officer should be rewarded if he meets this supreme crisis with poise, with utter fearlessness, with thought for his men above himself, with the utilization of all those attributes that show a man a hero when the hour strikes for his supreme trial. To deny this principle is to deny one of the bases of the moral law. The greatest thing that a man ever does in this world is to turn a stumbling block into a stepping stone. If medals are not given for this sort of thing what on earth are they designed for?"

Hasbrouck Censured by Wilson.

Secretary Daniels then explains why Captain E. De L. Hasbrouck, who refused to accept a Navy Cross, was not recommended for a Distinguished Service Medal. On Dec. 24 Captain Hasbrouck wrote to Secretary Daniels pleading the stand of Admiral Sims and requesting that his name be stricken from the list of awards of the Navy Cross. Secretary Daniels quotes Admiral Wilson, now commanding the Atlantic fleet, with having officially stated that the failure of Captain Hasbrouck to return to his ship at daylight with a salvage party was "an offense more serious than an error of judgment" and quotes Admiral Gleaves as having stated officially that he would not recommend Captain Hasbrouck for the award either of a medal or of a cross.

Much of the criticism that has been leveled at Secretary Daniels for his action in making awards of naval crosses to officers who commanded ships lost by submarine torpedo attack pivoted around the fact that two of the officers to whom Mr. Daniels made these awards were Commander D. Worth Bagley, brother-in-law of the Secretary, who commanded the Destroyer Jacob Jones, and Commander Percy W. Foote, new Mr. Daniel's own naval aide, who commanded the transport President Lincoln when it was sunk by a submarine.

Explains Bagley Award.

In his letter Secretary Daniels says of Commander Bagley and the sinking of the Jacob Jones:

"After being picked up by one of the boats, Commander Bagley made an immediate effort to get all the survivors on the rafts and remaining boats. He then set out to row to Scilly Islands, a distance of about thirty miles, in an endeavor to obtain assistance, but the boat was picked up by a small patrol vessel about 1 P. M. the next day, Dec. 7, about six miles south of St. Mary's Island, where he was informed that the other survivors had been rescued the night before. Many instances of heroic conduct by various officers and men of the ship are recorded. The radio instruments were so damaged by the explosion as to prevent sending the S O S signal."

The letter then quotes from the testimony of Lieut. Norman Scott, U. S. N., executive officer and navigator of the Jacob Jones, who praised Bagley's handling of the ship and the finding of the Court of Inquiry: "That the commanding officer, officers and men of the United States ship Jacob Jones bore themselves in accordance with the best traditions of the service. The court is of the opinion that the loss of the United States ship Jacob Jones was one of the hazards of war, and that no blame or responsibility attaches to any officer or man of the United States ship Jacob Jones in connection therewith."

The letter continues: "On Dec. 20, 1917, Admiral Sims approved the findings, opinion and recommendation of the court, and writing, in his own hand, in London, under date of Jan. 5, 1918, Admiral Sims said 'Bagley's handling of the situation after his ship was torpedoed was everything I expected in the way of efficiency, good judgment, courage, and chivalrous action.'"

Case of Commander Foote.

Secretary Daniels then gives an account of the President Lincoln, under command of Commender Percy W. Foote.

"While navy ships of this transport class," says the Secretary, "were fitted with guns and carried depth charges, yet it was well know that her own means of defense against submarine attack were very small and, therefore, she must fight against overwhelming odds. It is entirely comparable to a navy battle of one ship fighting against a dozen or more. Therefore, the merits of the performance of duties by officers and men of such a ship are not properly measured by success or failure but by the preparation before and courage and efficiency after the attack which shows whether the officer measures up to naval traditions.

"On June 5, Admiral Sims cabled the department reporting the circumstances attending the sinking of the President Lincoln and stated that 'small loss of life is due to thorough discipline ship's company and excellent seamanship Commander Foote.'

"Admiral Sims also wrote, 'The Force Commander desires to call particular attention to the excellent organization existing on the President Lincoln as evidenced by actual results even after the ship had sunk and the personnel were adrift in boats and on rafts.'"

Admiral Gleaves recommended Commander Foote for a Distinguished Service Medal, and Admiral Mayo, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, approved the recommendation.

Biggest of Aztec Pyramids Found Near Mexico City

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 3.—Discovery at Teotihuacan of a third pyramid, larger than those of the Sun and Moon, which have long puzzled archaeologists and rival those of Egypt, is announced here. Experts believe that in the new pyramid may be found relics which will be invaluable in the study of the age of the Toltecs.

Archaeologists have for many decades been interested in the two great pyramids loacted at Teotihuacan, a town twenty-seven miles northeast of Mexico City, the name of which means "City of the Gods" in the Aztec tongue. Their origin is buried in the remote past, and confused legends and traditions concerning them throw little light on their history. They were used as burial places, and in many ways resemble the pyramids of Egypt in their geometric lines.

TIGER' DIDN'T COMMIT HIMSELF ON CANDIDACY

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Premier Clemenceau returned at 10:40 o'clock this morning from his trip in the department of Var and went directly to the Ministry of War.

It is noted by those who accompanied him on his visit that he avoided making any direct statement as to whether he would be a candidate for the Presidency, or, rather, whether he would be willing to accept that office. His replies, however, gave the impression that he was still averse to further public service. For instance, during the reception given him at the Cuers City Hall the Mayor of Cuers, in referring to the portrait of the President of France, which invariably hangs in a French City Hall, remarked to the Premier:

The Premier smiled as he turned to the audience and said:

"Don't listen to that bad man. He is talking about something he knows nothing about. Were I to be installed in the Chief Magistrate's office, which suits neither my taste nor my temperament, should I be rendering any greater service? Each individual, by his daily toil, works for his country. With a good pen and ink, and the paper on which to write down fine and strong ideas of justice and truth, one is, in a democracy like ours, king of the world."

DENIAL THAT DENIKIN HAS BEEN OVERTHROWN

Bolsheviki Capture French Gun Factory on Volga and Enter Tsaritsin.

PARIS, Jan. 4 (Havas).—M. Alexesky, a former member of the Russian Duma and a delegate of the Union for the Regeneration of Russia, in a note issued today denied the report of the overthrow of General Denikin's Government in South Russia by the union and the replacement of Denikin by General Romanovsky.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—A Bolshevist communication issued Saturday and received here today says:

"In the direction of Berdiansk (on the shore of the Sea of Azov) we have occupied the Mekarenko Station, and in the direction of Mariupol (southeast of Ekaterinoslav) we occupied Tenovka Station, twenty versts southwest of Yusovka. In this region we took 1,100 prisoners, 22 guns, 53 machine guns, and other booty.

"According to supplementary information from the Tsaritsyn sector 1,500 of the enemy's Markoff division were killed and the remainder, 67 officers and 1,200 men with 12 guns and 50 machine guns, were captured.

"In the direction of Tsaritsin, crossing the Volga on the ice, we captured and occupied the French gun factory and entered Tsaritsin."

DEMAND FOR KAISER IS EXPECTED SOON

TIRPITZ READY TO BE TRIED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 4.—There is a feeling among Dutch officials and foreign diplomats here that the long-awaited demand for the extradition of William Hohenzollern is imminent and will probably be made as soon as the Peace Treaty is ratified. Speculation is current, not about the Dutch Government's attitude, but as to the result of this demand, as to what America's attitude will be, and whether the Allies would not be glad of an excuse to accept a refusal based upon Holland's traditions.

What will be the attitude of the erratic William, who changes his mind so frequently and in the opinion of many here can be considered only as a pathological case? From an authoritative source I learn that the possibility of his voluntarily giving himself up has been considered, and, in fact, is now being considered. By adopting such a course, it is argued, he would become a hero and martyr in the eyes of the German people, and those of the Allies who have opposed his being put on trial would be placed in the position of having a white elephant on their hands.

From one who has talked with William within the last ten days I hear that he has changed greatly in the last few weeks. His hand is so shaky that his wine is poured out only in half-glasses. In the middle of a conversation he will suddenly stop talking and see visions of himself with his armies at the front or of himself as Emperor in Berlin or Potsdam.

Bentinck Castle at Amerongen is in great danger of having its first floor flooded through the swelling of the Lubine, which flows a mile from the castle. In some places the water is already as high as the dikes which surround the castle, and these are being strengthened with wood, sandbags, &c.

The ex-Kaiser has assisted in the work and the ex-Kaiserin, with members of the Bentinck family, has been a spectator.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 4 (Associated Press).—The Rhine has reached its highest stage in many years in the vicinity of Amerongen and threatens to overthrow the dike about Bentinck Castle. Workmen are busy strengthening the dike to meet the emergency, and advices from the castle report the Emperor aiding them in their task. Should the river rise a few more inches its level would be high enough to permit the water to seep over into the grounds and flood the lower story of the castle. Watchers of the river rise, however, express the opinion that the flood has reached its highest stage, and that the danger to the castle is over, although the fields between it and the river are flooded to such an extent that rowboats are in use over them.

The castle is situated on the river side of a huge Government dike which forms a roadway, and the building thus is subject to flood damage in greater degree than the main part of the village, which this dike protects. To offset this disadvantage, however, there exists a privately constructed dike of approximately the same height surrounding the castle.

Although there has been no loss of life as the result of the high waters throughout Holland during the last ten days, the flood has caused great damage to property. One of the principal items of loss is the estimated destruction of 25 per cent. of Holland's brick-making industry, the kilns being located for the most part in the flooded area. The rivers now are generally falling.

ROBBERY EPIDEMIC IN GERMAN CITIES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Criminals have been especially busy in Germany during the holidays. Half a dozen murders are reported, and on one billboard today I counted fifteen police notices offering rewards in connection with various misdemeanors, all of which placards had been posted within twenty-four hours.

Some of the criminals show a good deal of ingenuity. A wealthy merchant received a visit from two persons, one in a police uniform, who produced what purported to be a police order to conduct a domiciliary search. In the course of the search the visitors came across 100,000 marks which they "seized," giving a receipt for the same and adding that the merchant would receive it again on application to Police Headquarters. On making that application the merchant discovered that he had been the victim of a thieves' stratagem.

Two gangs of church thieves have been laid by the heels. They ransacked no fewer than fifteen churches, carrying away much booty in the shape of carpets and vestments. These latter they made into women's blouses, and did a good trade in these profaned goods.

A Leipsic firm reports the loss by theft of 750,000 marks' worth of attar of roses. The thieves entered the premises in broad daylight and coolly requested the assistance, which was given, of a number of the firm's unsuspecting employes to load tins of perfume into a waiting motor car. A reward of 50,000 marks is offered for information in this case.

A similar theft was committed on the premises of a German cable factory, where the thieves, for whose apprehension 15,000 marks is offered, got away with 300,000 marks' worth of diamonds used in the firm's processes.

PULITZER AWARDS PLANNED.

Nominations for Prizes Must be Made Before Feb. 1.

Conditions under which prizes and scholarships awarded by Columbia University under the will of Joseph Pulitzer will be made this year were announced last night. Nominations of candidates must be made in writing prior to Feb. 1. A jury or juries chosen by the American Academy of Arts and Letters will award as prizes in letters $1,000 for an American novel; $2,000 for an original American play, performed in New York, and $1,000 for an American biography.

Prizes in journalism to be awarded by a jury or juries chosen from members of the Administrative Board of the School of Journalism include $1,000 for a paper on the improvement of the trial school; a $500 gold medal for the most disinterested and meritorious public service by an American newspaper during the year; $1,000 for the best history of the services rendered the public by the American press during the last year; $500 for the best editorial of that year; $1,000 for the best example of a reporter's work during the year.

Traveling scholarships having a value of $1,500 will be awarded on nomination of the teaching staff of the School of Journalism to three graduates. An annual scholarship to the music student in America deemed the most promising and deserving will be awarded. There will be a similar scholarship in art.

Policeman, Ex-Lieutenant Colonel, Gets $5,000 Stock Exchange Job

Another chapter opens this morning in the life of Harry D. Robinson of 76 Halleck Avenue, Ridgewood, Flushing, cowboy, army officer, and policeman, when he becomes head of the detective force of the New York Stock Exchange at $5,000 a year. It is a chapter typefying in a way the democracy of the American Army during the late war, for it was the recommendation of an Exchange member who served as a private under him when he was a Lieutenant Colonel in France that enabled Robinson to get the position for which he gave up on Saturday the job as a patrolman to which he returned when his army work was done.

Robinson is only 32 years old and was among the youngest wearers of the silver maple leaf in the American Expeditionary Forces. He came to New York after following his early cowboy days with service in Troop K of the 12th Cavalry, and started to study law at New York University. But he found that too confining after his outdoor years and took an examination for the police force.

Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo appointed him a patrolman and assigned him to the mounted squad. As instructor in the school of recruits he taught hundreds of men to ride and to handle horses. Next he got more of the excitement he craved as "broncho buster" for the department. His work attracted the attention of Arthur Woods when he was Commissioner and Woods attached him to his personal staff.

At the outset of the war he asked for leave of absence. This was denied and he resigned to attend the first Plattsburg training camp for officers. There he was commissioned a Captain. Later he was assigned to field service with the 2d Division. A month before the armistice he was made a Major and sent to Paris, where he organized the division of criminal investigation.

In December, 1918, he was promoted to be Provost Marshal and organized the United States Police Department. Its handling of traffic snarls won the admiration of veteran French gendarmes, while the populace looked in amazement at American military policemen directing the bewildering flood of vehicles from the centre of the street instead of from a safe position on the sidewalk. While in charge of this department he policed the interallied games.

When Robinson got back to the States recently he found that new action had been taken upon his request for leave of absence and that it had been granted in lieu of acceptance of his resignation. So he returned to his duties as patrolman in the Flushing precinct at $150 a month.

LABOR PARTY GAINS RAPIDLY IN BRITAIN

MADE AT LIBERALS' COST

Clerks and Professional Men Largely Attracted by Workingmen's Platform.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—A significant development in British politics is the visibly growing strength of the Labor Party, which, if it be continued, is pointed to in political circles as insuring the control of the next Government by that party. In the last three important bye-elections the Labor candidates polled a total of more votes than either of the old parties.

The majority of the Labor Party recruits, the figures indicate, come from the Liberal ranks. Many Liberals admit despair for the future of their party, since it has split into Lloyd George and Asquith factions, and see no chance for the success of Liberal politics except through the Labor Party. Neither of the three elections was in a district where workingmen were in the majority, and it appeared that the "black-coated" classes of clerks and young professional men, along with numerous writers and others classed as intellectuals, had gone over to the workingmen's party.

The features of the Labor platform which appear to attract the middle-class voters are opposition to big armaments and demand for a live-and-let-live policy with regard to the nation's recent enemies.

The coalition Government has fought the recent elections mainly on the war issues, but J. L. Garvin, the editor of The Observer, which is a coalition newspaper owned by Viscount Astor, writes in this connection:

"Whether we like it or not, the situation is so utterly changed from that of December, 1918, that the war issues are almost extinct. So far as they operate they are prejudicial to the coalition. Owing to the obvious and sorry state of the world, the new peace issues dominate, and on these the Government must win of not at all. Whether it is wise and fair or not, the prestige of the victory is an exhausted asset."

"We sincerely trust," it says, "that when Mr. Lloyd George goes to Paris he will remember that he has the whole of the British people behind him in a restraining policy. The electors were misled when they were encouraged to believe that the cost of the war could be recovered from Germany. From a commonsense business point of view the best thing to do is to restore to our enemies the ability to recoup us as much as they can by international trade."

EBERT WELCOMES AGENTS OF HOOVER

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—President Ebert today received Major Goldsmith and Captain Ringland, representatives of Herbert C. Hoover, who are here perfecting arrangements for carrying out plans of the American Food Relief organization for the feeding of European children and others. A delegation of Quakers, representatives of the American Society of Friends, who have volunteered their services in the "Save the Children" movement, also were present at the reception, in the course of which President Ebert referred in complimentary terms to the scope of Mr. Hoover's plans and the manner of their execution and expressed the thanks of Germany for the prospective aid.

Major Goldsmith left Berlin tonight for Hamburg, where he will organize the warehouse system through which American food parcels will be cleared for all sections of Central Europe.

Adele Schreiber, a Majority Socialist and widely known welfare worker, will represent Germany at the first International Congress of Belligerents in Geneva on Jan. 6, when the general European food situation will be canvassed.

Demands for a general wage increase of 25 marks per week are to be made by all the trade unions connected with the Berlin Trade Union Commission, according to the Vassische Zeitung. This advance, it is said, is to offset the high cost of bread and other foods alleged to have been caused by the new scale of prices offered farmers by the Government as a reward for "faithfulness to duty."

Officials of the commission are instructed to appeal to the Labor Ministry to bring about a conference at which representatives of employers may discuss the matter with trade union delegates. Leaders of each union are under orders to demand of employers the 25-mark increase decided upon. Since employers agreed basically to demands for a settlement as to increases in the foodstuffs, the newspaper says, there is a prospect that a final adjustment of the question can be reached.

DISCUSS MILITARIST ACTION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN (via Copenhagen), Jan. 4.—During the holidays the Pan German and Militarist leaders have been discussing what ought to be done concerning the extradition of the Germans on the allied blacklist. Some young hotheads favored making the demand for extradition the occasion of a reactionary demonstration, but it was pointed out by their elders that such a demonstration was impossible, because, though most of the officers might be relied upon, the rank and file could not. Besides, it was argued, the great mass of laborers would oppose it, and, although divided now by party strife, would unite against the Nationalist parties if they suspected them of any action, the consequences of which might tend toward the restoration of monarchism in whatever form.

It was reported, indeed, that the Regular and Independent Socialists had secretly agreed to call a general strike throughout Germany and to take other measures that would defeat any violence on the part of the monarchists at the present moment.

The question was then discussed what might be done in individual cases to protect the accused officers from arrest and extradition. It developed that the Officers' League, which earlier had boasted of its determination to frustrate any attempts at arrest and to defend the liberty of the accused with the lives of many volunteers, had no practical plan to offer.

It was then stated that President Ebert, having seen a list of the accused had privately informed the Supreme Council in Paris that he would be compelled to resign if their extradition was insisted upon; but this rumor is now denied by certain persons who were present at the militarists' councils, and, despite their monarchistic convictions, keep up relations with the Government.

It further developed that many of those who were suspected, or suspected themselves, of having been blacklisted had already fled and were reported hiding in foreign countries, Sweden having received the preference. However, most of these fugitives are minor officers, who can easily hide in Scandinavian towns under various guises, from teachers of languages to riding masters or stablekeepers, but most of the blacklisted higher officers and officials still remain.

Admiral von Tirpitz was not present, but one of his friends, who evidently voiced his sentiments, agreed with a few if not others that the inevitable disgrace must be met with as much dignity as possible, and that therefore those blacklisted should voluntarily submit to trial by foreign courts, thus saving the Fatherland from the disturbances which at the moment, far from aiding the monarchist cause, would only work it irreparable damage.

The same argument was urged in the ex-Kaiser's case, one enthusiast going so far as to predict that the whole world would change its opinion concerning the cause of the war if William voluntarily took the witness chair and simply and manfully told the truth, and nothing but the truth.

This advice did not prevail against the opinion of the majority present, who contended that William's case had already been decided against him in the mind of the Entente. However, remarkably little sympathy was expressed for either the ex-Kaiser or the ex-Crown Prince. The proposal of the Bavarian ex-Crown Prince to surrender himself to an Entente court was almost unanimously disapproved, if only for the reason that it would put others of high station whose position was more precarious in an unfavorable light.

A decision on the subject was deferred until the Entente's demands should become fully known.

DEMAND BELA KUN.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 31.—The High Court, which has been trying Bela Kun, the former Communist dictator of Hungary, on numerous charges in connection with acts performed in the course of his dictatorship, concluded its hearings today. On its findings it will renew its demand upon Austria for the extradition of Bela Kun, whose trial was held in his absence. Testimony was offered to show him guilty of 236 murders, nineteen robberies, and the use of large amounts of money for Communist propaganda.

It develops that the Communist Kerekes Cohn, who was executed last week, left a letter to the Attorney General confessing forty-four murders by his own hand.

VIENNA, Jan. 4.—Dispatches from Budapest give further disclosures of a plot to establish a Soviet proletariat dictatorship. Count Michael Karolyi, former President of the Hungarian National Council and also once named as Provisional President of Hungary, is stated as head of the new Government. One of the chief conspirators, Ladisla Szkmuly, brother of the notorious executioner of the Bela Kun régime, has been arrested and is said to have confessed.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROSTOV-ON-DON, Dec. 22.—Denikin is not beaten. This is the crucial moment of the struggle.

On their side the Bolsheviki have superiority of numbers. They have highly trained and lavishly paid renegade Generals assisted by German mercenaries acting in the capacity of instructors and technical experts. They have also a new and well equipped striking force of cavalry, including Don and Kuban Cossacks, who, having become renegades in the early days of the devil war now have no choice but to fight desperately. Further, the Reds have thrown into the battle line their pretorians—the pampered Lettish and Esthonian Communist and International Units—while as stopgaps and cannon fodder they use a terrorized mass of wretchedly clad mobilized peasantry who are ready to desert at the first opportunity.

This composite force is being driven southward in a supreme effort to secure the Donetz coal basin—Lugansk, Novocherkask, &c. — from Denikin's armies and to force a way back to the Black Sea and the Caucasus.

Against this onset the volunteer army and loyal Cossacks are maintaining a heroic defense which is beginning to show definite promise of success. General Wrangel's energetic measures are producing good effect, and a dangerous cavalry manoeuvre on the part of the Bolsheviki at Kupiansk, aimed at the point of junction of the voluntary army and Don Cossacks, has been thwarted.

Denikin will not be beaten. I have no hesitation in saying that on the issue of this struggle in the bitter Winter weather in Russian stepped depends the stability of Europe. To realize this it is only necessary to consider what would happen if Denikin were defeated. The Bolshevist power, reinforced by the resources of Southern Russia, would turn against Poland and stand a very good chance of pushing a way into exhausted Central Europe, there to overthrow the Governments that are just beginning to find their feet. The consequences of contact between the Bolsheviki and Germany would be varied and fantastic.

And there is another danger. If the Bolshevik swept through to the Caucasus they would have little trouble in overwhelming Azerbaiyan and Georgia and would be at full liberty to exploit the Pan-Islamic movement which they are now assiduously fomenting. Among the Caucasian Hill tribes Persians, Azerbaijan Tartars and Turks are carrying on active propaganda in anticipation of the arrival of the Bolsheviki; and the establishment of Soviet power on the borders of Persia and Turkey would create dangers demanding from Great Britain a far greater expenditure in arms and men than that which so many now grudge to Denikin.

Denikin is fighting Britain's battle. This is very keenly realized by the officers of the British mission here. They wish to communicate to their brother officers at home their very strong conviction that the help lent Denikin by the British Army is not only doing something to pay a debt of honor to Russia for her services in the war, but is in a vital sense defending the interests of the British Empire.

Some of them, who served in India and have observed the Bolshevist intrigues in the Caucasus, are painfully aware of the danger of the Bolsheviki to India and the Middle East. They feel that Denikin's battle is a life and death struggle for civilization and they wish to appeal to their brother officers to use all their influence to prevent the spread of the dangerous illusion that there can be any peace with Lenin and Trotsky, who threaten to ruin all the achievements of the war.

At the present moment, as the Bolsheviki advance southward, they are preceded by a great migration of refugees, workmen, traders, clerks, women and children, abandoning everything and hurrying away in trains, in carts, or on foot. Even the fire brigades escaped from Voronezh when the Bolshevist appeared. Peasants and Cossacks are moving southward in thousands, in whole caravans, with herds of cattle, horses, and camels, as though flying from the terror that walketh by day. None who has seen this war and this great fear can doubt the real nature of Bolshevism.

FIRE ON THE PRETORIA CAUSES $100,000 LOSS

Third Mysterious Ship Blaze on Staten Island Shore in Three Days.

The steamship Pretoria, formerly a Hamburg-American boat and recently turned over to Great Britain by the United States Government after having done duty as a transport, was badly damaged by fire at her Staten Island pier last night. The blaze started in the forward hold just a few hours before the ship was to have sailed with a cargo of mixed freight at dawn this morning.

Members of the crew saw smoke issuing from under the hatch and at once started a fire fight in which they were assisted by six city companies under Deputy Chief William Beggins. The ship lay at a Stapleton pier and there Beggins and his men found much difficulty, as the water frose almost as fast as they could get lines coupled.

There was a great wave of gasses from the hold when men on the vessel got the hatch pried off, and three members of the crew were overcome, but they had been revived by the time the firemen arrived.

Though the origin of the fire, which was extinguished about midnight after doing damage estimated at $100,000, was unknown, speculation was aroused by the fact that this was the third ship fire along the Staten Island shore in three days.

Last Friday the Twin Oaks, an oil-burning vessel belonging to the Oriental Steamship Company, was damaged to the extent of $250,000. Next day fire damaged the Western City, another oil burner, belonging to the same company, to the extent of $70,000. Both vessels lay at piers in the Perich terminal. The exact cause of the fires in them has not been determined.

Crown Jewels of France Will Be Returned to Paris

PARIS, Jan. 5.—The French crown jewels, deposited in a bank at Bordeaux at the end of 1914, when the German advance threatened the capital, are to be brought here and again exhibited at the Louvre.

The historic jewels were taken to Bordeaux by M. Dalimir, State Secretary of Fine Arts, in his own suitcase. They include the Regent diamond, which is today worth more than 15,000,000 francs; the Pitt and the Mazarin diamonds, the watch presented to Louis XV. by the Bey of Algiers and the handle of Napoleon's sword.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Six centuries ago French tribunals were used to dealing with cases like that which a court at Bordeaux will hear this week. Miracles and magic, torture and "black masses," sorcery of the East, a dog whip and a blackjack, a sacred statue that wept tears that multiplied, a priest who got a whipping and a sick woman who became well—these are factors in this case.

A priest accused four men of beating him. But one cannot stop there without telling who the men were, who the priest was, and why they beat him. And one should mention that some of the leaders of the French bar are counsel in the proceedings.

The accused men are M. de Floris, a broker; M. Cardon, Inspector of Police; M. Berton, an orchestra leader, and M. Parantel, a bank cashier. Their accuser is the Abbé Sapounghi, former Grand Vicar of Syria. The four men admit that they beat the priest, and maintain that it was the right thing to do. Their defense is based upon these statements:

Mme. Marie Mesmin of Bordeaux was possessor of "The Virgin Who Wept." But let M. Parantel explain:

"I learned," he says, "that Mme. Mesmin has a little statue of Our Lady of Lourdes which sheds tears. I convinced myself of it by experience. These tears were so abundant that we gathered them in a little vase to be used to cure sick people. They multiplied themselves in the vase, and we had to pour them into a larger vessel. This in turn was filled, and when emptied filled itself again."

Let Mme. Mesmin add to the plot.

"I received at my house in 1914," she says, "M. Sapounghi, Vicar General of Syria. I kept him gratuitously. I even made collections for him and deprived myself to clothe and feed him.

"After having accused the Abbé of improper advances and of trying to monopolize for his profit the miracles of "Our Lady Who Weeps," Mme. Mesmin was confronted one day with an order from the College of St. Donatier directing the priest to remove himself to Nantes. By the same order the magic statue was relegated to a Franciscan convent, where, it is asserted, it wept no more. Mme. Mesmin replaced it with another image, rose colored, which, it is said, exhaled delightful perfumes.

The plot thickens. According to the accused men, from the day the Abbé Sapounghi arrived at Nantes Mme. Mesmin became the object of a persecution trully Satanic. Invisible teeth bit her and left toothprints on her face. The most acute pains tortured her and made life almost unbearable.

"From Nantes," she avers, "Sapounghi pursued me constantly. He tried to drive me crazy. He sent me homicidal thoughts against every one. It got so bad that they had to lock me up. He had a magnetic power over me. I know that when he was in my house he practiced black magic. He put the blood of toads and other foul beasts in a chalice, and he placed this chalice between the breasts of a wax doll representing a nude woman. He put on his priest's garments and went in search of victims."

To put an end to Mme. Mesmin's sufferings de Floris, Cardon, Berton, and Parantel decided one day to go to Nantes to make Sapounghi give up certain records of "Our Lady Who Weeps," to destroy his instruments of magic and torture, and to make him be good. The four crusaders supplied themselves with weapons temporal as well as spiritual. They went to Nantes, and, after early morning mass, at which they prayed that "our hands may not become criminal hands," they went to Sapounghi's house. De Floris carried a dog whip, Parantel had a rubber band loaded with lead pellets, Berton had a grooved wooden paddle, and Cardon took handcuffs along.

According to the accused, the session with Sapounghi lasted three-quarters of an hour. The priest fought vainly. He tried to defend himself with a long knife, but, handcuffed, bruised and beaten, he finally gave up the key of his trunk. The four crusaders found 831 letters praising the statue that wept, as well as a wax figure which bore all the marks, they said, of being the Satanic instrument by means of which Mme. Mesmin had been tortured. Having finished their work, the four left the house.

Witnesses who behind a closed door had heard the cries and noise of the beating found Sapounghi lying in his blood on the floor. And at this precise moment Mme. Mesmin avers that in her room in Bordeaux, hundreds of kilometers away, she ceased to suffer.

Maître Garcon of the Paris bar will present these allegations to the Bordeaux court as justifying the acts of his clients, the four defendants.

GERMAN COAL SCARCITY.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Questions of coal supply are again causing great anxiety, particularly in Berlin, but generally throughout Germany. The Lowe works, which employ nearly 3,000 persons, had to shut down a few days ago, and since then there has not been enough coal to allow them to resume even for one day. The Siemens-Schuckert factory keeps going with difficulty, receiving only a day-to-day supply, and the Great General Electricity Company is in an equally serious position. At the Schwartzkopf works there is only a four days' supply of coal, and it is doubtful if this reserve can be maintained.

Hamburg and Kiel are suffering even more than Berlin. In Kiel the electric works are idle from 8 in the morning until 4 in the afternoon, with the result that manufacturing and transport are itterfered with, and street car service is practically at a standstill. From East Prussia and South Germany come many reports of a similar state of affairs.

EUROPE'S DEMAND HEAVY

HAMPERED IN ARGENTINA

Auto Chamber of Commerce Will Discuss Situation—May Appeal to State Department.

The automobile trade was completely surprised yesterday by the disclosure in THE NEW YORK TIMES that Manuel de Silva Carmo of Oporto had registered in Portugal some and was seeking registry for others of the trade-marks of forty-three American manufacturers of automobiles, with the evident purpose of taking advantage of peculiarities in the patent laws of most of the countries of Continental Europe to compel the majority of makers in this country to carry on their export trade on his terms.

This attempt to get control of much of the export business of many of the principal American auto manufacturers came at a time to cause unusual concern because of the recent great increase in the European demand for cheap and middle-priced American automobiles. Many American manufacturers, it was reported, are just beginning to enter the export field and will probably find themselves severely handicapped by the activities of Carmo, while many other firms already in export business may look forward to expensive lawsuits, unless they are already protected or make a compromise with the enterprising Portuguese.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

The New Year opens with financial and business conditions presenting numerous points of contrast with one year ago. Then the country's mill owners were wondering whether there would be enough orders to keep them busy; now in many lines contracts are pressing so heavily on manufacturers that they cannot handle them fast enough. A year ago the Government's necessities overshadowed all others in the credit market; now the demand from the industries for working capital and the urgings of speculators for accommodation are the most impressive element bearing upon credit. A year ago many thoughtful people were trying to estimate the weeks which would pass before prices for commodities began to fall; at present prices generally are higher than they were when 1919 opened, and the initial signs of the expected decline have not been seen. In fact, the tendency is forward, taking steel, copper, clothing, and building materials as examples. In January of last year the stock market doubtfully moved into lower ground than the month before. So far in the current month quotations have been lifted with a sort of boisterous enthusiasm whose import may not be fully determined.

Considering the matter of contrasts further, the question may well be raised whether 1920, starting off with shortages of goods and cheer among speculators, will not be likely to end with depression and a declining trend of prices. The usual surveys and forecasts of the season have been read and digested. To those who have sought the opinions of bankers and manufacturers, merchants and transportation managers, it has doubtless been apparent that a majority emphasized the problems lying ahead. Not a few of the articles printed in the last week predicted lower quotations for commodities within the year, and suggested that the process would entail a shrinkage of profits. Many presented the same thought, qualified with the prediction that successful efforts at financing the export trade would act to postpone the time of price recessions. Some careful students of the economic field held that measures aimed at the deflation of credit would limit the activities of all sorts of business. There were some who, on the other hand, felt that domestic demands were so great that a year of intense activity, making due allowance for inadequate and frequently insufficient labor, would not fill the depleted stocks and appease the public's appetite for goods. Who has it right?

Certainly there would be no complaint from hard-pressed consumers if prices reacted. It is possible to conceive of a situation arising because of sharp declines in the export movement in which prices would fall heavily as goods accumulated in manufacturers' hands. The foreign demand is so substantial, however, that a gradual rather than a sudden contraction of exports is generally looked for, if any material decline occurs. The deduction frequently drawn from a possible overproduction of a sort to cause quotations to fall is that dividends would suffer and unemployment develop. There is another way of looking at it, however. There would doubtless be a period of less active business, but it might be followed shortly by a reawakening of consumption at home which would set things humming again. The copper market has supplied something of a commentary on such an occurrence as this theoretical one. Last Summer the refiners could not sell much metal at 23 cents a pound. They sold little at 21 and 20 cents and not a great deal at 19 cents in the Autumn. But at 18 cents buyers began to take notice with the result that sales in December were estimated between 450,000,000 and 500,000,000 pounds, the best month of the year, and the price has risen more than a cent since the purchasing movement began. And it is possible, as has been the case in copper, that price recessions among commodities would attract new buying for foreign account.

Starting from the premise that there are not enough goods at present to go round, the conclusion is plain that production is too small. In some industries this is the result of fewer hands at work than a year ago. In others it is the result of more hands than a year ago doing less work. The Census Bureau made a pointed comment on the latter situation in its review of cotton manufacturing during November, drawing a comparison with the same month of 1916, to which the National City Bank refers in its January letter. With an increase of about 5 per cent. in machinery in use and an even larger increase of employes on the pay roll, the consumption of raw cotton last November was nearly 16 per cent. less than in November three years before. The shrinkage was mainly caused by reducing the work week from fifty-four to forty-eight hours. Production of cotton goods per unit of labor has fallen, consequently prices have advanced and are still tending forward. The shortening of working hours has not been general in the industries, yet the complaint is widely heard by employers that labor does not produce as actively as a year or two or three years ago. In some quarters the feeling prevails that the correction of this unfavorable situation will supply one of the most important efforts of 1920.

The slogan, "A full day's work for a day's pay," is heard in many places. The eight-hour day in mills where ten hours was considered fair before the war is receiving less worrisome thought on the part of employers than the fact that an eight-hour day frequently does not mean eight hours of work.

It is becoming more, rather than less, difficult to acquire a true perspective of underlying conditions in Europe. One may read in foreign dispatches that England is in dire need of credits in America in order to do her part in reconstruction on the Continent. One may read elsewhere that England is not thinking of borrowing here because her resources are adequate. Belgium is still impoverished in one survey; in another she has made wonderful progress in recovery. France is burdened by her great obligations; France is rapidly throwing off her burden and depression. Germany is filled with people who will not work; Germany is getting on her feet because her workers have voluntarily elected to labor harder than they used to. All of which is puzzling to the man in the street and not entirely conducive to making fertile the investment field which may be called upon shortly to absorb securities representing loans to foreign borrowers.

MANY BANKS ADD TO CAPITAL IN 1919

Growth of Business Results in Expansion Which Reaches Total of $34,020,000.

SURPLUSES ALSO INCREASED

Mergers of Several Houses Give Greater Banking Facilities to the City.

The great increase in the volume of business handled by New York banks in 1919, and the even greater volume offered to them, part of which had to be refused because of insufficient facilities to transact it, made it patent early in the year that many banks would have to expand if they were to serve their clients properly.

This was appreciated both by the banks and by the commercial and industrial interest they served, and before the year had gone far a number of additions to capital and surplus were announced. There also were several consolidations of institutions, all of which gave added facilities to the general banking position of New York.

The additions to capital among the larger banks in the city during the year totalled more than $34,000,000, while additions to surplus were probably greater. The amount a bank may extend in loans to an individual or corporation is based entirely on the capital and surplus of the lending bank. So, too, the quantity of bankers' acceptances a bank may invest its funds in is regulated by the size of its capital and surplus accounts. In fact, the whole list of activities in which a bank may indulge is governed by these two items. Thus, with business ever moving into greater proportions, the expansion of banks was of paramount importance.

Bankers Trust Co.	Dec. 15	20,000,000	5,000,000
Equitable Trust	Dec. 24	12,000,000	6,000,000
Chase National	Dec. 26	15,000,000	5,000,000
Total increase			$34,020,000

The greatest increase in capital announced was that of the Equitable Trust Company, which, by vote of its stockholders on Dec. 24, raised its capital from $6,000,000 to $12,000,000. This company made a substantial addition to its capital in the Spring of 1917, when the item was advanced from $3,000,000 to $6,000,000; but so great was the pressure of business that it was again necessary to double the figure.

The Bankers Trust Company and the Chase National Bank each added $5,000,000 to capital, the former Dec. 15, and the latter Dec. 26. Next in importance to these changes was the doubling of capital by the Chatham and Phenix National Bank, June 10.

An addition of $2,000,000 was made to the capitalization of the Liberty National Bank Oct. 17, bringing the figure up to $5,000,000. This change was made necessary by the absorption by the Liberty National of the Scandinavian Trust Company a short time before. The Asia Banking Corporation, one of the relatively new international trade banks, also added $2,000,000 to capital, doubling the former amount Sept. 2. The International Banking Corporation, on Nov. 12, added $1,750,000 to capital.

Both the Irving National Bank and the Irving Trust Company found it expedient to increase capital. The trust company increased its capital to the extent of $750,000 Feb. 28, making the full amount $2,250,000. The Irving National added $1,500,000 to its capital June 20, bringing the account up to $6,000,000.

There were several important increases in surplus account, the largest being the two additions of $5,000,000 each, made by the National Bank of Commerce, as of Jan. 2 and Oct. 1 respectively.

Mergers of banks were fairly numerous. Probably the most interesting was the proposed consolidation of the Bank of the Manhattan Company with the Merchants' National Bank. This has been recommended by the Boards of Directors of both banks, and is to be acted upon soon by the shareholders. Before announcement of the proposal, the Merchants' National Bank had added $1,000,000 to its capital March 31, while the Manhattan Company had taken over the Bank of Long Island in November. The Manhattan Company had owned control of the Bank of Long Island since 1910, but not until last November was it decided to operate the institutions as a unit. If the stockholders of the Manhattan Company and the Merchants' National ratify the merger proposal the consolidated bank will be one of the largest in the city, with something like fifteen branches.

Other consolidations consummated included the purchase and absorption by the Irving Trust Company of the National City Bank of Brooklyn, July 14, and the Sherman National Bank, May 24. On Sept. 19 the American Trust Company took over the Queens County Trust Company, and since then has operated the offices of the latter as branches.

FUTURE OIL SUPPLY NEEDED BY COUNTRY

Geological Survey Director Says We Must Conserve Resources or Enter Foreign Fields.

FAVORS LATTER METHOD

Thinks Government Should Support Efforts for World Exploration, Development, and Production.

Drastic action must be taken to assure the United States of a future oil supply either by conserving the supply in this country against foreign encroachment or by encouraging American capital to enter foreign fields to assist in their development, thus assuring an additional supply of oil for our needs, according to George Otis Smith, Director of the United States Geological Survey. In a paper which is to be read at the February meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, he calls attention to the fact that the consumption of oil is rapidly increasing and that additional heavy demands will be made upon supply with the advent of an American merchant marine. The encouragement of American capital in foreign fields he believes offers the better solution and holds that the Government should give its moral support to such undertakings.

"The position of the United States in regard to oil can best be characterized as precarious. Using more than one-third of a billion barrels a year, we are drawing not only from the underground pools, but also from storage, and both of these supplies are limited. Last year the contribution direct from our wells was 356,000,000 barrels, or more than one-twentieth of the amount estimated by the survey geologists as the content of our underground reserve; we also drew from storage 24,000,000 barrels, or nearly one-fifth of what remains above ground. Even if there be no further increase in output due to increase demand, is not this a pace that will kill the industry? Even though we glory in the fact that we contributed 80 per cent. of the great quantity needed to meet requirements of the Allies during the war, is not our world leadership more spectacular than safe? And even though the United States may today be the largest oil producer and though it consumes nearly 75 per cent. of the world's output of oil, it is not a minute too early to take counsel with ourselves and call the attention of the American geologists, engineers, capitalists and legislators to the need of an oil supply for the future.

Merchant Marine Is Factor.

"A most serious aspect of our oil problem presents itself when we consider the entry of the United States as a real factor in the shipping of the world—when we picture the return of the American flag to the seven seas. Any nation which today aspires to large part in world commerce imposes upon itself an oil problem, for the future freedom of both the sea and the air will be defined in terms of oil supply. The new demand of our shipping program alone involves fuel oil in quantities equivalent to nearly one-half of the present domestic output, and, unless there is some corresponding decrease in other demands, this new requirement must be met with an increase in production of crude oil of nearly 200,000,000 barrels. How can such quantities of oil be supplied? Mr. Requa's earlier estimate of 52,000,000 barrels as the annual gain in output needed to meet the ordinary increase in consumption and to offset the expected decline in old wells would involve a task laid upon our oil companies, in their exploration and development activity, of bringing in a million-barrel new production each week. How can the oil fields of the United States maintain such a curve of new production?

"Fuel oil, gasoline, lubricating oil—for these three essentials are there no practical substitutes or other adequate sources? The obvious answer is in terms of cost; the real answer is in terms of man power. On land and on sea, fuel oil is preferred to coal because it requires fewer firemen; and back of that, in the man power required in its mining, preparation, and transportation, the advantage on the side of oil is even greater. So, too, the substitute for gasoline in internal-combustion engines, whether alcohol or benzol, means higher cost and larger expenditure of labor in its production. While we have great reserves of oil shales as an independent source of fuel oil, gasoline and lubricating oil, it is necessary to consider the practical contingency suggested by Mr. Requa, that to develop this supply on a scale comparable in output with our present oil supply would require an industrial organization greater than our entire coal-mining organization. Plainly our country cannot afford to support another such army of workers until we reach another stage in our industrial development.

"The estimate by the United States Geological Survey of the oil remaining in the ground is of necessity subject to criticism as speculative—it must contain errors in the allowances made for isolated and undeveloped fields—yet the excesses of unexpected yield in one region will largely be balanced by deficiencies in another. Indeed, as has been suggested by the Chief Geologist of the Survey, if happily the estimate of reserve proves too low, this unpredicted abundance would surely raise the consumption rate. On the whole, he believes it fair to consider the official estimate of 6,500,000,000 bbls. as conservative and 8,000,000,000 as an improbable maximum. The difference between these two estimates of reserves represents only four years' supply, even at the present rate of consumption.

Future Supply Methods.

"Two methods of handling the problem of a future oil supply suggest themselves: either reserve the domestic oil fields for American development and thus prevent foreign acquisition of what is needed at home, or encourage our capital to enter foreign fields to assist in their development, thus insuring an additional supply of oil for our needs. The one method harks back to the 'Chinese wall' period, the other expresses the 'open door' policy. At present the United States Government follows neither method; the British Government has adopted both.

"American geologists, American engineers, American drillers, and American rigs and supplies have been utilized in British oil exploration and we may well reciprocate by adopting the British policy of encouraging the acquisition by its nationals of petroleum supplies in foreign fields. American capital as well as American engineering should be encouraged to help develop the new fields and so do its part in insuring the continuance of this source of power for future generations at home and abroad.

"The part of the Government is to give moral support to every effort of American business to expend its circle of activity in oil production so that it will be co-extensive with the new field of American shipping. This may mean worldwide exploration, development and producing companies, financed by United States capital, guided by American engineering, and safeguarded in policy because protected by the United States Government. Thus only can our general welfare be promoted and the future supply of oil be assured for the United States."

The Paragon Refining Company

Toledo, Ohio

6% Equipment Trust Certificates

Dated December 1, 1919. Due serially $37,500 semi-annually beginning June 1, 1920.

Interest payable June 1st and December 1st at the Guardian Savings & Trust Company, Trustee, without deduction for the normal Federal Income Tax not in excess of 4%, which the Company may be required to pay at the source.

Redeemable as a whole or in part at any interest date upon four weeks' notice at 102½ and accrued interest.

We direct attention to the following salient features quoted from a letter addressed to us by Mr. C. A. Ulsh, President of The Paragon Refining Company.

1. These Equipment Trust Certificates are secured by first mortgage lien on 377 new tank cars of M. C. B. A. construction, costing $1,013,250.
2. The title to these cars is vested in the Guardian Savings and Trust Company of Cleveland, Trustee, under agreement and lease with The Paragon Refining Company.
3. Net tangible assets of The Paragon Refining Company, exclusive of good will, were $6,460,553.19 on October 31st, 1919.
4. Net current assets of The Paragon Refining Company were $3,070,515.84 on October 31st, 1919.
5. Net average annual earnings of The Paragon Refining Company for three years ending October 31st, 1919, are at the rate of approximately eleven times the interest charges of this issue.
6. The Equipment Trust Certificates are to be paid off in equal semi-annual installments of $37,500 each, beginning June 1, 1920.

We offer these certificates when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to the approval of our counsel.

Granada Oil Corporation was organized to acquire and develop extensive leases and concessions in Colombia, S. A., showing oil formations and seepages, favorably located in the Caribbean oil fields now attracting international interest, the production of these fields having been estimated at 12,928,955 barrels per year by Mr. Edward L. Doheny, although as recently as 1916 oil was not commercially produced in this region:

THE LAS LAJAS PROPERTY, 17,500 acres in the center of holdings of the Carib Syndicate, Ltd., and containing heavy surface indications.

THE CANALETE PROPERTY, 12,500 acres in a section containing the most extensive oil seepages in Colombia.

THE LOPEZ PROPERTY, approximately 4,500 acres lying about midway between holdings of the Gulf Corporation of Pittsburgh and the Carib Syndicate, Ltd.

THE JOBO PROPERTY, 5,500 acres exhibiting some of the most remarkable oil seepages in the Caribbean field.

Granada Oil Corporation will be one of the most substantial holders of oil lands in the new Caribbean oil field, its leases totaling some 130,000 acres.

The organizers of the corporation have made their selections as a result of years of study by their engineers, who were among the first on the ground, and believe they have secured properties amongst the choicest blocks in Colombia both with a view to their oil-bearing value and accessibility.

The proceeds of this issue are for treasury purposes only and will provide ample cash for development and exploration of the properties and the acquisition of such further holdings as may seem advantageous to the corporation.

EXPECT NO CHANGE IN STEEL PRICES

Judge Gary's Statement Interprated as Adherence to Policy of Keeping Quotations Down.

MILLS TRYING TO CATCH UP

Probably Will Be Working at 90 to 100 Per Cent. of Capacity in March or April.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 5.—While the holiday season brought a lull in contracting for steel products, jobbers and manufacturing consumers have been searching for spot and prompt deliveries of small lots. The steadily increasing production of the last few weeks, broken only temporarily by the coal shortage, evidently has not relieved the situation as to supplies.

As a rule price is a secondary consideration with the buyers who are now combing the market for such tonnages of prompt material as they can find, while with many sellers price is the primary consideration, and no concern is felt as to the impression likely to be created by the asking of prices far in excess of cost plus an ordinary margin of profit. Producers who are conservative in this respect are making warm friends.

Any doubt that may have existed as to the continuance of the United States Steel Corporation's policy of holding its prices down to the March 31 or Industrial Board schedule has been dispelled by the statement of Judge E. H. Gary, made after last Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Directors. The statement of the Industrial Board and of representatives of the steel industry last March, in announcing the "stabilized prices," was that buyers should not expect to purchase at lower prices during the year 1919, and while the Steel Corporation and certain independents have not departed from that schedule to date there was no definite statement as to the continuance of that attitude thereafter. Judge Gary's statement now indicates that the adherence is to be of indefinite duration, or until entirely new conditions arise.

Estimates are being made as to how much time will be required for the trade to catch up in steel, many setting the time at six months, or to July 1, when midsummer dullness usually overspreads the trade. Jobbers are practically sold out, stocks being far below normal. Manufacturing consumers have in the majority of cases used up the stocks they carried as a normal reserve, and in some cases have had to curtail their operations, thus falling behind in deliveries.

The steel industry is operating at about 80 per cent. of capacity, which means production of finished rolled steel at the rate of about 575,000 gross tons a week. Production in the fore part of last September was about 600,000 tons a week, while capacity is somewhat in excess of 700,000 tons. The urgent shortage of steel products at the present time is several hundred thousand tons, while simply to build up stocks to normal would mean more than a million tons. Expectations are that mills will be operating at between 90 and 100 per cent. by March or April. A few mills have done 85 per cent. or better in the last month.

Pig Iron Market Is Quiet.

The pig iron markets have continued quiet in the last week, after the excited buying movement which played out recently, and which sent prices up about $11 a ton over their average level of last June. As all the regularly operative furnaces are in blast, or are scheduled to blow in as soon as possible, and as blast furnace outputs are not curtailed to any extent by labor shortage or labor inefficiency, as is the case with steel mills, a heavy production of pig iron is assured, and by the extent that steel mill operations are curtailed there should be so much more pig iron for other consumers. There is little prospect of any declines in pig iron prices in the near future, but a resumption of the excited advance of before the holidays is improbable. Twelve blast furnaces, with a prospective output of about 2,000,000 tons a year, are being built.

About 90 per cent. of the sheet mills are now in operation, the leading interest recording 92 per cent. Strike conditions have disappeared in this district, but owing to the holidays there has been quite a hole made in production. This was the case last week, when the plants closed from Wednesday till the end of the week. However, it can be said that on the whole sheet operations are increasing, and there will be practically full operation in the next week or two. Tonnages are not entirely normal, but they are much better than at any time for four months, or since before the strike began. Many new mills will begin to be a factor in the second quarter of the new year, and by the time the third quarter rolls around their influence will be felt in the market.

Sheet producers who have their own steel mills are well supplied with sheet bars, with very few exceptions. Producers who have regular mill connections are getting moderately good supplies, and so far as known the steel is all at the regular or March 21 price of $42. One can only get sheets at the $42 price by being a regular customer of a sheet bar producer, and even then there is no positive assurance of the price remaining at $42 after tonnages now in arrears are cleaned up. Some mills would willingly pay premiums for moderate-sized lots of sheet bars for early delivery, excepting to charge a larger premium on sheets sold against such tonnages, and there is also an occasional case of a sheet consumer seeking sheet bars in the open market with the object of having them converted into sheets at a fixed spread between the sheet bars and sheets.

The sheet market has been quieter in the last week, which is the invariable rule at holiday time. Considerable publicity has been given to transactions at fancy premiums, $5 to $10 a ton, when as a matter of fact the total volume of such business probably has been relatively unimportant. There has been much business put through at small premiums, $1 to $2 a ton, even for deliveries running through the first quarter.

The local iron and steel scrap market has been quiet the last week as regards transactions, the condition apparently reflecting the fact that it has been the holiday season rather than any overbought condition on the part of consumers. The steel interests as a rule have made purchases for deliveries over 60 to 90 days, but that is hardly the normal-average time, and the tonnage, according to some estimates, is such that supplementary purchases will be needed. The buying by customers has been conservative in point of tonnage, and in keeping with minimum rather than maximum expectations as to requirements. The great matter before all producers is increasing operations and working up to normal rates of production.

A sale of a round tonnage of plates, running into four figures, has just been made at 3.25c, Pittsburgh, a new high price on such a tonnage. Both buyer and seller were located west of Pittsburgh. It is understood that in the East 3.25c, Pittsburgh, has been common for several days on small lots for prompt shipment.

The demand for plates that has sent the price up so sharply of late is primarily due to the imperative need of storage facilities for oil, time being a vital element since money is lost by delay. So far as reported, all the high-priced plate tonnage of late has been in plates for oil tanks. Freight car builders, as a rule, will not pay more than the regular price of 2.90c.

There is a fair running demand for small lots of prompt billets, the buyers being willing to pay premiums of a few dollars a ton, and in general openhearth billets command more premium than Bessemer. In many cases the prospective buyers are rolling mill interests in position to roll the billets into merchant bars, which command as much as 3.00c. against the regular market for 2.25c., but of course only in small lots and for prompt shipment. There is not much inquiry in the open market for sheet bars, but it is understood that there is much latent demand, and if sheet bars were offered there are many quarters in which they could be sold at substantial premiums above the regular price of $42, probably up to $50.

With the still higher prices going for plates, slabs are in greater demand. A sale of a round tonnage of slabs, running into four figures, has been made at $43, Pittsburgh, or $1 a ton over last reported sale, and Bessemer slabs are now quoted at $41 to $43, according to delivery. Open-hearth slabs have brought up to about $45 for the earliest delivery.

Pipe mill operations have been increasing steadily and rather rapidly in the last few weeks, but output is still far below normal, being between 35 and 70 per cent. of capacity. Production is expected to be attained before March or April. In oil-country goods the famine has been increasing steadily, this condition starting with a definite shortage at least six months ago.

Most of the tin plate mills, including all of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, were closed several days during Christmas week, and therefore lost seven turns. Better operations were reported this week, however, the leading interest running about 84 per cent. of its mills, and the independents a little better than that. Prospects for tin plate production in the first quarter of this year are excellent, as far as mill conditions are concerned, although there may be some shortage of steel. Practically all the tin plate business for the first half of 1920 is closed, except second quarter contracts with jobbers, which will be made in March. The market is quotable at the regular $7 price, but early deliveries are difficult to arrange on new orders.

Factors of Stability and Recent Development of

The Otis Steel Company

(Listed on the New York Stock Exchange)

In continuous and successful operation since 1873, The Otis Steel Company recently rounded out its manufacturing facilities, strengthened its position as to raw materials and effected substantial economies by acquisition of the Cleveland Furnace Company.

The Otis Steel Company has a preferred position for the marketing of its products through its central location in the "Cleveland District," one of the best markets in the country for finished steel products of the Otis type.

Annual average earnings for the three fiscal periods ended December 31, 1918, were equivalent to $9.75 a share on the present common stock, after providing for Federal Taxes and 7% dividends on the preferred stock.

Par value all three classes $10 per share.

The company has no bonded debt, and its properties are all free and clear with the exception of one unmatured lien for $47,500 which will be paid on maturity.

It owns and operates two factories, one at 867 Broadway, Boston, and the other, the recently purchased Frontier Chocolate Company plant, at North Tonawanda, N. Y.

A third factory, of concrete, seven stories high, is under construction on the lot adjoining the Boston factory. With this addition the company will be in position to double its output.

Sales between Jan. 1 and Nov. 15, 1919, were in excess of $2,000,000. Net earnings for 1919 will be about $313,000 before taxes, or more than five times the First Preferred dividend. Earnings for 1920 are estimated at $500,000 before taxes.

The managers of this company are Boston men of wide business experience whose methods have been successful.

A cumulative sinking fund of 15 per cent of annual net earnings after First Preferred and Preferred dividends and taxes has been created for the benefit of this issue.

We offer this stock, if, as and when issued.

Price $10 per share and accrued dividend

Purchasers of First Preferred stock have the privilege of subscribing for the common stock at $9 per share on the basis of one share of common for each 40% of par value of First Preferred stock purchased.

All legal details in connection with this issue of the First Preferred stock have been passed upon by Messrs. Putnam, Putnam & Bell of Boston, for the underwriters, and by Messrs. Davis, Peabody & Brown, for the company.

Penn Central Light & Power Company's Transmission Lines

The success of any well-managed electric light and power property is dependent upon the population, number and variety of industries and their stability in the territory served.

Blair, Cambria, Huntingdon and Mifflin counties, in the State of Pennsylvania, which are bisected by the transmission lines of the Penn Central Light and Power Co., are among the richest in Pennsylvania.

The natural resources of the territory consists of Coal, Lumber, Iron, Stone Quarries, Clay and Sand for Brick-making and Glass. These, coupled with diversified manufactories in practically all lines, assure a stability of population and excellent earning capacity for the workers. The population shows a consistent and steady gain.

PROTECTING OIL RESOURCES

The overproduction of oil, the Oil & Gas Division of the Texas Railroad Commission has declared "a form of wholesale waste," and to decrease the fire hazard, which is very great when derricks are built almost to touch, the Commission has issued a rule providing "no well for oil or gas shall hereafter be commenced nearer than 200 feet to or adjoining tract, or farm, and no well shall be drilled nearer than 100 feet to any property line."

The Chief Supervisor of the Department holds the rule to be the most effective that could be adopted to conserve the oil and gas resources of Texas.

NEW PRICE BOOSTS SHOW 1920 DEMAND

A ROAD OIL SHORTAGE

Cement Oversold for January—Glaziers Strike—Brick Advances to $23 Wholesale.

Building material price advances of today foreshadow the strength of the 1920 construction market as being somewhat greater than end-of-the-year outlook seemed to indicate.

It is not usual for building material price changes to occur with any market strength or unanimity in January. But if indications count for anything at all the price changes upward reported this week are only partial steps to what is to develop within the next ninety days.

Actual price advances deal with B. double window glass, polished plate glass, both under and over five square feet. The discounts have been shrunk in the former case to 80 per cent. off jobbers' lists from 81 per cent. and in the latter commodity from 72 per cent. to 70. Wood lath advanced another $2 a thousand, making the current price $20, and even that level is nominal. Plaster board moved up 3 cents each and manufacturers advanced the price of common hydrate lime $1 a ton, which corresponds with the dealers' delivered price change on job, New York.

What practically amounts to price advances, but which can only be classed as stiffening market conditions, applies to nearly all kinds of face brick, Portland cement and some kinds of lumber, especially in timbers. There is practically no one in the brick market who does not expect a $5 markup in this commodity before another 60 days.

But in every case where the view is sought from dealers there is strenuous opposition expressed to any further price promotion on the ground that any further advances in this basic building material will narrow the buying market this coming spring. With the dealers' yards and docks almost bare Saturday, manufacturers had twenty-two barge loads of brick here in market. The wholesale prices of common brick advanced to $23 a thousand Saturday morning. In delivered prices add the usual charge for trucking and handling plus 15 per cent.

The holders say that the Captains are being paid more than a third of what they were paid last January and the towage costs 60 per cent. more. The river is closed to navigation, the brick handlers are preparing to force further wage advances here as well as up river while the market is extremely scant on brick.

Shortage of road oil supply is forcing further pressure on cement producers, who are withholding price advances now, it is said, mainly because of fear of competition from outside of the zones normally supplying this market. Many firms have refused to accept contracts at present prices, many have called in their salesmen and all are manufacturing as near to full capacity as possible.

Prices of building materials delivered on job sites, New York, at present, as compared with those of a year ago this month, tell something of the changing characteristics of the market, according to The Dow Service Daily Building Reports today. Most of these changes have recently occurred. The outlook for a general further price advancement is clear. In the last year prices advances in building materials are here shown to have been moderate for the most part.

The threatened walkout of the glass glaziers and cutters of Greater New York took place on New Year's Eve. The demands of the men as to wages have been agreed upon, and they have won the approval of the employers with regard to the eight-hour day. But the hitch comes in the matter of affiliation of the glass cutters with the glaziers' union.

It appears that a very small percentage of the actual business done by the New York jobbers in glass goes through the hands of the glaziers. The major portion of the glass jobber's business in New York is shipped out into the contiguous territory.

In no other jobbing centre in the country are the cutters affiliated with the glaziers, and if the men win their point here the arrangement would bring about a most inequitable condition, according to the leading distributers, who say they would not be able under such circumstances to compete with jobbing houses near enough to the city to do business here. It is further stated that the entire glass jobbing industry would be placed in the control of a small body of artisans.

STATE FRANCHISE TAX MAKES RECORD RETURN

More Than $16,022,658 Collected Since July, Comptroller Travis Reports.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—Business prosperity and an increased rate added last year to the corporation franchise tax law are responsible for the record receipts collected for the second quarter ended Dec. 31, Controller Travis reported tonight. Since July 1, more than $16,022,658 has been received, about $3,491,000 more than during the corresponding period last year. Before June 30 next, it is expected that more than $40,000,000 will have been collected. Of the total receipts to date, $8,517,367 came from business and $7,505,291 from other corporations.

The corporation tax law affords the State the largest single source of revenue and is collected at the least expense. Last year the so-called manufacturing and mercantile statute was amended to include all business corporations other than real estate, public service, insurance and moneyed companies. The rate also was increased from 3 to 4½ per cent.

Originally, under the first corporation tax law of 1881, these business companies were practically exempted from the payment of any but a nominal tax for the purpose of attracting their location in this State. Now the State imposes an annual tax that exempts their property locally, sharing one-third of the receipts with the community where the corporation is located.

Another amendment, effective this year for the first time, narrows the scope of exemption allowed on personalty. Formerly mercantile and manufacturing companies could not be assessed locally on account of machinery and equipment affixed to the building if such fixtures would not pass from grantor to grantee. Now only the movable fixtures used for trade or manufacture, and not essential for the support of a building, are exempted.

Bonds or Stocks?

Bonds are usually the more desirable because of priority of interest and principal.

The success of a company is, however, usually reflected in its stock dividends, which often makes stocks more desirable.

We suggest Convertible Bonds that may be changed into stock at the option of the holder. Some yield as high as 7%.

INCOME TAX GUIDE TO AID THE PUBLIC

Internal Revenue Bureau Authorizes Series of Instructions for 3,000,000 Persons.

NORMAL RATES REDUCED

Cut Down to 4% on First $4,000 and 8% Above That—Surtax Remains Unchanged.

In the hope of avoiding most of the difficulties which have beset income taxpayers, there has been prepared with the approval of the Bureau of Internal Revenue a series of short articles telling how to make out an income tax return for 1919, when and where to file it, and what to do in case of encountering unusual obstacles. Some 3,000,000 taxpayers, it is estimated, will file returns for 1919 on or before March 15 next, and such of these as have been perplexed in previous years are urged to make notes for their own guidance from the series of articles as they appear in the newspapers.

Particularly is the series designed to help the thousands who last year with unquestioned honesty of purpose filed an incorrect return. Many of these have become claimants for refunds from the Government, while others in large numbers now face demands for additional remittances because of some inadvertence or omissions in filling out the blanks.

"Probably the most important change affecting the average taxpayer," says the first article of the series, "is the normal rate, the exemptions of $1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for married persons remaining the same as for 1918. The normal rate for 1919 is 4 per cent. on the first $4,000 of net income above the exemptions and 8 per cent. on the remaining net income. The normal rate for 1918 was 6 and 12 per cent. respectively. This applies to every citizen and resident of the United States.

"Alien nonresidents receiving income from sources within the United States are taxed to the full 8 per cent. on the income from such sources.

"The surtax rates, which range from 1 per cent. on the amount of net income between $5,000 and $6,000 to 65 per cent. on the amount of income in excess of $1,000,000, remain unchanged.

"The tax, as in 1919, may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four installments, the first of which is due on or before March 15, the second on or before June 15, the third on or before September 15, and the fourth on or before December 15. The first installment must accompany the filing of the return. The period for filing is from January 1 to March 15. Heavy penalties are provided for persons who fail or 'willfully refuse' to file their return and pay the tax within the time prescribed.

"Forms for making returns may be obtained from offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors, post offices, and banks. If your income for 1919 was $5,000 or less, ask for Form 1040 A. If it was more than $5,000 ask for Form 1040. Returns must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives or has his principal place of business."

SUGGEST AMENDMENTS TO STATE BANKING LAW

Sponsors Would Extend Powers of Foreign Bank Agencies, Says Supt. Skinner.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—The Legislature of 1920 may be called on to consider certain amendments to the State Banking law. In his forthcoming annual report to the Legislature, Superintendent of Banks George I. Skinned refers to two suggested amendments, although he says he is not prepared to submit or approve them at this time.

"Our institutions," says the Superintendent, "may receive deposits in foreign countries, while foreign banking corporations are only permitted to maintain agencies in this State for the exercise of limited powers and are not permitted to receive deposits. It has been urged that, if New York City is to become the money mart of the world and this nation is to maintain a foremost position in international commerce, the restrictions imposed upon the agencies of foreign banking corporations are provincial and will lead to retaliation. It would be difficult without giving offense to discriminate between the banking institutions of foreign nations, although it would seem unwise to permit banking corporations having their domicile in countries where even the Governments themselves may not be stable to receive deposits in this State. If such an amendment is at any time deemed necessary it should, moreover, require any foreign banking corporation receiving deposits in this State to have at least as much capital and surplus as we require our own institutions to have, if they are permitted to maintain branch offices abroad.

"Our present statute only permits a bank or trust company to establish and maintain a branch office within the State in the same city in which the principal office of the institution is located, yet almost every large city is surrounded by small suburban villages having an independent corporate existence and in need of banking facilities, although the success of an independent institution would be extremely problematical. It has therefore been suggested that an institution with adequate capital be allowed to maintain branch offices in other municipalities than that in which its principal office is located. If such branch office were located within twenty-five miles of its main office, as close supervision could be exercised over its condition and management as if it were within the boundaries of the same city. If any such legislation should be enacted, it should, however, protect existing independent institutions for a strong institution should not be allowed to encroach upon a territory that is being well served by an independent institution. Any amendment of this character should, therefore, in my judgment, provide that such a branch office should not be established in any place where it would come in to competition with an independent institution after its establishment."

War Service Unit Closes Hotel.

After two years' service Unit 5 of the New York War Camp Community Service has closed with a record of giving accommodations to more than 2,000,000 men of the Army and Navy. Unit 5 was the old Earlington Hotel, in West Twenty-seventh Street. The building has been sold for office purposes. In addition to the men of the United States forces, Unit 5 took care of many bodies of visiting troops.

WHITE IN PARLEY WITH MINERS' CHIEFS

Arrives at Columbus to Attend Labor Convention Opening Today.

STRIKE SETTLEMENT UP

Officials Will Ask Indorsement of Their Action in Accepting Plan.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 4.—John P. White, selected by President Wilson as the miners' representative on the Commission of Three to negotiate a final settlement of the wage controversy between miners and operators of the bituminous coal fields of the country, arrived here unexpectedly tonight to attend the international convention of the United Mine Workers of America.

The convention will convene at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, and was called by Acting President John L. Lewis, so that officials of the organization could make an official report to the miners of the country on the settlement of the recent coal strike. The convention will be attended by 2,100 delegates and is expected to remain in session three or four days.

After greeting delegates from all parts of the country, most of whom he is able to call by their first names, White conferred with Acting President Lewis, Secretary William Green and other officials of the organization, relative to the convention and plans for the hearing before the President's commission in Washington on Jan. 12.

White said he did not come to participate in the deliberations of the convention, but was here merely as a spectator.

Up to this time White has had no part in the present controversy. He resigned as International President of the organization in 1917 to accept a place as labor adviser in the Fuel Administration. He served seven years as chief of the miners' organization, having been elected to this position at the Columbus convention in January, 1910.

Opening of the convention tomorrow will be featured by the reading of a joint report of the President and Secretary, giving full information on all the negotiations between the National Policy Committee and executive officers, with the operators and Government officials, since the Cleveland convention in September, when the officials were authorized to call a strike, on Nov. 1 if a settlement could not be effected.

This convention required the reconvening of the convention before a contract could be signed, but the entrance of the Federal Government into the negotiations has placed a different aspect on the situation. Officials have agreed to abide by the findings of the President's commission as to whether miners shall be entitled to more than the 14 per cent. advance allowed when they returned to work Dec. 10, and it is expected that the convention will endorse the action of the leaders.

Attorney General Palmer has been asked by the United Mine Workers to put a stop to alleged violations by operators in six States of the terms of the agreement which was made with the Government, and which brought to an end the recent strike of soft coal miners. William Green, Secretary of the miners, said tonight that the violations were most numerous in Alabama, West Virginia, Eastern Kentucky, Tennessee, Colorado, and some parts of Illinois.

In the States enumerated, Green said, many of the operators had told miners that they could not return to work unless they resigned from the union. He said the miners were told that if they left the union they would be given work at the 14 per cent. increase.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 4.—Declaring that there is much dissatisfaction with the constitution of the commission appointed by President Wilson to settle the controversy between coal operators and miners, representatives of five groups of public utilities of Indiana, in a petition sent to the President today, suggested enlargement of the commission in the interest of the public.

The petition was the result of a meeting in Indianapolis of gas, electric light and power, traction, water and telephone company representatives, who declare that owing to the increased cost of labor and material it has been necessary to raise rates repeatedly in the last few years, and that if further advances in the price of coal result from the decisions of the Coal Commission this burden also must be assumed by the public in the form of higher rates or deteriorated service.

SAYS STEEL OUTPUT IS CUT

Union Representative Says Present Production Is One-half Normal.

"The present production in the steel industry is under 50 per cent., with approximately 180,000 strikers out," declared Joseph D. Cannon, New York representative of the National Committee for Organizing Iron and Steel Workers, in a statement issued from the offices at 1,531 Broadway yesterday.

"In Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cleveland, Youngstown, Wheeling, Chicago, and other steel strike centres production is far below normal," he said.

"With the United States Steel Company's unfilled orders totaling 7,500,000 tons, and with inquiries for rails footing up to 1,000,000 tons, and the practical impossibility of securing steel, the price of this commodity will soar to almost unbelievable prices with the next month or two," he continued. "Despite Judge Gary's recent statement that there will be no rise in prices laid down by the Industrial Board last March, the independents are gradually breaking away from the set prices, according to the financial journals and the reports which the steel strike committee have received."

Mr. Cannon said that on Jan. 1, 1920, 30,000 steel strikers, according to the statistics issued by the Pennsylvania Department of Labor, have gone back to their native countries. About 40,000 of the strikers have moved from the steel strike district and gone into other employment.

Ask Views of Broadway Lines.

The Broadway Association, which has proposed the removal of street car lines from Broadway and the substitution of bus lines, to give Manhattan an automobile thoroughfare on Broadway for the length of the island, has sent a question blank to its members asking their opinion of the proposal. It also asks if they favor a through street car line from Bowling Green to Kingsbridge operated on a single fare without transfer, and the continued use of the present type of green car on Broadway south of Forty-fourth Street.

Joan of Arc SMOCK

Abe Millman Says
"Turn to this page every day! It will give you information of tremendous value."

I CAN DO IT! Because I foresaw what was coming. I made it my personal business to obtain large quantities of materials for my smocks at prices which today are about 50% higher. In co-operation with the Government's worthy effort to cut the cost of living, I am turning out my smocks at prices based on original cost of materials, and not on present market prices. I have adopted an unshakable, firm, steadfast policy of

NO PROFITEERING

Furthermore, I will definitely demonstrate in this space from day to day exactly what I mean by "no profiteering." I am going to show values in smocks, which, with the well-recognized Joan of Arc standard of design, materials, and workmanship, will make them true, extraordinary examples of what I mean by real popular prices.

I am proud of the fact that I am both the creator of the American made smock, and its largest manufacturer. I have never stinted in my efforts to procure from all four corners of the globe design ideas for my smocks. Recently, I sent Mr. Zalud, the expert fashion artist, to the various style centers abroad. From London, Paris, and Japan, he brought back with him inspirational ideas, of which the sketches will be reproduced in this space from day to day. They are the source from which my designers created the most remarkable line of smocks ever shown.

For about a year I have been steadily working out special patterns and shades for the Joan of Arc smock materials, so that leading textile mills could manufacture special fabrics for me. Today I have at my command every conceivable smock material in unlimited combinations and colors. This season I have added to my big variety of shades several new suggestions from far-off Japan. They are complete departures for beauty and daintiness from anything heretofore shown. You certainly ought to see them!

Due, not only to the scarcity of help and general unstable manufacturing conditions, but also because the line I will show in this space will be novelties newly created, it will be impossible to send samples. However, we have prepared special assortments in $300 and $500 lots, with which I will give newspaper cuts and advertising matter. The prices range from $18 to $48 a dozen. Every one of these assortments will prove satisfactory in every way, or you can return them at my expense.

Now let me sum up the whole situation. First, I want it understood that smocks can be obtained at popular prices. Second, that the line I will show in this space will prove of invaluable prestige and profit to every concern handling my smocks. Finally, I want to urge you to watch diligently my ads on this page as they run from day to day.

Every ad will be a real eye-opener, demonstrating emphatically unheard-of possibilities, and proving that I CAN DO IT!

HOT SPRINGS COLONY GROWS

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Jan. 4.—Early January is furnishing daily additions to the Winter colony at the Homestead. Harold Phelps Stokes arrived on Saturday from New York. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Bryan, Jr., came from New York today, and are to remain one week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Johnson, who arrived today from Boston, are also to be here for a week. J. F. Kennedy came today from Nashville, Tenn.

Services in the different churches were well attended by the colonists, and later there were a number of walking parties. Mrs. J. Laurens Van Alen and her children were early on the trails. Mrs. Charles F. Whittlesey and her nephew, Robert Alberson, went to the Homestead gardens to inspect the greenhouses.

Mrs. Isaac Schlichter, accompanied by the Misses Edith C. Gordon and Geraldine Rider, started today for Philadelphia after passing several weeks at the Homestead.

Starting tonight for New York were Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Bailey, B. H. Baker, and Arthur Shrigley.

Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Beardmoore and Miss Adelaide Beardmoore left for Florida, where they will pass several weeks before returning to Canada.

SINN FEINERS CHANGE FRONT

Now Seek to Maintain Order in Some Parts of West Ireland.

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 5.—The Sinn Feiners in some districts of Western Ireland have formed vigilance committees to maintain order and suppress violence, according to The Daily Mail's Dublin correspondent, and are policing certain areas with energy and success.

"The committees," says the correspondent, "are particularly intolerant of such crimes as shooting through windows, burning ricks and maiming cattle, and the night patrols organized by peasant farmers when they seize offenders inflict severe punishment on them."

AN OPEN LETTER

TO THE SALESMEN

OF GREATER NEW YORK.

Are you entirely satisfied with your present business connection?

And how about the future? Is there the opportunity for you to develop into a $10,000 to $20,000 a year man?

If you cannot answer YES to these three questions, then this advertisement carries a message for you.

We are a manufacturing corporation with a nationally known product, protected by a patented process which is considered as important to the AUTO MOTIVE industry from an economic standpoint as the Bessemer process is to the steel industry.

We have room in our organization for a number of live-wire salesmen, accustomed to interviewing men of affairs, who can prove from past performance that they are capable of earning from $7,500 to $12,500 a year.

If you are such a man we will give you the opportunity of making more money during the next six months than you ever made before, and after that, if your work has been satisfactory, you may step into a permanent position in our merchandising department as a district sales manager on a basis of remuneration which will insure your financial independence during the remainder of your active business life.

We are increasing our manufacturing facilities, and want men who possess tact and initiative to call on motorists in New York and vicinity (with cards of introduction), and take subscriptions to our offering of 8% preferred stock, with a common stock bonus; stock selling experience helpful but not necessary; we instruct you in our school for salesmanship; commission basis.

If you think you can qualify, call MONDAY ONLY, at 251 4th Av., (11th floor), between 12 and 3 P. M., and bring your credentials with you. Ask for Mr. McGuire.

SALESMAN on better grade dresses; good following only; commission. Blossom Dress, 25 West 38th.

QUITS TO MANAGE COOLIDGE CAMPAIGN

HEADQUARTERS AT CAPITAL

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—James B. Reynolds of Massachusetts, Secretary of the Republican National Committee since 1912, has resigned, it was announced here today, to assume the management of the campaign of Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts for the nomination for President. The resignation is effective Jan. 10.

The announcement from the Central Western headquarters of the Republican National Committee said it was expected that Clarence B. Miller of Minnesota, for ten years a member of Congress from the Duluth district, would be made Acting Secretary. He would assume all of Mr. Reynolds's duties until the National Committee takes formal action.

Mr. Reynolds will open Governor Coolidge's campaign headquarters in Washington. Mr. Miller has been engaged for several months in special work at Washington for the National Committee. He last represented the Duluth district in the Sixty-fifth Congress.

Republicans of fourteen Central Western States gathered today for the opening tomorrow of a two days' conference. National Committeemen, State Chairmen, and nearly 1,000 men and women delegates are expected to attend to discuss organization work and campaigning methods and to hear Will H. Hays, National Chairman; Mrs. John Glover Smith, Chairman of the women's division of the party's National Committee; Miss Mary Garrett Hay of New York, Chairman of the Women's National Executive Committee; Mrs. Medill McCormick, former Chairman of the Women's Division; Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter of Kansas, and others.

The Chicago conference is the first of a series of three arranged by Chairman Hays for January. The second will be held in Denver on Jan. 8 and 9, and the third in San Francisco on Jan. 12 and 13.

Women are to take a prominent part in these gatherings, the party leaders planning their campaign on the supposition that the national suffrage amendment will be ratified in time to give votes to all women of the nation at the November election. The conferences here will be open forums, with Miss Hay presiding.

CLARKSON SOON TO RESIGN

Grosvenor B. Clarkson, Director of the United States Council of National Defense, will resign soon, after serving continuously since this country entered the war. He was called to Washington in March, 1917, to become Secretary of the council and of its Advisory Commission, later succeeding W. S. Gifford, now Vice President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, as Director of both bodies and their subordinate agencies.

He was also in direct charge of the council's nation-wide field machinery, consisting of 182,000 units of State, county, municipal and community councils of defense. At the request of the six Cabinet officers forming the council, Mr. Clarkson remained after the armistice to organize the council's economic reconstruction work and its peace-time operation, particularly that of the Interdepartmental Defense Board, of which he is Chairman.

Mr. Clarkson will probably enter business in New York. Before going to Washington he was one of the heads of the United States Naval Consulting Board's committee of business men that made the first Federal survey of America's industrial resources for war.

The January Clearance Sale of Men's and Young Men's Ulsters, Great Coats and Dress Overcoats at $39.75

PREPARATIONS made when the cost of woolens was much less than it is today enable us to quote this very low price—$39.75. Coats of equal quality (in fabrics and tailoring) cost that much in the present wholesale market.

All Wool Fabrics in the Popular Models
